Perhaps, first of all, he would make an approximate classification of travel, thus designating that of less than a mile, or it may be a mile and a-half, as short; of more than three or four miles, as long; and between these two limits, as intermediate. He, then, might not go far wrong were he to conclude that no rapid transit railway can possibly take from the surface roads a considerable part of the travel classified as short; but that such a railway can draw from a large area most of the persons who travel the distances specified as long, leaving for competition, between the rapid transit railways and the surface roads, only the travel rated as intermediate. If it be assumed that our suppositive engineer will see the great importance of securing to his rapid transit railways a large part of this intermediate travel, the fact will hardly escape his attention that—although every one in traveling from point to point in the city walks part of the way—the distance which persons can be induced to walk, except of necessity, is inversely proportional to the distance which they wish to ride; and that few of the persons who take the intermediate rides are willing, in the choice of a route, to walk greatly further than from one city avenue to another. He will, therefore, understand that only such of these persons are likely to give him their patronage as can reach the rapid transit stations by a few minutes' walk.

He could gain command of the intermediate travel by operating a rapid transit railway in, or near, every city avenue; although, even then, the sum of the distances walked by the passengers who ride on each of the railways would be greater than the sum of the distances which these passengers would have to walk, were they to leave the railway, and ride instead, in surface cars running on the same route. With four rapid transit railways, he might get as much, proportionately, of intermediate travel as now comes to the elevated roads. But if, instead of diffusing his passengers over a number of rapid transit railways, it seems to him better to concentrate the travel on a few, say, two lines, one on each side of the city, he might do so by means of cross-town surface roads, as feeders. The sum of the distances walked by users of the system would then be no greater than in the plan having a rapid transit railway in every avenue. Among the probable effects would be that during no one of fifteen or sixteen hours of the day would travel on the two main railways be light. Moreover, facilities would then exist, not only for travel up and down the city, but in every direction; so thoroughly that a person could ride quickly between any two points within the city limits, without having to walk continuously more than a thousand feet, or to pay double fares. On the other hand, were a rapid transit railway, or several such railways, constructed, simply with the general idea that if fast, well-appointed roads be built in New York, the public will ride on them, the probability is, unless a comprehensive feeding system be provided, that, although there may doubtless be a plethora of travel during rush hours, the trains at other times of the day, even if short and running not very frequently, will carry many empty seats. And this defect will be more marked with a four-track road than with the familiar road of two tracks.

But with the cross-town feeders, two four track railways can afford to give the public the benefit of trains running at short intervals during every hour of daylight and evening. Not only so, but both the average cost of carrying a passenger, and the total construction account, per longitudinal mile of the city, would be less than in case of a system of three independent rapid transit railways, such as would be obtained by encouraging those projectors of transit schemes, who propose to build, separately, a railway, it may be on the east side, it may be on the west side, it may be in the centre of town. And even were such a system to consist of as many as four lines (thus making the operating expenses unduly great, just as they are in the diffusive and faultily planned elevated roads), large areas of the city would still remain without convenient means of access to the rapid transit stations, only a part of the facilities desired for travel in direction of the longitudinal avenues would be provided, and the needs of those numerous persons wholly neglected, who have occasion to ride between points on different sides of town. Taking, simply, the general specifications that the aim of a transit system, or one of the aims, is to carry the people between their homes and their places of business, it seems to be evident that even this one requirement cannot be met by a railway system consisting of longitudinal lines alone, but that facilities must be provided for travel in all directions from any given point within the city limits; because the homes of the people and their places of business are, within these limits, everywhere.

The two suggested four-track roads should be connected at the Battery in such manner as to form an unbroken horseshoe-shaped route, thirty-one miles long. Placing the stations at an average distance of 2,000 feet apart, and locating the stopping points for the fast trains on each line, at the four lowermost stations, at 42d street, 86th street, 126th street, and at three points (including the upper terminus), above 126th street, every fast train in running the length of the city would make nine stops, and every local train forty-one.

The maximum train might consist of eight coaches (each with forty-eight seats), such as are used on the Sixth Avenue Elevated Road. The station platforms would then be some 350 feet long. With two distinct entrances, passengers would, probably, distribute themselves readily over a platform of such length; but not, perhaps, if it were longer. Of the thirty-one miles of road, five and a-half would be lined with platforms. By making all the platforms intertrack, the number required would be 102, and the amount of station wages, some $700,000 less, annually, than would be necessary if the road were built with two platforms at every station. An intertrack platform should, probably, be as wide as 25 feet.

Motive power should be provided adequate to move the maximum loaded trains up the steepest gradient at the speed of fifty miles an hour, if there is no sharp curvature of track. Passengers then might ride from the Battery to the City Hall in four minutes—all trains between these points being local—and from the City Hall to 42d street in five minutes by fast trains, and thirteen minutes by local train. The time of transit from one end of the city to the other, including stops, would be thirty minutes for each fast train and sixty minutes for each local train.

The fare on the main railways should not exceed 5 cents. If the fares from distinct cross-town travel will pay the cost of maintaining and operating the cross-town roads the use of these roads should be free to every person in making a trip of which part is traveled on one of the rapid transit railways; and free, also, to persons making trips partly by any of the other longitudinal lines whose owners may be party with the rapid transit company to the construction and operation of the cross-town system.

A number of cross-town roads are already in operation, and, in the ordinary course of events, additional roads will be built from year to year. The question, therefore, is not whether the cross-town roads shall have existence, but whether the public shall reap the advantage of having them operated as feeders to a comprehensive transit system. All the longitudinal railway companies should be urged—both for their own and the public interest—to unite in converting the cross-town roads into a system of feeders. In carrying out the suggested plan it would be necessary to acquire control of most of the existing cross-town roads, to reconstruct and re-equip them, and to build others. Commissioners, whose awards would be subject to review by the courts, might be appointed by the Legislature, to fix upon the amounts to be paid for the franchises and plants of the roads needed. Wherever the ownership of these roads may eventually be lodged, the condemnatory proceedings should, no doubt, be undertaken by the city. There is ample precedent for the purchase by a municipality, as a measure of public policy and at forced sale, of such industries as gas-works, water-works and railways; and never did public interest so greatly demand the exercise of this power, under legislative sanction, as in the present proposition to obtain the use of certain cross-town roads as an essential part of an adequate transit system. The object of this acquisition is not to enrich anyone, but to make travel easy and cheap for the people

The Kosmak Property.

The Brooklyn Bridge trustees naturally wish to get the property owned by Emil H. Kosmak adjoining the bridge at as low a figure as possible. But from the expert testimony given before the Commissioners who are hearing evidence as to the value of Kosmak's property, such men as Geo. H. Scott, President of the Real Estate Exchange, L. J. Phillips, James L. Wells and John R. Foley are agreed that it is worth from $300,000 to $350,000. The building on the lot is not worth much to speak of, but the lot itself possesses exceptional value. No spot in New York City is passed by more people, and no corner could be more valuable, if the maxim that the quantity, and even quality, of the passers-by determines the value of a piece of property, more or less. The World building adjoining gives it additional value, and if Kosmak's property had not been condemned it would have enabled him to erect a fine building and rent it at profitable figures. He has received several offers to lease the property. One is from "Tody" Hamilton, the agent of Barnum & Bailey, the showmen, at $25,000 per annum, principally for advertising purposes; another is for the store alone for $25,000, not to speak of an offer of $200 a month for an advertising scheme similar to that on Falk's at Broadway and 23d street, and $2,000 for the wall on the bridge side for advertising purposes. Kosmak naturally did not want his building and lot taken for bridge purposes. He had intended, he says, erecting a seven or eight-story structure which would have yielded a very large rental, and now he thinks that he should receive proper compensation for the loss of all this.

Important Sale of Brooklyn Lots.

One of the largest sales of unimproved property which has ever been held in Brooklyn will take place on Tuesday next, the 10th inst. It comprises about 750 lots, the balance remaining of an estate of 1,100 lots in the 26th ward, some 350 of which were recently sold at auction. The lots are situated on New Lots road, Hegeman, Vienna, Stanley, and Wortman avenues; Linwood, Elton, Cleveland, Ashford, Warwick, Jerome, and Barbey streets. They are restricted against nuisances, and are near the Van Sicklen avenue station of the Kings County Elevated Road, and only five blocks from the Linwood street station of the Atlantic Avenue Rapid Transit Road. Sixty per cent. of the purchase money will be allowed to remain on bond and mortgage at 5 per cent., and the titles are guaranteed. The ground s for the most part ready for immediate improvement, and the fact that there are very few large estates of this character left to be sold in the 26th ward will no doubt stimulate purchasers. The property adjoins the Snediker farm, which was some time ago sold in lots at good figures, and which has since been to some extent improved with private houses. The sale will be made by Auctioneers Taylor and Fox on the grounds at 11 A.M. A large attendance will no doubt be present, as the lots to be offered include the choicest parcels of the estate.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

The Board of Directors held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday last. Those present included President Geo. H. Scott, J. Romaine Brown, Chas. A. Schermerhorn, H. H. Cammann, C. W. Luyster, Geo. R. Read, Meyer S. Isaacs and Philip A. Smyth, who acted as secretary pro tem.

The president, in his report, said that the knockdown fees for the month of May, $2,501 in all, showed an increase of about $900 over the corresponding month last year. In reference to the action of the Exchange on the subject of an extra session of the Legislature to deal with the rapid transit problem he said that the Governor had informed him that there was no hope of a compromise between the Senate and the Assembly, and on this statement of the Governor's he had thought it best to let the matter drop.

The treasurer's report for May was read and referred to the Finance Committee for audit.

The Auction Room Committee was authorized to deal with all matters requiring urgent attention in the event of there being no quorum of the Board of Directors during the summer months.

The following named gentlemen have been elected to membership in the Exchange: Stock—Octavio A. Zayas, Pat'k S. Treacy, Geo. W. Van Siclen, Charles G. Blackwell and Anthony Arent; Annual—A. Brigham Hall, Nathan Wise, Adelbert E. Hoyt and John T. Williams; Non-resident—Frank Perrin.

Notice to Property-Owners.

CITY OF NEW YORK, FINANCE DEPARTMENT,
COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, May 28, 1890.

In pursuance of Section 997 of the "New York City Consolidation Act of 1882," the Comptroller gives notice to all persons, owners of property, affected by the following assessment list, viz.:

ACQUIRING TITLE.

120th st, bet 10th and Morningside avs.
121st st, bet 10th and Morningside avs.

—which were confirmed by the Supreme Court May 17, 1890, and entered the 23d day of May in the Record of Titles of Assessments, kept in the "Bureau for the Collection of Assessments and Arrears of Taxes and Assessments and of Water Rents," that unless the amount assessed for benefit on any person or property shall be paid within sixty days after the date of said entry of the assessment, interest will be collected thereon at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, from July 23d. Payments to be made to the Collector of Assessments and Clerk of Arrears, between 9 A. M. and 2 P. M.

The Threatened Water Arrears Confiscation.

There does not appear to be any sound reason for the measure introduced by Senator Ives (Senate Bill No. 607), tacked on to Assemblyman Webster's bill (No. 1,034), and passed in the last throes of the just expired session of the Legislature. By the wording of the bill the Commissioner of Public Works is "hereby authorized and empowered to cancel all unreturned charges for water which have stood upon the books of the Department of Public Works for two years or upwards." The law in relation to making Croton water a lien on real estate is changed to read that "all regular Croton water rents, and the interest and charges thereon, which may be laid, or have heretofore been laid, upon any real estate in the city and county of New York, shall be and continue to be, until paid, or canceled pursuant to law, a lien thereon."

This does not look like an amendment that the Governor ought to sign. There should be no cancelling of just municipal debts. The water tax is a just one, and has for years been a legal charge upon real estate. Property-owners have never questioned its propriety or justice. The tax is a reasonable one and is comparatively small, and there has been no demand for its reduction or abolition. What, then, is the meaning of the attempt made by Messrs. Ives, Webster & Company to quickly pass "an amendment to the Consolidation Act relative to water rents," which will deprive the city of a considerable annual income, at the call and beck of the Commissioner of Public Works who may be in power? It is said to be a political move. Commissioner Gilroy tacitly favors it, while Comptroller Myers looks upon it as a wrongful confiscation of a tax for which the city gives good and full value.

Comptroller Myers has addressed two letters to the Governor against his signing the measure. In one of these he says that the result of the bill "would be to deprive the city of revenues to which, under existing laws, it is entitled to the extent of upwards of $200,000," exclusive of "charges which may be imposed in future." Continuing, Mr. Myers says, "what public interest can be subserved by this enactment it is impossible to conceive. The public interest demands that every fair and just tax or rate for water imposed in a city should be duly collected, and no preference secured to any individual taxpayer, whether such preference is obtained by neglect or any other cause." He ends one of his letters with these words: "I submit my protest in the interest of the honest taxpayers of the city, who pay each year the water charges made against their property."

Commissioner Gilroy, when seen, said: "Assembly bill No. 1,034, which was my bill, dealt with lateral drainage. I am not responsible for the tacking on of the Ives bill. There is no harm in the latter."

"But the Comptroller says it means a loss to the city of $200,000," said the writer.

"There isn't $80,000 in it," was Mr. Gilroy's reply. "The people who owe it will not pay it anyway. The Comptroller doesn't understand it, I think. One of the provisions of the Ives bill is good. It allows a year in which to correct an error in a Croton bill, while at present this must be done almost at once, or no change is allowed."

Notes.

Notice is given that application will be made to the Supreme Court on Saturday, June 28th, for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the matters of acquiring title to Bailey avenue, from Boston avenue to Van Cortlandt avenue; to Cedar place, from Eagle avenue to Union avenue; to East 175th street, from Carter avenue to 3d avenue, and to Independence avenue, from Spuyten Duyvil Parkway to Morrison street.

The Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the matters of acquiring title to 169th street, from 10th to 11th avenue, and to Elton avenue, from 3d avenue to Brook avenue, give notice that the completed assessments have been deposited with the Department of Public Works until July 14th. Objections, if any, must be sent to their offices on or before the 12th day of July in the first matter, or the 14th in the second.

Bills That Have Become Laws.

The following bills relating to New York City have become laws :

Providing that the docks, bulkheads, etc., on Hudson River, from Gansevoort street to Little 12th street shall be set aside for the use of vessels engaged in carrying market truck and farm produce.

Providing that the Department of Public Works may improve the public parks, squares, etc., within the boundary lines of 4th avenue, between 67th and 96th streets, and 56th and 67th streets. $25,000 is appropriated.

Providing that the Dock Department may, with the approval of the Sinking Fund Commissioners, extend the pier line on the Hudson River between Battery place and 70th street, to construct new piers and the old ones out to new line.

The trustees of the Occident Club will apply to the Supreme Court, at a special term to be held July 1, 1890, at 10.30 A. M., for authority to change its name to "The Colonial Club of New York."

The Building Strike.

The strike of over one thousand men engaged in work upon buildings where building material has been supplied by Peck, Martin & Co. still continues. The attitude of this firm is very well known throughout the trade. They firmly believe in the principle of absolute independence, and they have always resolutely fought against the "dictation" as they call it, of the unions. They reserve to themselves the right of employing non-union as well as union men. This was their attitude last fall, and this, as THE RECORD AND GUIDE learns from them, is their attitude now. When asked if they intended to make any concession, they said they saw no reason to do so.

The Board of Delegates of the Building Trades, when called upon yesterday, said, through one of their members, that the strike against Peck, Martin & Co. was only a resumption of the fight made by the union against that firm last year. They intended to win this time, he said.

Personal.

We would be glad during the summer months to receive information as to the movements of our subscribers for publication in this column.

Max Danziger left for Europe on June 5th, there to remain until September.

Siegmund T. Meyer has left town, and is at present living on Bath avenue, Long Branch.

Men and Things.

There is a terrific scramble among the prominent American Reviews at present—and to a less extent among their English prototypes—for articles with big names attached to them. In fact it may be said that the star system is being introduced into review writing. Both the North American and the Arena display every month in large type the name of some personage in the political or literary world, and a crowd of lesser luminaries follow. The article itself sinks into comparative insignificance; the one thing necessary is reputation or notoriety in the author. Thus Andrew Lang was asked by the enterprising editor of the North American to contribute an article on the "Typical American." Mr. Lang, whatever his faults, is certainly not a sham. He wrote an article, explaining that he did not know anything about the subject—a statement which is implicitly to be believed. It did not shed much light on the important topic above mentioned; but it made some pages of leading matter with Andrew Lang's name attached to it. The breezy author was doubtless satisfied, for he received remuneration "fat and fair;" but the man who gave fifty cents for the purpose of learning something about the "Typical American" might perhaps have wondered if it was a fashion typically North American to supply an entrancing name attached to a worthless article. The Arena goes so far in the direction of what I may call "celebrity articles" as to give the name of the writer first in large type and the more unimportant designation of the subject matter afterwards. This is a radical change from the practice of the old English Quarterlies, in which the identity of the writer was shrouded in obscurity. Neither can it be said that this change is entirely to the advantage of the reading public. Articles of such a kind are generally requested, for your lion is a busy person. He does not consider the matter of much importance, but he knows that he will be well paid, and money, I understand, is desirable even to celebrities. Consequently he sits down to write his article hurriedly; his position will not allow him to discuss the subject impartially, or even to say all that he knows about it. In many cases I have not the slightest doubt that another person writes the paper, subject to the great man's approval; and in some cases I know that this has been done. The consequence is that more often than not the result is not worth reading. Furthermore, the great number of these articles makes it difficult for a person who really has something to say, and is willing to spend time in saying it, to get his ideas into print, for the editor is bound, of course, by the requests he has made, and has to exclude other matter even though it be better in quality. The result is a number of very large names and a number of very poor articles. In fact it is seldom worth while to read more than the cover of our American Reviews.

Real Estate Department.

There is little new to report as to the condition of the market this week. On the Exchange there have been no important sales of city property, and suburban property has not sold as well as it did earlier in the season. The city property put up at auction has been largely of parcels sold under foreclosure decrees, there being no less than twenty-seven different sales of this character. In connection with these sales under foreclosure it might be well to take note of the fact that the price paid at auction barely covers, and in some cases there is a deficiency in, the amount due for mortgages and costs. At private sale the market has not been particularly active, mainly owing to the very warm weather which has driven many people from town.

On Monday the usual dullness prevailed at the Exchange. The sale of 23d Ward property was not very successful, as will be seen by reference to another column. Under foreclosure three flats on 62d street west of 10th avenue sold to the plaintiff for $55,500. There was $15,589 due on the houses and prior mortgages amounting to $45,000.

On Tuesday foreclosure sales of city and auction sales of suburban property predominated. No. 448 West 20th street was sold to close a partnership for $11,400. Two lots on 90th street east of 5th avenue were sold under forclosure to the plaintiff for $50,000. There was $77,509 due on the property. Three lots on 113th street east of Riverside Drive sold for $10,000. $12,835 was due on the property. In other sales under foreclosure property was sold for little more than the amount due.

The sale of Yonkers lots was, in the main, successful. About ten lots were withdrawn, having been sold at private sale ; and the other 130 lots sold for a total of $80,000, or about $615 for each lot. The principal buyers were W. H. Sweeney, F. P. Goodenough, T. C. Higgins, B. M. Strauss, W. D. Loudoun, and Hugh Stevenson.

On Wednesday the sale which attracted most attention was that by order of the executors of the estate of Daniel Hogencamp, Nos. 145 and 147 West 125th street. There are two lots, each 25x99.11 feet, and there is a three-story brick dwelling on the plot. They were started at $25,000 for each lot, and sold for $32,600 each to Wm. Moores, acting for Adler & Herman and Antonio Rasines president of the Canal Street Bank. In partition, three five-story tenements on Broome street, west of Lewis street, were sold. Two of them together brought $59,500, and the third $29,000. All the other sales of any importance were under foreclosure. Indeed, there were eleven different foreclosure suits satisfied by sales on the Exchange on Wednesday, and many of these suits comprised several houses. No. 26 East 13th street, running through to No. 17 East 12th street, was sold to the plaintiff for $65,000. The southwest corner of Lenox avenue and 123d street sold for $96,215; and the southwest corner of 2d avenue and 96th street was bid in by the plaintiff at $71,900. The ten three-story brick dwellings on Manhattan avenue and 115th street were bid in by the plaintiff at prices ranging from $14,000 to $19,000 each. It seems that the defendant in this action gave in part payment for the house a chattel mortgage. The chattel mortgage turned out to be valueless, and so the former owner of the houses was forced to take them back. Meantime, however, the man who had given the chattel mortgage as part payment had put a mortgage on the houses The sale on Wednesday was simply to clear the title.

On Thursday there were no sales of importance. By order of the executors of John C. Henderson the corner of 72d street and Avenue A was sold to Newman Cowen for $10,450, and the adjoining lot on the avenue for $6,800. The northwest corner of Avenue B and 72d street, 64.4x98, sold to Wm. C. Lesster for $9,400, and the southwest corner, opposite, to Sonn Bros., the grocers, for $9,300. There is considerable rock on this property. The five foreclosure sales advertised were adjourned

Special Notices.

Ames & Co. have recently opened a branch up-town office at No. 1361 9th avenue, on the northwest corner of 81st street, at the foot of the elevated road station. This firm has been a successful one since its establishment. They have made numerous sales of property this season and do a general real estate agency and brokerage business. Their main office is at No. 109 West 34th street, and they also have an up-town agency on the northwest corner of 10th avenue and 103d street.

The following extract from a letter from the Stevens Institute of Technology explains itself: "I have carefully examined and tested the samples of your material left with me, as to conducting power for heat and combustibility as compared with commercial asbestos paper. The conducting power for heat in the case of your material as compared with that of asbestos paper is about as 3 to 2; but when your material is exposed to intense heat the mineral salts in it suffer decomposition with evolution of water, by which a rise of temperature is retarded, so that, for example, gunpowder is ignited through asbestos paper placed over a lamp in one eighth of the time required to ignite it through your material.—Signed, HENRY MORTON." The general agents are John McGlensey & Son; office, room 73, No. 115 Broadway.

August Jacob is so well known as a manufacturer of iron cornices, slate and metal roofing and metal skylights that it is scarcely necessary to call attention to the fact that a visit to his offices at No. 260 East 78th street would well repay builders who wish work done in that line. He also conducts a large jobbing trade, and repairs and paints roofs.

John W. Rapp, of Nos. 304 to 310 East 95th street, announces that he has an improvement, May 6th, 1890, on fire-proof dumb-waiter doors and frames, which is thoroughly fire-proof. The doors are made with double sides, and are guaranteed to be perfectly noiseless in the opening and shutting. Architects would do well to have Mr. Rapp's illustrated catalogue.

The Knickerbocker Trust Co. is the only trust company in the upper part of the city, and under the skillful management of its president, John P. Townsend, who is also vice-president of the Bowery Savings Bank, president of the Maritime Exchange, and treasurer of the Produce Exchange, is rapidly gaining in business resources. It is an obvious advantage to people living up town to have facilities at their command equal to the best in the lower part of the city, but which they cannot take advantage of without the long journey down town. The headquarters of the company are at No. 234 5th avenue, and they have a down-town office at No. 3 Nassau street and at No. 18 Wall street.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

The lien filed against my property at the northeast corner of St. Nicholas avenue and 120th street, on the 31st day of May, by Anderson & Thiel, is unjustifiable and without excuse. I owe them nothing and believe by the time I have completed the work for which they contracted, but which they totally abandoned, they will be considerably in my debt. I have already given notice to them to foreclose the same without delay so that I may show how totally without foundation their claim is. Yours respectfully,

DAVID T. KIDD.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For prices see pages VI., XI., XII. and XV.]

BRICKS.—It is possible the general market for Common Hards has reached no worse point than last week, but very certain there is no gain in tone, and from the selling side comes report of a sort of passive submission to influences for which no immediate remedy seems to be suggested. A supply constantly exceeding any obtainable outlet covers about the entire situation, and it has been a common experience to find ten and fifteen and even twenty loads of stock afloat awaiting custom. Even the former advantage to be obtained from buyers looking for extra fine stock has become in a measure modified, as the inferior old stuff is pretty much all disposed of and the average run of quality steadily improving, so that outside of some very rigid selection a desirable assortment can be reached by calling for it. The general range of quotations does not change much, the $6.00 per M. mark showing about the top that can consistently be named, while at the other end "about $4" is mentioned, though sales of Keyports have been made as low as $3 75 per M. For Pales there has been a comparatively good demand, mainly from Brooklyn, the low rates at $2 50 @3.00 per M. evidently proving something of an attraction. Some surprise and naturally more or less grumbling over the condition of the market may be heard and many operators are not very positive in their opinions as to the ruling causes. It is, however, suggested that the run of production is quite as full as last season with considerable shrinkage in the outlet. There are now no big outside jobs, such as the aqueduct, to afford an extra exhaust of liberal character, the large down-town structures as yet draw a little slowly, while the ordinary run of buildings seems to be a trifle less plentiful than anticipated. A lessening of the output would no doubt serve, in a measure, to make a balance, but with the exception of here and there a stoppage of shipments no special action has been taken at primary points. Manufacturers, of course, do not care to suspend production entirely if they can help it, and as the majority must have funds to keep them running it becomes necessary to continue shipments for the purpose of realizing, so that as matters stand it looks as though the market could not get much relief unless demand expands materially or there is a considerable shut down in the amount of work done at the brick yards tributary to this market.

A Washington correspondent sends advices of the following important decision: The Treasury Department has overruled the Collector at New York in assessing duty at 55 per cent. ad valorem on certain glazed bricks imported by the Raritan Hollow and Porous Brick Company, and claimed by them to be dutiable at 20 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for "Brick, fire-brick, not especially enumerated or provided for." The applicants urged that the bricks, which are manufactured in the usual manner from ordinary clay and have one or more surfaces glazed, were known to trade and commerce as brick and glazed bricks as distinguished from earthenware, long prior to as well as since the Tariff Act of March 3, 1883, was passed, and that such bricks are intended and used for the same purposes as other bricks; that is, in building both inside and outside walls. The Appraiser reported that the articles were building bricks, known in the trade by the technical names of stretchers, quoins, bull-noses, headers, double-headers and double-stretchers; that all these kinds of bricks, although glazed on one or more surfaces, are intended for building purposes, and have been invariably classified as brick and returned for duty at 20 per cent., that at the Conference of Local Appraisers of July, 1889, it was held that certain glazed hanging bricks, which were used for building purposes, were liable to this rate of duty, and that, in his opinion, all bricks intended for building purposes, similar to those in question, were entitled to such classification. Under these circumstances the Department decides that the bricks are liable to a duty of only 20 per cent.

GLASS.—The present demand for window glass is moderate, and the market on the whole has rather a dull tone. Dealers, however, say that conditions are much the same as usual at this time of year, and they do not express much worry over the situation. Prices generally are firm on both foreign and domestic, and it is claimed can be supported without difficulty. Advices received from abroad state that quite an effort to secure stock on American account has been made, and it is believed are for parties who are willing to import on the assumption that there is to be an increase of duty. Owing to some dissatisfaction over previous arrangements, it is now understood that the closing of part of the factories on June 1st was abandoned, but that on the 14th all will surely shut down for the season so far as they are controlled by the Western Association.

LATH.—There has been a verification of the prediction of light arrivals, only a few fresh parcels coming to hand and a portion of these found to be already under contract, but receivers are disappointed in the volume and force of demand. Dealers claim light, uncertain consumption, and in many cases have shown excellent ability to remain off the market, thus reducing competition and preventing values from going above the former range of say $2.30@$2.50 per M., with probably most of the business and especially large parcels at $2.35 per M. An increase of consumption, however, would most likely act as a stimulant as conditions of supply remain much the same, only small amounts known to be afloat from the Eastward, with present production small, and the moderate quantity coming from the North retarded by difficulty on the canals. Receivers, in fact, feel perfectly confident that the appearance of three or four of the larger dealers as customers would quickly generate a buoyant feeling.

LIME.—While habit leads most operators to repeat the usual report of a steady satisfactory market, there are signs of an unsettled and somewhat disagreeable undertone. Arrivals have not only proven pretty full, but they come upon considerable unsold old supply in first hands, and most dealers apparently carrying all the accumulation they cared for at the moment, and the difficulty has been to know just how to manage. Quotations are made the same as usual and no operator will admit discovering that there has been a change, yet there is a suspicion that buyers have in some way or another been tendered advantages as an attraction for them to invest. Advices from the Eastward carry the impression that manufacturers are likely to maintain their compact by mutual consent until the tariff question is settled.

LUMBER.—There is probably no line of trade in this city where so varied an opinion can be obtained regarding the general condition of present business and the outlook for the season as upon the lumber market. Interest and desire both serve to shape the expression of views, and it requires a great deal of careful calculation at times to reach a decision after hearing the numerous contradictory statements coming as they mostly do from operators whose earnestness and integrity are above question, and simply honestly differ in opinion. All in all, however, we still hold to the idea that the actual total movement of lumber into consumptive channels is not much if any greater than last season, and the increased sale of some woods is simply a counterpoise for the loss on other descriptions for which they have become substitutes. Manufacturing industries are conducted upon a more circumspect scale in many instances, and while there is plenty of building going on and contemplated, there is no boom, and a great deal of the work, especially in the city proper, is not of a class that has much use for wood until it reaches the stage for "finish." As a rule, however, dealers are not neglectful of the requirements of their yards, and operators tendering desirable parcels of stock of really standard and attractive quality are meeting with no great difficulty in securing prompt and satisfactory negotiation.

Eastern Spruce continues to be reported upon from a "sure thing" basis by a large proportion of the trade, with a few assuming the absolute impossibility of any influence that would make the loss of advantage to the seller a necessity. They claim that a reduction in cost can only come through the weakness of some receiver giving way through timidity, and insist that an ordinary showing of pluck must make demand submissive to whatever may be required of it within the bounds of reason. Numerous buyers, and probably the majority are, however, not disposed to allow investment to go beyond the boundaries of present wants, as they are willing to take the chances for winter supplies later in the season. Logs are coming down very nicely, late advices reporting 100,000,000 feet in the booms at Fredericton, N. B., with some 80,000,000 feet additional on the way. Transportation chances are also fair, and it is said that many captains are disgusted with ice as a freight and ready to go back to lumber.

Piling on the whole remains a very desirable stock to deal in, and the market throughout has fairly healthy and sound tone. Some receivers complain now and then over the character of the demand, but they appear to be mostly those in receipt of odd cargoes, or not in direct communication with the best custom, but the regulars seem satisfied and report very well sustained rates throughout.

Hemlock retains much the former general line of features, and there is no admission at least of any loss of tone. A great many parcels in one way or another are being placed on local account, and agents report success, even beyond their expectations, in finding custom at other localities, with many of the mills said to have orders enough on their books to keep them running on deliveries up to about the end of the season. The supply from the North continues scant, and the value full all around.

White Pine does not surge ahead at all in point of movement, but probably retains the same position in relation to other woods it has occupied all the season, and conservative operators suggest a market in very good form. There is an occasional raid made by some enterprising, but more or less inexperienced, agent trying to get a grip here, as this seems to be the Mecca to which all needy sellers turn, but the business is now so well systematized that the residents get the cream of it and pilgrims have only a moderate uncertain sort of chance. Prices remain steady but no grade seems to have a stiumulating element. On export account there is not much call beyond average run of invoices, and this section of the trade is unsatisfactory.

Yellow Pine is showing very much the stereotyped conditions and there are few features, if indeed any, admitting of extended remark in new and attractive form. An old characteristic of the market is constantly encountered in the unwillingness of a great many operators to bother themselves about giving information, the refusal at times taking the shape of positive impertinence, but allowing for the ignorance dictating such action the absence of either complaint or praise may probably be accepted as evidence that general business is working along without friction.

Carolina Pine, dressed and rough, is realizing about all the expectations of manufacturers, according to report, and securing an outlet in full balance of the production, with the usual claim that if larger amounts could be delivered they would encounter waiting custom. Prices are quoted steady, with the exception of the usual ragged edge produced by sellers anxious to make an impression when searching for new custom.

Hardwoods have good general demand and a reasonably healthy market, especially for such stock as cherry, quartered oak and poplar. On the latter, complaint is still comn on enough in the matter of price, and there may be found many who insist that not above $31.00 is quotable, claiming ability to purchase at that figure, but operators who must and do handle the best quality and profess quite as good facilities as any for finding what they want, assert that $32.00 is the lowest at which they can satisfy their requirements. The deal in mahogany is progressing well, with the distribution reaching more and more toward interior points. From exporters the demand is good, but always accompanied by a call for the best of goods.

The exports of lumber, exclusive of hardwoods from the port of New York during the month of May were as follows:

	1890. Feet.	1889. Feet.
To West Indies	4,243,000	2,026,000
To South America	4,059,000	1,669,000

To Europe	187,000	...
Total feet	9,355,000	5,865,000

Total since Jan. 1	39,733,000	36,410,000

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

One of the salient features of the present situation is a renewal of cargo demand on the upper lakes. That class of movement had, until recently, been in a semi-dormant state. Within a few days there has been manifest renewed life and activity on the part of buyers for the yards in this and other markets. Wholesale stocks have been worked down and broken up by a steady spring trade, and the time has come when dealers will have to restock or suspend trade for the summer.

It is now acknowledged on all hands that trade this year is bound to dispose of a heavy volume of lumber. Naturally the putting in of bulk stocks must be proceeded with to a greater extent than during the past month. But it is doubtful if yard dealers will proceed in that particular as recklessly as in former years. They have come to realize that caution in buying is a necessity. Piling up lumber of all grades in a careless and indiscriminate manner will not do in the present state of trade. Buying will hereafter be with a particular view to qualities, balancing of stocks, and a sure margin in the handling.

The cargo market at Chicago is reported as follows:

As a general proposition, it can be said that the demand for piece stuff has lately been more active, and prices are tending to increased firmness. At the same time, the supply is not abundant. The early inclination of the yardmen to keep out of the market until it should weaken seems to have been responded to by the manufacturers, who have withheld consignments. Within the past week buyers have frequented the commission offices more frequently than before, and such offerings of piece stuff as have been made have been taken hold of with more promptitude. The price, $9.50 for short green, is firm, and the commission men expect that there will be an advance. The feeling among Muskegon manufacturers is decidedly bullish, as correspondence from that point shows. They are now talking about $9 for short stuff on dock there, instead of $8.50, the prevailing price for some time past. This would make the minimum price here $10, as the one counted on by the mill operators. Of course the yard dealers scout this proposition, but it is not impossible that there will soon be an advance. It is an odd time of the year to expect such a thing, but conditions at the present time are exceptional. There has been delay about restocking, while, at the same time, lumber has been going out of yard at a fairly rapid rate. Now, 12-inch, all 16-foot stuff, small timbers and 22-foot joists, and other long lengths, are in short supply, with yard salesmen scouring the district for sorts, and offering 50 cents a thousand more for them than they had to pay a month ago. Dry cargoes are wanted most by the shippers, and $10 to $10.25 a thousand is paid for such lumber, with little arriving or to arrive; for the supply has been nearly sold out. In such a state of things it is no wonder that the commission men begin to feel as if their turn was coming next. But it should be understood that several of the larger concerns have been buying blocks of lumber at the mills, and that stock thus secured will soon come forward in large volume. It is yet too early to confidently predict as to the turn the piece stuff market will take, but something definite will surely develop before long.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

The logs on the St. Croix and tributaries, both old and new, at the opening of the present season figure up to 329,000,000 feet in addition to 50,000,000 feet that were held over in the big jam and in the boom. This makes a total of 379,000,000 feet of logs that will be on the market before the end of the season if they are all brought in. The comparison with the stock on hand at the beginning of last year shows an increase for the present season of 54,000,000 feet, figuring in both old and new in both cases.

CANADA.

The Canadian Journal of Commerce as follows:

Advices from Ottawa state that the Chaudiere lumbermen are unanimous in stating that there is a noticeable depression in the trade at present, but not so much as to cause any alarm. There is, however, an improvement in the demand over that of three or four weeks ago, when business presented a gloomy aspect, but still the shipping is not as heavy as it was during this period in previous years. A well-known lumberman says that the slackness in the demand during the past winter was principally owing to gold being high in Brazil, it fluctuating from 300 to 350. As long as it remains as high as it is at present purchasers, especially from South America, will decline to buy to any great extent. The consumption of lumber in Canada and the United States is at present good and a revival of business is looked for in the near future. It was thought that the reduction in the ship rates this spring would have materially increased the demand from the English market, but it has not been felt as yet by the manufacturers and it is said will only prove advantageous to the exporters, most of whom have large stocks on hand. Another cause of the depression arises from the strikes in the old country. Owing to the large stock of lumber on hand the cut this summer will not likely be up to that of last seasons, which was an exceptionally big one. Unemployed men are very plentiful around the mills. The number will be diminished, however, later on in the season, when night work will be in full blast. Speaking of the McKinley bill a large lumber dealer expressed the opinion that, providing as it does for an increase in the duty upon Canadian lumber, unless the Dominion abolishes the export duty on logs it has seriously threatened and injured the trade. "Not only," he said, "are American purchasers afraid to buy, in the present unsettled condition of the tariff, but buyers for the British and South American markets are holding off, believing that if the McKinley bill becomes law and Canadian lumber is excluded from the United States they will be able to purchase at their own prices. Reciprocity is what is wanted to make the lumber business boom." At Quebec the prospects for the lumber business the coming summer are reported unfavorable. It is estimated that this year's output in pine will be over 50 per cent. larger than that of last year. It is, therefore, predicted that the the English market will be glutted and prices reduced.

The Toronto Monetary Times as follows:

The drives in the bush have been delayed somewhat through cold weather, but are now (May 25th) doing well, the lakes all being broken and the water at a good pitch. There is a considerable amount of snow reported in the bush yet.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The London Timber Trades Journal as follows:

American Woods.—Black Walnut, Whitewood, Oak, etc.—In all these the most noticeable feature is the great scarcity of any really prime parcels on sale, importations of late having been of an inferior character, for which there is but little inquiry, most consumers holding large stocks.

Sequoia.—There were no biddings for the parcel of planks per Principe di Napoli offered in a recent catalogue, at which, however, we were not very much surprised, having of late heard rather discouraging reports concerning this description of wood. The demand is certainly feebler, and in consequence transactions are unimportant.

The journal also has the following editorially:

A formidable competitor with yellow pine in the London market is the white plank from the United States that appears frequently in the public sales. American whitewood, as it is called, has been shipped to this market for some considerable time, and appears to grow in favor the more it is used. Its chief points of recommendation are its fine grain, freedom from knots, easiness to work, large dimensions, and its cheapness, this latter being the principal reason of its selling so freely here. Everything now is for getting things at as low a price as possible, and prejudices are fast giving way to that practical economy. If consumers can get wood to do their work for £12, they do not like paying £24, hence we see wherever it is possible the lower qualities of deals are used in lieu of those of better grades. Of course there are certain kinds of work for which only the choicest and best selected woods that the market supplies can be used, but in our remarks of the American whitewood we are not going to lay our finger down and say that it is unfitted for this high-class work—it is not a question of that yet, it is merely whether it saves the pine consumer anything in substituting it for the ordinary work for which the Canadian wood is mainly used. As far as sequoia or Californian redwood is concerned, its costliness will always be against it. The long distance it has to come round Cape Horn, apart from any comparison of its merits, puts it out of competition with the Baltimore whitewood. It was thought when the sequoia first came on the market here that it would compete with the higher grades of pine on the score of price as well as quality, but that has been proved fallacious long ago. The American whitewood, however, appears to fare better, and certainly as far as cost goes has an immense advantage, especially while it is shipped as fill ups in some of the "liners." It might make a difference if the shipments were regular and in the shape of whole shiploads, but even then the freight would be only about the same as Quebec, probably a trifle less.

NAILS.—The report is irregular, some operators claiming rather an improving business, and others decided indifference among buyers It is, however, evident that trade is not by any means of satisfactory volume as a whole, and values lack solid support throughout. The further decline in price of metal is an unfavorable factor for the selling side of the market. We quote at $1.70@1.80 per keg for car lots and $1.85@1.90 per keg for parcels from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—It is a pretty good market all around, with some outlets offering an increase of business, though there is nothing as yet in the movement that is really snappy or vigorous. Indeed, buyers do not seem to possess the speculative spirit in any way, and even the prospect of an advance in such thoroughly staple stock as leads fails to stimulate investment to any extent beyond what might be considered the natural bounds of regular trade. Good management, however, seems to prevail and support a thoroughly healthy undertone all along the line. Linseed Oil sells well and steadily, with crushers apparently very confident over the general prospects of the market. We quote 60@61c. for Western and 62@64c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has shaded just a fraction more since our last, but the general tone seems to be rather steadier and supplies offered without evidence of special or direct effort to realize. We quote at 37@38½c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

Since writing our regular report particulars of the break-down in price of White Lead have been published, and are substantially as follows: All the corroders connected with the National Lead Trust have issued new price-lists showing ½ % decline on White Lead in Oil, quoting Dry Lead at the same figures, throwing aside the rebate plan altogether, and suspending the prepayment of freights. With respect to settlements under former terms, it is announced that rebates due on purchases made between January 1 and May 31 will be in the same relative proportion that the period bears to the entire year. Thus 4 % will be allowed on aggregate purchases of 2,500 lbs. and over; 6 % on 8,333 lbs. and over; 8 % on 20,833 lbs. and over; 10 % on 41,666 lbs. and over. The new list is as follows:

WHITE LEAD, DRY OR IN OIL, IN KEGS.

In lots of less than 1,000 lbs... ..... 7 %, net
In lots of 1,000 lbs. to 5 tons at one purchase.....6½ %
In lots of 5 tons to 12 tons at one purchase.....6⅝ %
In lots of 12 tons and over in one purchase.....6¼ %

Dry White Lead in barrels, ½c. less than price in kegs; Pure White Lead in 12½-lb. tin pails (packed in 100-lb. cases), 1c. per lb. over price in kegs; in 25 and 50-lb. tin pails (packed in 100-lb. or 200-lb. cases), ½c. over price in kegs; in 1-lb., 2-lb., 3-lb. and 5-lb. cans, assorted (packed in 100-lb. cases), 2½c. over price in kegs.

Terms.—On lots of 1,000 lbs. or over, 60 days, or 2½ % discount for cash if paid in 15 days from date of invoice.

Red Lead or Litharge.—These Pigments are subject to the same conditions that at present govern transactions in White Lead, with prices revised as follows, by manufacturers in the National Lead Trust:

	In Kegs.	In Bbls. and ½ Bbls.
In lots less than 1,000 lbs.....	7c.	6¾c.
In lots of 1,000 lbs. to 5 tons .	6½c.	6¼c.
In lots of 5 tons to 12 tons ...	6⅜c.	6⅛c.
In lots of 12 tons or over.....	6¼c.	6c.

These radical changes are attributed to competition and under selling for some time past by an outside Western concern, with indications that something of the same kind may be expected from Eastern manufacturers. It is understood that under the new plans no effort will be made to control jobbers' prices, and the latter will be free to sell upon whatever basis may suit them, indicating an open market, intended probably to break up outside competitors or draw them into the trust.

TAR AND PITCH.—Not much animation, and investment as a rule confined to parcels adapted to immediate consumptive requirements. Holders, however, manage to control the supply very well and support values. We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.55 per bbl.; Tar at $2.12½@2.30, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

VOL. XLV. JUNE 14, 1890. No. 1,161

The Stock Market during the past week has not been all that the bulls might wish, but it has been all they have had a right to expect. When quotations depend on Congressional legislation on a matter like the silver question, as to which there are so many conflicting opinions and interests to reconcile, no one can complain if the days of waiting and suspense are many and the days of advancing prices few. There are, however, a great many influences at work for higher prices quite apart from silver legislation. The railroad earnings show even larger increases than those we have been accustomed to; bank clearings never before aggregated such big figures; general trade is reported to be active, and a better feeling prevails in the iron and coal markets. Still more important, perhaps, from the point of view of permanent effect, is the practical purchase of the Baltimore & Ohio by the Richmond Terminal. It is not generally realized how far this combining process has gone, and the exhibit made by the Financial Chronicle last week has doubtless surprised many investors in railway securities. After an elaborate survey of the field the Chronicle comes to the conclusion that sixteen leading interests and corporations control 111,149 miles of road. And if the 10,867 miles in the hands of the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk systems are taken out, over 100,000 miles would remain under the direction of fourteen interests. The most important of these interests is the Vanderbilt, which owns some 15,663 miles; the next is the Gould, with 11,879 miles; the third is the Huntington, with 9,038 miles; a close fourth is the Atchison, with 8,965 miles; the Union Pacific follows with 8,047 miles; Richmond Terminal is sixth, with 7,664 miles, and the Pennsylvania is seventh, with 7,469 miles. The classification on analysis may appear arbitrary in some respects, but it is very interesting in showing to what an extent the consolidation has gone. The most compact and prosperous of all these systems is the Pennsylvania, although it stands only seventh in respect to mileage. Already, however, a change would have to be made in the table through the acquisition of the Baltimore & Ohio by the Richmond Terminal. The former corporation controls nearly 1,990 miles, the addition of which to the Richmond Terminal would make it third on the list. How far this process will be continued it is impossible to say. It would seem to be the part of wisdom for the managers of these great systems to turn their attention to simplifying the enormously complex machinery under which the roads are at present worked, and to consolidating and unifying their stock and bonded obligations. Indeed, this process will be almost inevitable, for by it great savings can be made both in operating expenses and fixed charges. The railroads at the present time are operated by the best business and organizing talent in the country; their position is strengthened every year by these wise amalgamations, and eventually they may well be reduced to a simplicity which at present seems inconceivable.

Governor Hill has met with praise for the way in which he has disposed of the bills left on his hands, even from sources which are in the habit of treating his actions as uniformly bad. Yet it can be said with justice, after taking a careful survey of the legislative corpses with which his desk is so plentifully bestrewn, that he has evinced in his vetoes a more careful regard for newspaper opinions than for the public good. In the matter of the cable bill he has refused to "stultify" himself in the eyes of certain contemporaries, but he has consented to stultify the city in respect to its transit interests. Our present street railroads are not only slow in improving their motive powers, but they are active in preventing the building of competitive lines. Thus the legislative season ends with absolutely no assistance from Albany in this transit matter—a consummation which inures to the benefit of out-of-town property-owners and the retailers and manufacturers of shoes. The familiar cry of the "corporations be damned" has been used effectively against the East River Bridge bill and the measure for raising the Harlem River bridges. Indeed, the Governor and the Legislature both have exhibited the greatest care in defeating legislation to enable New Yorkers to get anywhere; they evidently believe in maintaining what we may call the present spatial relations of the metropolis, both as regards the internal connections of the parts and its external relations to other places. The Governor has done well to allow the Aqueduct Claims bill to lapse, though, perhaps, we may even come to regret this, in case the contractors ever recover their claims from the city and we are obliged to meet heavy interest charges on the amount of the awards. It is, perhaps, also fortunate that he has signed the bill providing for a Commissioner of Streets in the 23d and 24th Wards. It is by no means a perfect piece of legislation, as the inhabitants of that section will have reason to discover in time; but it will give them a far better machinery than they have at present.

The memorandum Governor Hill filed with one of the bills he signed calls for more extended comment. It is perhaps an unusual spectacle, even in these days of the divorce between legislation and common sense, to see an executive officer give a number of reasons for not signing a bill based on a quarrel with its essential features, and yet in the end not scruple to sign it. He has done what he himself considers to be a foolish act in approving the bill making the Sheriff a salaried officer. But he ignores his objections because no one else shares them. The Governor evidently believes with Novalis, that an individual opinion gains a thousandfold in strength if there is one other person who believes in the same way. The reasons, however, which he gives for these misgivings are a sufficient explanation why they exist solely in his own mind. Thus, he thinks, the fact that there has been a marked decrease in the fees received by the Register's and County Clerk's offices since they have become salaried—a decrease that has made them a burden to the city rather than a source of income to the politicians—to be an indication that this change was hasty and ill-advised. But people who do not live in Albany know very well that there is no central relation between the decrease in fees and the change in the method of giving compensation to the managers of these offices. If the fees have decreased because of the above-mentioned change, it can only be because our subsequent County Clerks and Registers have ceased to be as vigilant and to serve the public as well since they ceased to receive returns large in proportion to their amount of work done—an imputation which we are sure those officials would resent. Furthermore, it is quite obvious that no lack of vigilance could at all affect a certain part of the fees received by the Register, viz.: those which come from the recording of deeds and mortgages. The fact of the matter is, that the decrease in fees is due solely to the decrease in the amount of searching done, and this decrease in searching, as is well known, is caused entirely by the inability of the Register's and County Clerk's offices to compete with the improved methods of indexing used by the title guarantee companies. The decrease results consequently not from any change in the methods of compensating those officials who could not have prevented it save by the passage of a number of acts totally reforming their department, but from the external competition of a number of clever business men. If Governor Hill had pursued investigations to Brooklyn, he would have found in that city a County Clerk who still depends on fees for a livelihood, but who is in despair because of a decrease in his source of income similar to the decrease in the city's income on this side of the river. Governor Hill should look a little bit further before he makes such ill-considered objections to good pieces of legislation.

Must not ours be a tolerably thick-skinned community if it passively watches the return of the boodle Aldermen from their shelter in Canada and permits them to quietly settle themselves again "in our midst." There is very little doubt, however, that in this matter New York will give the world a most conspicuous example of its pachydermatous condition. Already two of these men have returned, as though to spy the public feeling and test our moral alertness. Their reception having been friendly in the extreme and legally cordial it is not to be wondered at that their self-exiled companions are packing up their traps preparatory to returning home. Now, why should New York act in a half-hearted way? What we are going to do let us do at once thoroughly. We should instruct our "simple, christian" friend, the District Attorney, to draw up a cordial invitation in the name of the people of New York City, to be sent to our respected "boodle" brethren abroad, asking them to return home to their friends. For rhetorical effect and to indicate earnestness it might be well to say their "distressed" or "sorrowing" friends, after the style of the "Personal" advertisement. So that they shall bear no resentment against the community, and as a confession of what undoubtedly is a fact, it would be advisable to declare that the threats of prosecution and the judicial farce that has been prolonged now for some years was only a joke—a sort of popular practical joke of a lively people that care little for official rectitude, that have established an elaborate legal system ostensibly to punish, but really to protect shrewd and influential criminals. The game is played out. We can get no more fun from it, so let us come from behind the curtain and show ourselves as we are to the world.

The Newer New York.

It is a dictum of the political economists that there is no better way of measuring the improvement that is taking place in an industry or a place than by marking the degree in which new methods and machines are substituted for old ones. If this be true (and we do not see that even Karl Marx could find any reasonable objection to it) New York is certainly the most rapidly improving city on earth. Other cities are being built up, perhaps, more rapidly, but if there is another municipality in the world in which there is so much house destruction for the purpose of reconstruction then it has escaped our observation. Old New Yorkers dwell on these changes with pride. They delight in an opportunity to tell of the times when the wealth and fashion of the city used to live in and around Battery Park; how as boys they used to coast on the hill between Broadway and Broad street, and how, later, such streets as Bleecker and Rivington contained the habitations of the upper classes. Even within the memory of men who are still young the changes have been great. Fifth avenue has undergone a radical metamorphosis; Wall street and the vicinity has not altered in character, but it presents a strangely different appearance, and the wholesale district at the present time is gradually shifting its location. As we have said, there are still men left to remember the time when the district north of Chambers street presented very much the same exterior as the annexed district does now; but they are fast dying out, and it is well that the Holland Society has taken to labelling such few spots within our limits as are consecrated by the incidents of our early history. Old London is a matter of the most affectionate solicitude to the present inhabitants of the city. They dwell with delight in the houses which sheltered their great men; they still dine at the taverns where Sam Johnson took his homely meals, and few there are of its cultured citizens who cannot call from the fountains of their memories incidents and associations that give a romantic interest to every block in the older portions of the city. And while London, too, has been greatly altered in the past hundred years, there are sections of it which have not changed substantially in character. Paternoster Row has ever been the home of the publisher, and Fleet street is still inseparably associated with newspapers. The past of New York, though not without its associations, bears no relation to the past of London, either in its content or interest, and even if it did our citizens would probably leave such tender memories to gray heads and antiquarians. But the fact upon which we are dwelling is that the changes in New York are to be measured not in centuries but in decades. The proportion that the amount of building on ground that is vacant bears to the building on ground which already has been used may be indicated by a few facts. Take the building figures for the first five months of this year. Roughly speaking, we may be reasonably certain that any building erected south of 59th street will be put upon land already occupied by some kind of improvement, and that any building erected north of 59th street will occupy vacant land. Using this division as the basis for a rough calculation, accurate enough for our purpose, it will be seen from our tables published last week that there is a projected expenditure of some $17,697,540 for what we will call for convenience reconstruction, and $19,508,478 for new construction. Of course the number of houses to be newly constructed are far greater than those to be reconstructed, but, as will be seen, there is but a small difference in their comparative cost. We cannot but regard this as a remarkable showing.

It is quite possible that the new Madison Square Garden will be instrumental in introducing a change in the character of the locality in which it is situated—that is, in that part of Madison avenue fronting on the square, and in a number of adjoining streets and avenues, and the building of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company on the corner of 23d street will help to bring about the change. If the Madison Square Garden is a success—and few similar enterprises have started under more encouraging circumstances—it will certainly attract to the neighborhood a continuous stream of travel in the evening. This the old building did not do; for it was seldom used except for circuses and horse shows, and the sinister monotony of its exterior was not likely to aid in the improvement of the neighborhood. The great variety of the attractions, which more or less uninterruptedly will bring crowds of people to the new structure may well lead to the spreading of retail stores round about. Madison avenue hitherto has not succumbed to business. Near 59th street there are some few shops, and drug stores and florists are not lacking between 59th and 42d streets. Below 42d street, with one or two exceptions, the avenue has hitherto been devoted solely to residence. But it is quite possible that recently projected improvements may alter this. However that may be, the best wishes of all New Yorkers—except those who own concert halls and theatres within our limits—will doubtless attend the opening of the new Madison Square Garden on Monday night next. We have the authority of the Custom House officials for the statement that the Strauss orchestra is composed of artists, and it is not likely that the management will be negligent on their opening night in providing an entertainment which will lack anything that energy can give it. New Yorkers will then have what they have long wished for—a place in which they can hear good music at an expense that will not be too heavy, and under circumstances that will not be too constraining. If they fail to give the performances adequate support, it will not help the starting of similar enterprises in the city; for never did a place of entertainment fill before what has been so often averred to be a long-felt want. The situation, though central, is not convenient for those who depend on the elevated roads for transit; but this fact, threatening as it would be to the success of a smaller place, is not likely to hurt a kind of entertainment, which will be so well advertised and which will depend for its custom on such a large variety of people.

The present Commissioners of Rapid Transit, when they found themselves so greatly restricted by the act under which they were appointed, that the work of plan-making could not be treated on its merits from lack of time, might have resigned and then gone to work simply as citizens desiring to render the public a service by making a plan to be used as a basis for legislation. They have not done this, but have announced their intention to make such a plan as may be produced in a hurry. If, to carry out this plan, additional legislation is needed, the question may properly arise whether, instead of legalizing the hastily-made plan, it may not be better to throw it aside and pass legislation providing for the making of a homogeneous plan of which no part will be more hastily made than another. The commissioners are now, it is said, proposing to build a new elevated way. But it is generally admitted that the number of elevated ways in this city should not be increased unless such increase be absolutely necessary. If thorough investigation shall show the elevated way to be the only practicable method of construction, then it is worth while to consider the possibility of reconstructing the existing elevated roads so as to furnish the facilities needed without increasing the number of lines. This and other important questions require more time for fair consideration than is at the commissioners' disposal, under terms of the Rapid Transit Act. It may be easily believed, therefore, that any plan which they evolve in haste may at leisure be found far from desirable.

The world has just begun to cease marvelling over the enterprise and engineering skill shown in the construction of the Forth bridge. It will have another opportunity to open its eyes when the completion of the Manchester Canal will indicate what enormous natural disadvantages can be overcome by sufficient energy, directed by a far-seeing intelligence, aided by great mechanical knowledge and backed by unlimited capital. This canal is still some eighteen months from completion and it has thus far consumed two years of steady work. Although the difficulties have been enormous and the delays not infrequent, yet the anticipations of the promoters have been borne out by the progress made, and there is no reason to believe that it will not be completed on time. Consider for a moment the audacity of this scheme which contemplates making practically a seaport town out of a city situated thirty-five miles inland. Here is a community which, instead of building its docks into the water, is obliged to bring the water to the city, construct basins for receiving it, and then build the docks in addition. The most enthusiastic of those interested in the scheme hope that ultimately they can build a continuous succession of docks along the whole thirty-five miles of canal. Twelve thousand men and boys are employed on the work and the horse-power used represents the manual labor of 120,000 men per diem. Some idea of the gigantic nature of the task may be gathered from these figures. France, too is contemplating a work of almost equal magnitude. The necessity of a navigable channel between the mouth of the Seine and Paris has long been conceded; but the entanglement of the government with petty foreign wars and the fact of a large annual deficit have prevented the central authorities from assuming charge of the matter. Now, however, a syndicate has come forward which asks for a concession pure and simple, without guarantee or subvention. It proposes to enable vessels drawing 20 feet of water to sail upstream to Paris, utilizing the present course of the river from Rouen, except at two points—presumably the two sharp bends or loops near Pontoise and St. Germain—where canals would be cut through. These cuttings are to exceed the width of the Suez canal by one-third. The river itself will be considerably deepened and widened. The syndicate, of course, naturally expects to levy tolls on ships using the proposed waterway sufficient to pay interest on the cost of the work, variously estimated at $27,500,000 and $40,000,000. What will become of the undertaking it is at present impossible to predict, but it is said that a committee of the Chamber of Deputies has approved the plans. When we consider that such mighty works as these are found necessary in Europe to adapt the earth to the commercial necessities of man, and what little enterprise and outlay, comparatively, is necessary for the perfection of our facilities in this city, we may well wonder, in respect to New York, at least, how far Mr. Chauncey Depew's recent declaration that Americans are the most practical people on earth is justified. The Harlem River Improvement is picayune compared with the undertaking at Manchester, but it has been a longer time under construction and is farther from completion than the Manchester canal. Think, too, how small and simple, comparatively speaking, is the improvement of our harbors and the building of docks that will attract rather than repel commerce. Americans would do well to reflect a little more on foreign models and a little less on their own greatness.

The New World Building.

The new World building has grown to be one of the most conspicuous objects down town. It shares with its neighbors, the Tribune building and the Times building, the advantage of a visibility that is not secured in the same degree for any other edifice below Union square as for those that front the City Hall Park. But the size and shape of the World building make it stand out even more strikingly than the other tall structures that border Printing House square. The site affords an area quite ample for even an eight-story building, being about 100 feet on Park row by about 125 on Frankfort street. But a thirteen-story building is a different matter. It would be difficult to prevent such a building from looking stilted, even if it stopped with the thirteenth story and were broadened and kept down by every device at the command of the architect. Here, however, there have been no pains at all taken to keep the building down, or at any rate they have not been successful, and its height is increased by the super-addition of a dome of two apparent stories in addition to the cupola.

Frankfort street is so narrow that it is impossible to get a comprehensive view of the flank of the building, which is so violently preshortened from any point on the ground level as to consist apparently of a yellow wall with so many ranges of openings as to be confused and confusing in effect. Architecturally the building consists of the Park row front and the angle, which is rather peculiarly treated. It is this part alone that can be seen from a distance great enough to be taken in as a whole.

Architecture has this difference from any art the products of which are not useful, that it has to be judged according to conditions that may or may not be of the artist's own making. Evident misfortunes of site, of size or of material, or evident concessions to utility at the expense of the architecture can be recognized and allowed for. But in a commercial building for a private owner who can tell whether the obstacles to architectural success come from alterations of the architect or freaks of the client?

Mr. Post is entitled to every presumption, seeing not merely that he is a very popular architect, but, what is more to the purpose, that in thoughtfulness and thoroughness his recent work shows a steady advance on what preceded it. It is not betraying anybody's secret to say that the dome is the obstacle to the architectural success of the World building. That fact "jumps to the eyes," as the French have it, and it is fair to suppose that the client has imposed it. Now a dome may be precisely the noblest culmination possible to a building, but that depends both upon the building and upon the dome. In order to crown an edifice effectively the dome must be provided for in the first place by a sufficient square or polygmal substructure of its own, and in the second place the whole building must form a spreading and expansive substructure for it. There must be under a dome a heavy mass of which altitude is not the leading dimension. It is not necessary just now to search into the reasons for this. The fact will be admitted by all architects and amateurs who will recall the successful domes of the world from Agra to Washington. No architect of any sensitiveness ever gave a domical termination to a tower, and a building as tall as the new World building, even with its consi.lerable area, is virtually a tower. It might be left four square with a frowning cornice, it might be crowned with a steep roof, but it cannot without incongruity be fitted with a dome.

Nevertheless, if we assume the union of the dome with a building of these dimensions to be part of the architect's problem, there ought to be some interest in seeing how he has tried to solve it. In the World building there is not much evidence even of attempt at reconciliation or transition between the mass and lines of the building and the mass and lines of the dome. We have all heard of the carpenter who after a day's work upon a difficult job declared that there was nothing to do but "to cuss the thing and quit it." One seems to detect in the treatment of the World building evidence of this execration and abandonment. Obviously enough the thing to do, under the afflicting conditions imposed upon the designer, was to keep the building as low and as broad as might be, to dissemble to the utmost its tower-like proportions and to provide a base for the dome that should detach it and serve as a middle term between it and the building. Neither of these things have been done, at least neither of them has been effectually done. There are no continuous horizontal lines below the fifth story, and although each division is marked with a strong string course the vertical lines predominate throughout. The trite device of enhancing the scale of the parts by grouping two real stories in one apparent story lessens the number of horizontal lines available, and the vertical lines are strongly emphasized by the projection of the central part of the Park row front. The purpose of the central pavilion is to sustain a pediment that serves as a base to the dome, but in every point of view the result is unfortunate. It makes the building spindle still more and it continues the line of the dome to the ground, which is a thing especially to be avoided. Moreover, the ornament of the front is concentrated on the central pavilion, the sides being plainly treated, and this gives the architecture the effect of being a mere veneer that could be removed without impairing the stability of the building on which it has been stuck. This effect is increased by the appearance of a strip of yellow brickwork outside of and behind the rugged brown stone that seems to fortify the north corner. An attempt is made to detach the dome and give it a base by the treatment of the south corner which is rounded, with a single large opening in each stage and is stopped above the eleventh story leaving a re-entrant angle above. But this is too partial to serve its purpose. The dome remains simply dropped on a towering mass, and is as if the building had no neck. One cannot get any point of view from which the building loses this high-shouldered look, which presents to it more of a deformity as it would be in the case of a human being.

A building cannot be so ugly and incongruous in mass and be redeemed by any grace of detail, but in fact the detail is not graceful. The best thing in the building is the half-story above the main entrance, with doubled square-headed openings and termini between, but the detail even of this is rather crude and reckless. There is a certain swagger in the huge entrance, and a certain sumptuosity in the superimposed and polished columns of the pavilion. But for thoughtful and refined design, one looks everywhere in vain, and the critic finds himself forced to follow the example of the designer—to "cuss the thing and quit it."

In another column will be found a letter upon immigration. Underneath it we have placed a few remarks that seem to be called for specially, but there are a few other facts which the reader should not lose sight of. The abnormal representation of foreign born in our criminal and dependent classes furnishes strong evidence of the undesirable character of the immigration of later years. In the State of New York the report of the Secretary of State for 1887 shows that there were in the county poor-houses 9,288 foreign born paupers and 9,172 native paupers, and in the city alms-houses there were 34,167 foreign born and 18,001 native paupers—a total of 43,455 foreign born paupers against 27,173 native born, or about 160 of the former to 100 of the latter, while the proportion of foreign born to native inhabitants in the State in 1880 was as 31 2-10 to 100. Inquiry into emigration from foreign ports discloses facts which explain, in a measure at least, the cause of this abnormal representation. A special committee of one of the charitable societies of this city has found that an artificial stimulus to emigration of undesirable persons from foreign ports to ours is given, first, through governmental authority. The poor-law guardians in England have had since 1834 the right to use money from the rates for the purpose of assisting paupers to emigrate, and exercise that right, as evidenced in the fact that in the period 1851 to 1886 40,154 persons were thus assisted. In Ireland the Land Commission was authorized in 1881 to advance to poor-law guardians, by way of a loan, money to assist emigration. Later acts permit similar grants. The second artificial stimulus is from charitable societies in Europe. The Luke Committee, for instance, assisted over eight thousand persons to emigrate from Ireland in 1882. Prisoners' Aid Societies have been known to assist convicts to emigrate. The third and one of the most potent influences in bringing poor emigrants to this country is the activity of steamship companies. One company, it is stated on authority, has 3,500 agents in Europe and 3,400 in this country, while another has 2,500 agents in this country using their efforts to promote emigration by persuading immigrants to send for their friends. Steamship companies reduce the fare, and railroad companies on this side enter into contract with the steamship companies for the purpose of getting their traffic. No regard is had to the fitness of the immigrant to become a member of our community, and the result is a great mass of men, ignorant, poor, and perhaps depraved, are thrust upon the country. In great part the support of these immigrants falls upon the taxpayer. It is clear, then, that some measure should be taken to remedy our present immigration laws wherein they are seen defective.

Kings County Real Estate.

The records for Kings County do not make so good a showing as those of New York. In the first five months of 1889 there were 8,429 conveyances recorded, involving $41,748,419. In 1890 this had decreased to 8,378 in number, involving $39,468,262—a small, but significant falling off. Furthermore the increase in the number of mortgages, slight as it is, shows that the market is not in a particulary strong condition. The weakness may be remarked in the building filings, which evidence a decrease both in number and in cost.

Our Letter Bag—Shall We Restrict Immigration?

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

I am delighted to find your paper directly charging the people with responsibility for the corrupt condition of political life in this country. From much that has been said on the subject in the press and the pulpit one might infer that, like Samson, we were in the hands of the Philistines, that the politicians had overpowered us by force, and instead of being a free people we were like the Egyptians under the Shepherd Kings or the Britons in the early days of the Norman dominion. Our rulers, however, have not been thrust upon us from without; they are our own selection, our veritable representatives. They spring from the common soil, and their careers reflect the corporate rapacity, public vulgarity and legal recklessness of the times.

My object in writing, however, is not to dish up to you your own remarks; but to carry a step further the truth of the propositions you have been insisting upon. If the defects of public life spring from defects in the national character, what is the source of these latter defects? As a people we have not always had to bear the reproach of an utterly common and sordid public life. We began our career in the "fear of God;" and distinction and highmindedness marked the early days of our national existence. Since then our increase in numbers has been accompanied by a deterioration of public morals, until to-day the serious among us are alarmed. We are in the condition of Rome during the time of Cæsar.

Now, I am not a Know-nothing. I don't believe Americans are the salt of the earth or the superiors of the rest of mankind, mentally or morally; but I am firmly convinced that it is a free, unrestricted immigration that is deteriorating the national character. This country has become the "dumping ground" of Europe. Its "failures" flock here by the thousands—mechanics and farmers who are unable to hold a place or make headway in their native countries. It is sometimes urged that inasmuch as a resolute effort and a more or less clear perception of conditions is involved in quitting the old world for the new, an immigrant must be a person of considerable force of will and intelligence. This contention would be worth more than it is if it were not for the "enterprise" of steamship agents and the fact that the stream of emigration is so strong that it carries away forcibly perhaps ninety-nine persons for every one who deliberately commits himself to it. The character of the immigrants to this country need not be the subject of conjecture with anyone. To decide the matter it is necessary to spend only a few hours on almost any day at Castle Garden. The observer will soon reach a conclusion. Great, indeed, will be his faith in "free instituoshions" if he continues to believe in their power to transmute the unwashed, untutored mass into clean, intelligent citizenship. We often boast of the absorbtive quality of American civilization. That is just the point. Our civilization is marvellously absorb.ive; does so readily take into itself whatever is brought into contact with it; is so little selective and exclusive that it is necessary to guard against the intrusion of inferior elements through immigration.

Moreover, in looking at this question, people are so prone to forget to consider the effect inevitably wrought in the individual by a change in his social environment. The unintelligence of the Russian peasant, for instance, is a very different thing in Moscow from what it would be in New York. In Moscow this characteristic has created restrictive surroundings for itself which do not exist in New York. In this country ignorance and a coarse nature exhibit themselves positively, and that is why the lower class of foreigners in this country, men who, when they first landed were dully obsequious, become so bumptious and vulgarly obtrusive.

I have faith in American institutions. But do not tax them beyond their strength. Give them time to be formative. Give them something to do beyond merely absorbing the refuse of Europe. Let the ferment of what is better in us have time to leaven the mass. It would be well, I think, if immigration were interdicted for the next quarter of a century; but if this be too radical for a world that prefers to temporize with its difficulties, let us impose upon immigration a property and education qualification. What does THE RECORD AND GUIDE say to this?

BOSTON, Mass. B. LANGLEY.

[That the present influx of an undesirable class of immigrants is a great menace to many of our institutions; a sore trial to the satisfactory working of the principle of universal suffrage; the cause of many of the ills in our municipal policy, and an influence that is constantly leveling the high standard of living that has prevailed among our working men, no fair-minded man can doubt. That the matter has become a subject for grave anxiety among those who have the interests of the country at heart is sufficiently shown by the constant proposals that are made for some change in our immigration laws; and the above letter is a sample of the kind which often appears in the daily newspapers. To read our correspondent's letter, however, one would think that the matter was one which could be settled with the greatest ease; and that there is no more doubt as to the immediate advisability of shutting our doors to foreigners than there is as to the prevailing opinion that two and two make four. As a matter of fact, the question has not yet been decided with mathematical certainty; and as this is not the place for such prolonged discussion as would warrant any conclusive statement, we will simply make a few general assertions that seem to be justified by the evidence.

(1) If it be possible to exclude immigrants, who are assisted in their passage to this country either by foreign governments, foreign societies and steamship companies, it should without doubt be done.

(2) Absolute exclusion such as Mr. Langley proposes would be folly unspeakable.

(3) That the immigrant should not be allowed to take out naturalization papers until a period far longer than that which is at present necessary had elapsed.

(4) The Contract Labor law should be immediately repealed, as it tends to keep out a good class of workingmen, who will not come unless sure of subsistence.—ED.]

Jersey City News.

The building movement this summer promises to be active. Real estate transactions are slowing off somewhat, as is usual toward the end of spring.

New Jersey, for the first time in the history of the State, if Building Inspector Clarke is correct, will soon be able to boast of a seven-story attic and basement building. It is to be an apartment house with modern improvements, and will be erected for Dr. Walter Rae on Jersey avenue, between York and Bright streets. It will be 34x74 in size, and will contain an elevator, etc. There will be two suites of apartments per floor, exclusive of janitor's quarters in the basement. E. L. Giele is the architect. A reference to this improvement appeared in THE RECORD AND GUIDE over a month ago.

A new Catholic school is to be built at Greenville. It will be four stories high, of brick, and will cost $18,000. It will be located on Linden avenue and Old Bergen road.

Five three-story brick flats, 20x56, will be built by Robert Van Cliff on the corner of Summit avenue and Bowers street, from plans by Geo. L.

Bettcher. They will each be 20x56 in size, and will have buff brick fronts, with iron bay windows. They will cost about $28,000.

The New Jersey Car Spring and Rubber Company are about to add one story and make other alterations to their factory, 240x35 in size, on Railroad avenue and Brunswick street. G. W. La Baw is the architect.

R. W. Sailer is preparing plans for the following new buildings: A three-story flat, 30x54, with improvements, to be built on Pavonia avenue, near Brunswick street, for Mr. Reed, to cost $6,500; one on 9th street, near Brunswick street, 25x54, for Patrick Maccabe, to cost $4,500; one on Walker avenue, near Van Cliff street, 25x50, for M. Hussey, to cost $4,000, and one on 3d street, between Cole and Monmouth streets. Also for a two-story and basement dwelling, to be built on Magnolia avenue, near Baldwin avenue, for Thos. Hughes, to cost $4,000.

The North Baptist Church will build a memorial chapel adjoining their present place of worship on Jersey and 5th streets. It will be of brick and stone and will cost $5,000. Sketches are being prepared by G. L. Bettcher. The same architect is drawing plans for the following: A three-story and cellar frame house and barn, 22x40, to be built on Wylie street, near Tonnelle avenue, for Thos. S. Vile, to cost $4,000, and one on 8th street, near Monmouth street, for J. Crilly, to cost $4,000; a two-story and attic frame dwelling, 24x42, to be built on Garrison avenue, near Sipp avenue, for Miss M. Van Winkle, to cost $6,500; a three-and-a-half-story brick and brown stone front flat on Jersey avenue, near 5th street, for Geo. Stevens, to cost $7,200, and a five-story tenement, 26x70, to be built on 9th street, near Grove street, for Henry Ottersen at a cost of $13,000.

The Finance Commissioners on Wednesday evening made a special appropriation of $15,000, on the petition of the Board of Education, for the repair of public schools. The President of the Board of Education, who appeared before the Commissioners, stated that many of the schools were in a deplorable condition, and that some of them are in a sanitary condition dangerous to health. If that is so it may be asked why the Health Officer and the Board allow these schools to be used while they are in such a condition.

The Finance Commissioners have also ordered a special appropriation of $13,050, on the request of the Street and Water Commissioners, for street cleaning purposes. This also is much needed, for Jersey City, in one or two of its main thoroughfares, is almost in as bad condition, at times, as parts of Broadway, New York.

The number of new buildings projected and their estimated cost show a falling off compared with the corresponding month of the two preceding years. The figures are as follows:

	1888.	1889.	1890.
Number, May.....	107	132	101
Estimated cost.....	$412,332	$426,402	$387,407

The following is a list of the principal plans filed with the Building Inspector this month up to the closing hour Thursday: One 3-sty fr tenem't, 30x56, on Manning av, Patrick Gallagher, cost $4,800; one 5-sty brk tenem't, 25x36, Bay st, W. Dohrman, $9,000; one 2-sty fr dwg, 22x40, No. 134 Manhattan av, Magdalena Grece, $2,850; one 2-sty tenem't, 25x56, No. 108 New York av, Alfred S. Feiszt, $4,000; one 2-sty fr dwg, 20x38, No. 62 Reservoir av, Jas. Tidcombe, $3,000; six 2-sty fr dwgs, 16x40, Cubberly pl, J. D. Condict, $9,000; four 2½-sty, 15x36, Sipp av, J. D. Condict, $6,600; one 3-sty fr tenem't, 25x56, Zabriskie st, M. E. Speirs, $5,300; a 2½-sty fr dwg, 22x36, No. 51 Linden av, E. A. Garthwaite, $4,069.

The Transit Problem in the City of New York.

By Saml. Buel, jr., C. E.

[CONCLUDED.]

AN OUTLINE OF A TECHNICAL PLAN, WITH AN APPRECIATION OF THE MORE IMPORTANT QUESTIONS TO BE SETTLED IN TREATING THE WHOLE SUBJECT ON ITS MERITS.

It is generally believed by engineers that a survey should be the basis of a design for a railway. The framers of the Rapid Transit Act of 1875 thought otherwise, and established a bad precedent by requiring that the route for any railway designed under this act should be specified within sixty days from the date when the commissioners organize for the purpose of making the plan. A similar requirement has been embodied in every transit bill considered by the Legislature during recent years, and is a hampering condition which would have prevented the making of a really adequate plan under the provisions of any one of these bills. An efficient transit bill would be one providing for the appointment of commissioners to prepare a technical plan, a financial plan, and bills of the enabling legislation needed; and allowing as time in which to do this work the interval between one legislative session and another. And the commissioners serving under such an act should be required to have the technical part of the plan made by a board of engineers who are experts in railway science. But a plan could be made without any legislation at all. Thus, in the spring or summer, after an adjournment of the Legislature, a number of public spirited citizens might employ, say, three distinguished railway engineers, under instruction to report the best plan which they can evolve from their own surveys and investigations, and suggestions received from every available source whatever. The justification, in public estimation, of the voluntary assumption by these good citizens of the work of plan-making would be found in the fact that they bear the whole cost, and appoint an engineering board of high character. The merit of the plan produced by the engineers, and the prestige incident to this method of treating the subject, would insure the plan a strong popular support; sufficiently so, perhaps, that it might be an easy matter to obtain any enabling legislation needed, even if it be necessary to repeal the Rapid Transit Act of 1875, and start transit legislation anew. Thus might the transit question be treated on its merits.

When the financial part of the plan comes to be considered, New York by turning its attention to affairs at the antipodes might, possibly, learn a useful lesson. In the colony of Victoria, whose capital is the prosperous and highly civilized city of Melbourne, the railways and other industries of the kind in which no one can engage without concessions from the people, are owned by the people and operated for their benefit, with the effect that the profit from these industries supplies a large part of all the revenue needed for the public expenditures. If public hearings were held on the subject, it might, perhaps, be shown that the tax rate would be lowered by having the City of New York borrow the money, and build the new transit system needed. So far as operating the roads is concerned, no great ingenuity is required in devising a plan to take the civil service of the railways out of politics, and make the service as efficient as that of the fire department. It may, indeed, be the case that the receipts from a substantial four-track road, as long as the city, although sufficient to meet the maintenance and running accounts, and fixed charges, and provide something of a sinking fund, will leave the paying of dividends so far in the future that capitalists will not build the road. In this event, it might still happen that the favorable effect of the transit system in land values would render it remunerative for the city to undertake the work, just as it paid the city to construct Central Park.

So great is the importance to the community of getting the rapid transit roads out of sight and on the solid ground that, to attain these ends, hardly any cost of construction, not absolutely wasteful, can be regarded as prohibitory. But if, for any reason, a permanent way be found impracticable it might produce an efficient transit system to retain all that part of the specification relating to cross-town lines, location and dimensions of station platforms, and methods of operation; and then to tear away the greater part of the existing elevated roads, and having changed the location where corners are turned, by purchasing such right of way as will enable the taking out of all sharp curvature, to replace these roads with a four-track structure, 31 miles long, and strong enough to carry the given trains at the required speed. Possibly, by using deck spans, three to the block, with iron cross ties, and intertrack platforms, the obstructions of the streets, and interference with light and air, might be even less than is the case with much of the present two-track structure. The reconstructed east side line being in 3d avenue, the cross-town feeders would render possible the abandonment of the Second Avenue Elevated road, and if the new west side line were built in 8th avenue the Ninth Avenue road could also be abandoned. The Sixth Avenue elevated way might then continue operating to 59th street; but this road could not be connected with the new lines, without cutting down their capacity and speed; and a distinct car-house should, therefore, be provided. Trains cannot, probably, follow each other at intervals of a minute or a minute and a half, make nine stops, and run the whole length of the city in half an hour, except on an unbroken track. A drawbridge would mean confusion. The new lines should, therefore, cross the Harlem River in tunnels, or at a height over all.

It might have lessened the first cost of the elevated roads, and certainly would have increased their profits had they been so designed that all the platforms were intertrack; and, doubtless, such a method of construction might have been made less obstructive and more pleasing to the eye than the structures adopted have proved to be. If, in addition, self-sustaining cross-town feeders had been provided and the eight elevated tracks located on two routes instead of four, a further economy in operating expenses would have resulted, and the system have been made more satisfactory to the public than they have found it, with four slow two-track lines without the cross-town roads. On the subject of train speed the designers of the elevated roads seem to have considered that neither the risk of having their business drawn away at some future time by faster roads, nor the wish of the public to be carried rapidly, was a sufficient reason for any considerable expenditure to secure good alignment, build a solid structure or provide adequate motive power, although these subjects were freely discussed in various engineering papers published during the year previous to the organization of the elevated roads, and were brought to the attention of the commission by whom the building of the roads was authorized. Railway science, had it been called upon, would have been found old enough when the elevated roads were designed to point out that, although rapid transit, economical operation and financial stability were possible the transit in the system then proposed must be slow, the method of operation wasteful and the future of the roads uncertain. To set up now any plea to protect the elevated roads from competition would be like saying that a man who saves money in building a hotel, by omitting to provide ordinary conveniences, has anyone but himself to blame if a well-arranged hostelry is built near him and takes away some of his guests. Is it fitting, indeed, if a badly designed hotel or railroad is built that the public must, therefore, be debarred from ever obtaining one satisfactory to them?

If the designers of the elevated railway system believed high speed to be expensive, and, therefore, not worth increasing their construction account to attain, they may have been mistaken. It is more costly, per train, to run trains fast than slow; but the higher the speed the fewer will be the number of trains in use, on any given schedule of time. Ten trains on a track the length of the city would give each station a train every three minutes, if the run is made in half an hour. If the run consumes an hour there must be 20 trains. On the suggested 31 miles of four-track road, at the given speeds there would be 240 trains in service, when 40 trains an hour stop at every platform on each track. Some 220 trains would be needed to maintain the same interval, simultaneously, on all the present 11 miles an-hour elevated roads; although they have only 60 miles, more or less, of single track; and the proposed new railways, 124. By increasing the speed of the elevated roads to 15½ miles an hour, the seating capacity which now requires the service of 220 trains to furnish, could be furnished by 155 trains. The annual report of the elevated roads for the year ending September 30, 1888, says that they ran 7,584,572 train miles, and carried 171,529,789 passengers.* Presumably the trains offered some 200 million seats, on the supposition that each seat was available for the use of only one passenger per trip, up or down, averaging less than 8 miles. It is commonly believed that the engine crews worked 9 hours a day. If so, their daily shift was 99, say 100, miles; and the average number of crews $\frac{7,584,572}{100 \times 365} = 208$. But the report says that the wages of engineers and firemen amounted to $719,344.65. Estimating the daily wages of an engineer and a fireman at $5.50, or $2,007.50 a year, the number of crews would be $\frac{719,344.65}{2,007.50} = 358$. In a year the difference between the wages of 208 and 358 crews is $300,000. "There is something rotten in Denmark!" But if it cannot be told from the report of the elevated roads, whether they employ 200 or twice 200 engine crews to run 8 million miles a year, it can, at least, be said that the proposed new roads, by reason of their greater speed, could run annually 21 million train miles with 350 crews working 8 hours daily, and offer 500 million seats for whole trips of 15½ miles. If the average speed of the local trains were 11 miles an hour, instead of 15½, and of the fast trains 22 miles an hour, instead of 31, 460 crews, and 340, instead of 240 trains, would be needed. In counting up the cost, it rather seems, indeed, that likely more is gained than lost, if all trains run at tip top speed.

North New York.

RECENT IMPORTANT SALES—DOWN-TOWN BUYERS INVESTING—FEW LARGE PARCELS REMAINING ON THE MARKET.

For many years before the advent of the Suburban Rapid Transit Road a vast amount of the territory in the 23d and 24th Wards was held in large parcels by owners in whose possession these properties had been, in many instances, for generations. This was notably so in the case of the Fox and other estates. When the Suburban road made its appearance a great boom struck these hitherto neglected properties. It became at once a question with sellers not "how much an acre is my land worth?" but "how much a lot can I sell it for?" Thus surveyors were set at work, and the acres were gradually parcelled off into city lots. Streets were opened, gas and water mains laid, and property doubled, trebled, and even quadrupled in value within a few years. Owners of several large tracts, under the advice of brokers and others, decided to offer them at auction. They did so, with "fear and trembling," not knowing the result of such a venture. But the successes which attended these sales were a revelation. The result was that scores of other large owners followed suit, and buyers have swallowed up all the parcels and are voraciously looking for more. There are comparatively few left, however, in the immediate line of improvement.

There appears to have been an unusually large influx of newcomers to the upper sections of the city recently. These people came both to rent houses and to buy land on which to build their homes. They are recruits from the more southerly wards of the city, who have at last made up their minds, after struggling for years with tenement house annoyances and higher rents than they could afford, to come up to the green fields and the country air, where they can get very much better living accommodations at a considerably lower figure, and where they can buy lots on which to build for a few hundred dollars, which could not be purchased for as many thousands in the lower wards of the city. Hence these people come to the 23d and 24th Wards from necessity and convenience, and their number is swelling daily, just as the number of old homes in the thickly crowded down-town districts are being pushed aside to make way for the march of business. There is only one outlet in New York City for this class of our citizens. It is in a northward direction, owing to the geographical formation of Manhattan Island. Hence, the march of improvement is more and more to the north, and Tremont, Fordham and other places now in the city boundaries are becoming rapidly populated. Mount Vernon, Yonkers and other suburban places are just now also feeling the force of this movement stronger than ever. And events are helping this growth northward, for the sinking of the tracks on the Harlem Road is giving quicker transit to the territory north of Manhattan Island, and in thus enabling people to get to and from their homes more quickly, has to some extent broken down the barrier which delayed the march of improvement. The fact that the Hudson Road are again running "dolly varden" trains to and from 30th street, North River, and that the Port Morris branch of the Harlem Road is sinking its tracks—both these circumstances are factors in the development of the eastern and western sections of the 23d and 24th Wards that are beginning to tell. Besides, the Suburban Road will have extended their line up to Tremont, and probably Fordham, before the end of this year. All this is bound to affect real estate, and is affecting it advantageously.

The movement in vacant property in both wards has been unusually pronounced during the past few months. It is quite clear that a combination of forces are at work to develop activity in certain sections of these wards. The sections most affected are those near stations on the line of roads which have quick access to the lower parts of the city. By these the Harlem and New York & Northern Roads are especially meant. The sinking of the tracks on the Harlem Road, and the creation, in consequence, of a really first-class rapid transit road in New York City, north of the Grand Central Depot, is telling with great force upon every section through which that road runs. This has been the secret of the good prices obtained for Bedford Park property, which, notwithstanding its inherent value for residence purposes, will benefit immensely by the sinking of the tracks. The property at Fordham Heights, which has for several generations been held in close hands by a few families, is now made extremely accessible to the City Hall and Wall street, via the New York & Northern Road, and the "L" road express trains connecting with that road. This is the explanation of the good prices secured at the Perot estate sale, and it is very certain that the old estates on those historic heights will have to give way very soon to the popular demand, and that the tempting offers which they will receive will result in their disposing of their properties, which will then be improved with villas and cottages, within the next five or ten years. Their day, after generations of waiting, has come at last.

The rapid growth of the 23d and 24th Wards during the last five years is shown in the statistics. In 1885 the number of buildings erected was 582, as compared with 839 last year. The cost in 1885 was less than $2,000,000, while in 1889 nearly $5,000,000 was spent in new buildings. The amount of conveyances in the former year was $4,787,848, while last year it was $11,535,266. The assessed valuation of the two wards in 1885 was $28,831,174; this year it is $44,548, 914. This tells the story stronger than words. The next five or six years bids fair to show a further great increase in the figures, as the tide of population is tending more and more northward. It is an interesting fact that a large number of the buyers of lots in North New York are people who pay cash down on the delivery of the deed. James L. Wells is responsible for the statement that in all the auction sales of properties held by him in the 23d and 24th Wards, the proportion of people who do not take advantage of the liberal terms of mortgage are about 50 per cent. of the total number of purchasers. These are mostly clerks and small business men, and quite a number are ladies. Those who pay cash down generally build, and it would thus appear that quite a number of improvements are destined to be made on the properties sold at auction.

WHO THE BUYERS AT AUCTION ARE.

It may be interesting to glance at the character of the buyers at the most recent sales of North New York properties held at auction. With this object the addresses of the buyers have been ferreted out by THE RECORD AND GUIDE, and from these it appears that the majority of the lots sold were purchased, not by parties living near the properties, but by persons residing anywhere between Wall street and 125th street. Let us take a glance at the properties sold, the prices obtained and the addresses of the purchasers.

THE HENRY STONEY ESTATE.

Probably one of the most successful as well as interesting of these sales was that of the above estate, which took place on the ground on Decoration Day. It comprised a residence, cottage and 112 lots, situated on Tremont, Prospect and Marmion avenues, and Fairmount and Elsmere places, Tremont, in the 24th Ward. There were forty-four buyers in all, and the amount realized for the 110 lots sold (two being reserved) was $109,595, an average of nearly $1,000 each. The addresses of some of the buyers show that they reside or do business on the following streets and avenues: 7th, 21st, 56th, 60th, 70th, 119th, 125th, 177th, Sheriff, Broad and Grand streets, and 2d, 3d and Lexington avenues. Among the buyers was the cashier of the 12th Ward Bank; Assessor Bracken; a young down-town lawyer and many tradesmen. One buyer hails from Atlantic street, Brooklyn. Miss Agnes K. Murphy, who was partly in charge of the sale, bought some lots and sold them on the spot at an advance. The best price obtained was for a lot on the southeast corner of Tremont and Marmion avenues, about 31x100 in size, which brought $1,900; the southwest corner, 25x100, sald for $1,500. Four corners on Marmion avenue and Elsmere place sold at $1,450, $1,375, $1,320, and $1,300. Inside lots on Tremont avenue sold at $1,175 to $1,325 each; on Elsmere place at $875 to $925; on Fairmount place at $800 to $840 on the north side, and $400 to $795 on the south side, the latter being short lots of more or less depth. A house and plot, about 50x147 in size, on the southeast corner of Prospect avenue and Elsmere place, sold for $5,000, while a lot, 33.8x95.5x42.5x98.1, on the southeast corner of Marmion avenue and Fairmount place, sold for $1,425, the three opposite corners going for $1,050, $1,040, and $1,270, the first being 27.7x90.4x19.7x92.1 in size; the second 31.7x100, and the third 25x100. The sale was very largely attended, and the prices were considered very good.

THE PEROT ESTATE.

This sale took place last Saturday on the ground, and comprised 89 lots situated on Sedgwick avenue and Boston road, on the historic heights of Kingsbridge, 24th Ward. The view is superb, and embraces the Palisades, the Hudson, and the territory west of the Harlem. It is restricted against nuisances and the sale of intoxicating liquors. During the Revolution this estate was the camp of Col. Thomas' regiment. It was afterward occupied by British and Hessian troops. The ruins of the "old powder magazine," built on this property during the Revolution, were recently removed in the opening and grading of Perot street. The Boston Post road, which runs in front of the property, was opened in 1671, and was the early colonial road between New York and New England.

The lots offered on Saturday were all sold. There were twenty-nine buyers in all, and the amount realized was $94,026. The purchasers in this case were again residents and business men from Manhattan Island to a large extent. They hail from Broadway, Gramercy Park, the Astor House, the Bowery, Greene, Fulton, Mercer, Nassau, Grand, Charlton, 84th, 104th and 127th streets, and 3d, 8th, Lenox and Madison avenues. Mrs. Mary F. Dodge, of Lenox avenue, was a large buyer. One purchaser was from Ghent, N. Y.—that is the addresss given by Auctioneer Wells. Among the buyers were Engineer Webster, of the Department of Public Works; Benj. F. Fairchild, Benjamin P. and Samuel W. Fairchild, of Fairchild Bros. & Foster and four brothers named Chestnut, which created some merriment. The lot which sold highest was the northeast corner of Boston avenue and Perot street. It is a fraction less than a full-sized city lot and brought $1,650; the southeast corner brought $1,425. A lot on the southwest corner of Sedgwick avenue and Perot street, 25x99 in size, brought $1,600, and the same price was realized for the northwest corner, which is about the same dimension. Inside lots on Boston avenue (which is 60 feet wide) ranging from 65 to 135 feet deep and about 25 feet in width, brought from $610 to $1,355 each; on Sedgwick avenue (which is 80 feet wide) from $625 to $1,390 each, the latter averaging from about 64 to 153 feet in depth. while five lots on Perot street (which is 60 feet wide), about 21x98 in size, brought from $1,250 to $1,510 each. The property is surrounded and adjoined by the residences of Samuel W. Fairchild, W. S. Dunn, Mrs. H. B. Claflin, and others well known in New York City. The sale was very successful.

THE BEDFORD PARK PROPERTY.

A recent auction sale, where the prices realized were higher than anticipated, was that of 141 lots at Bedford Park, in the 24th Ward. The property was sold by order of the Twenty-fourth Ward Real Estate Association and the amount realized was $120,150, there being fifty-five buyers. The purchasers in the vast majority of cases also hailed from south of the Harlem. Their addresses, as ascertained, are as follows: Wall, Greene, Henry, Beekman, Gold, Church, Murray, Grand, 21st, 23d, 39th, 41st, 47th, 52d, 53d, 66th, 71st, 83d, 87th, 111th, 116th and 132d streets, Broadway, Avenue A, 3d, Lexington, 6th, 7th and 8th avenues. Among the buyers was W. C. Bellows, assistant stage manager at the Lyceum Theatre. Another buyer was from Jersey City. The best price obtained was for a lot on the corner of the Boulevard (100 feet wide) and Valentine avenue, size 35x100, which brought $1,775. A corner on the Boulevard and Briggs avenue, same size, brought $1,725. Other corners on the Boulevard brought $1,470, $1,525, $1,325, $1,875 and $1,760, the last for a plot 40.7x100x49.9x100.4 on the corner of Anthony avenue. Inside lots on the Boulevard realized from $875 to $1,100 each, according to depth; on Valentine avenue from $720 to $825; on Briggs avenue from $730 to $750, and on Bainbridge avenue from $700 to $800. The prices in many cases were much larger than the association expected to realize. It is said that one corner brought $1,725 when it was expected to bring but $1,500, while another brought $1,775 which was expected to sell for $1,250.

THE ZBOROWSKI SALE.

Another sale which was a marked success was that of a portion of the Zborowski estate in the 23d and 24th Wards, situated on Webster, Crestline and Brook avenues, and fronting on Claremont Park. The sale took place at the Real Estate Exchange on the 20th ult. There were twelve buyers, and 121 lots were sold for a total of $82,500. The prices realized were from $585 to $1,250, the lots averaging from about 23.9x83 to about 26x150. A corner plot, in pyramid shape, fronting the park, at the junction of Crestline and Webster avenues, containing about five and a-half city lots, was not offered. Among the buyers was C. H. Stearns, of the Madison Avenue Hotel, Judge Patterson, a Brooklyn lady, and J. Romaine Brown, the latter securing eighteen lots.

A SALE ADJOINING BEDFORD PARK.

On Monday last, the 9th inst., an auction sale of vacant property took place adjoining Bedford Park and fronting on Mosholu Parkway. It comprised 109 lots and 6 villa sites, about 138 lots in all. The total sum realized was $88,855.40. The villa plots, which contained from about five and a-half to six city lots each, sold at from $540 to $775 per lot. These sites front immediately on Mosholu Parkway, which is to be laid out in carriage roads, equestrian roads and footwalks, and which connects with Bronx and Van Courtlandt Parks. Other lots adjoining these properties, on the line of the Jerome Park branch railroad, brought from $595 to $725 each, the latter being nearest to the Bedford Park station. Lots fronting on the Harlem Road brought from $400 to $455 each, while other lots brought from $510 to $795 each, the last price being paid for the southeast corner of Webster avenue and Tower place, 25x110 in size. The buyers, as in the other sales, were largely from down town. Their addresses show that they hail from upper and lower Broadway, Greene, Clark, Cortlandt, 12th, 13th, 20th, 23d, 38th, 52d, 119th and 138th streets, Gramercy Park, and South 5th, 3d, 6th and 7th avenues. One buyer was from Bramhall avenue, Jersey City Heights.

Speaking of the above sale someone who has resided in the upper wards for many years made the statement, published in a daily paper, that the lots were selling too high. This statement was shown to a well-known expert, who said: "The man who said that must be a Rip Van Winkle. Does he know that the City of New York has taken 2,000 acres of land out of the market in these wards, and converted it into park lands. Does he know that the population north of the Harlem River is nearly 100,000, which is larger than that of any Southern city except New Orleans. Does he know that about $5,000,000 has been spent in public improvements in the last ten years; that not far from $30,000,000 has been invested in new buildings during that time, and that the assessed valuation of real estate has increased from $30,000,000 in 1880 to nearly $45,000,000 in 1890? The lots will be cheap at double their price in a few years."

WHAT SOME EXPERTS SAY.

Hugh N. Camp said: "I think that property in the upper wards is bound to improve in value. The means of communication to certain parts of the 23d and 24th Wards are quite good. I live on Fordham Heights, and manage to get home from Rector street in fifty minutes, via the "L" road express to 155th street and the New York & Northern Road beyond."

"Are you going to improve the 10¼ acres which you have purchased with Mr. A. B. Claflin on Sedgwick avenue and Fordham and Kingsbridge roads?" asked the writer.

"Yes; we will commence to cut up the property into villa sites directly we get our surveys ready. We will spend some $10,000 in opening roads and other improvements, and will then offer the sites in plots of from four to eight lots. We shall also restrict the property against nuisances and stables. We will turn it into a park, to be named later on."

Richard V. Harnett said: "There is plenty of room for a further advance in the value of property in the 23d and 24th Wards. Should there be a rapid transit road built to connect these wards with the lower part of the city no one realizes what a great increase in values would follow. The improvements, thus far, have been along the line of the Suburban "L" road, and the same improvement will follow any rapid transit road which may be built.

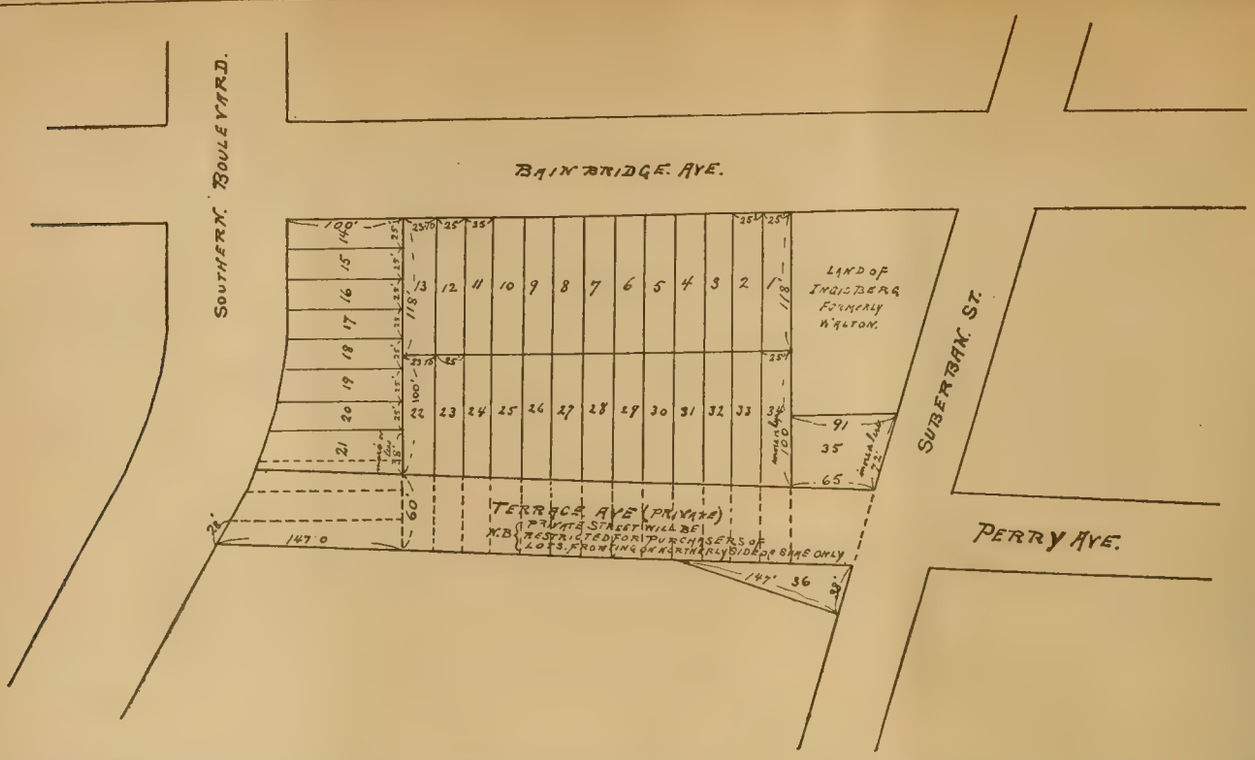
James L. Wells, said: "There are very few large parcels now for sale privately on the line of the Suburban road. There have been a number of sales of such parcels privately, as well as at auction this year. Are these parcels more numerous than those sold at public auction? Well, I don't think so. Yes, prices of lots I have sold from the stand have all been satisfactory to the sellers, and I have sold between $300,000 and $400,000 worth of vacant property at auction since May 12th. I think property is likely to increase in value in the upper wards. The sinking of the tracks of the New York Central Road will help all property. The Port Morris branch of the Harlem Railroad are sinking their tracks, and that may explain the large purchases of property by a syndicate, recently, on the line of their road and on the water front nearby. The "dolly varden" trains on the Central Road, running from 30th street to Kingsbridge, will help property all the way up to Spuyten Duyvil."

J. T. Stearns said: "The sinking of the tracks on the Harlem Road, as well as on the branch of that road from Melrose to Port Morris, is helping to develop the territory along the line of those tracks. There has been a large influx of people to the 23d and 24th Wards during the last two years. The stream of newcomers has been a steady one, and they are people who find it necessary to go somewhere where they can live more comfortably and cheaply than down town, and where they can buy their lots and build at so much less cost."

An Important Sale of Real Estate.

[COMMUNICATED.]

An excellent opportunity to acquire some desirable property will be offered to investors and homeseekers on Thursday next, the 19th inst. The property in question is delineated in the accompanying diagram. It is situated in Bedford Park, and the sale will be held at noon on the Real Estate Exchange by Richard V. Harnett & Co.



So much for preliminaries. It should not be necessary to say a word about the character of Bedford Park, for it should be thoroughly well known to everybody, but the fact is few persons know anything of the results of the wonderful activity in suburban real estate within recent years, of which Bedford Park is a conspicuous creation, and still fewer are acquainted even by hearsay of the natural beauties and advantages of the great upper section of New York City of which Bedford Park is part.

Its Situation.—The park is situated within eighteen minutes' ride of the Grand Central Depot, or say forty-five minutes of the City Hall. It is on the Harlem Road, which it will be remembered has been spending a very large sum in sinking and ballasting its tracks with stone, and, in short, bettering and developing its local service, so that now it is the only transportation system in New York City that deserves to be called rapid transit.

A Few Facts.—Bedford Park is separated only by the railroad track from Bronx Park, and it is within a short distance of Van Courtlandt Park. It was established by an association of capitalists, who in selecting and developing the place have left nothing undone to give it a first-class residential character. The streets and avenues are broad, lined with trees, and in first-class condition. The sidewalks are flagged. As far as possible the natural beauties of the place have been preserved. Property is wisely restricted. A pretty station has been built adjoining a small public park.

Growth and the Value of Land.—There is little wonder, then, that the growth of Bedford Park has been rapid. An excellent class of people have been attracted there and the improvements made have been in most cases attractive and costly. In view of the fact that it is within the limits of New York City and on the direct line of improvement, it is only what anyone would expect, that property there is steadily advancing and is among the best investments that can be made in suburban real estate. This week more than one hundred lots were sold at auction on the Real Estate Exchange and brought excellent prices. The demand was strong.

The Property for Sale.—The property to be sold on Thursday, however, is beyond doubt the finest in the park. It is a table-land almost isolated from other property by surrounding streets. It overlooks Bronx Park and the surrounding country. It is within a few hundred yards of the depot. It is approached from the public thoroughfare by a private road, restricted for the use of property-owners. It is in the very centre of the costly improvements. It cannot be overlooked nor can the view be intercepted. It is emphatically the choicest spot in one of the choicest suburbs of New York. X. E. Personal.

It is said that James L. Wells may be a candidate for the new office of Street Opening Commissioner of the Annexed District. Mr. Wells would make an excellent official for that position, as few men know more than he does of the 23d and 24th Wards and the improvements needed to increase the residential attractions of the district.

Mayer Kahn starts for Europe next week.

Joseph H. McGuire, a son of ex-Judge Joseph McGuire, of this city, is a young architect who bids fair to become known. He was graduated from the Metropolitan School of Arts, where he took first prize two years, and then went direct to Paris, where he entered the famous Ecole des Beaux Arts. Since his admission to this institute he has received honorable mention for every project that has been given, and at a recent examination stood twenty-one in a class of 200. He is now on a sketching tour in Southern Europe, and expects to return to New York in the fall and commence the practice of his profession.

That Strike Ended.

The boycott of Peck, Martin & Company by the Board of Delegates of the Building Trades is at an end. A conference was held between both sides, which resulted in an agreement to the effect that in future Peck, Martin & Co. shall only employ union men. The strike occurred because that firm was not willing to employ union men entirely. They had for three years been keeping men in their yards who had come to them when the union struck against them in 1887. These men they then promised to "stick" to through thick and thin, and it was in the effort to honestly keep this promise that they underwent the strike last fall, as well as that just ended. Peck, Martin & Co. feel that they have been contending for several years for a principle. They have found themselves alone, unaided by the other employers, and they have eventually compromised. Had they held out for a few weeks longer, and had the union ordered out the men on all the buildings in which their material is used, not 1,000, but 20,000 workmen would have been put of employment. But the Board of Delegates evidently feared the dissatisfaction which would have arisen among the workmen, as well as the result upon their exchequer, from such a wholesale measure, and they consequently ordered a strike on only a few buildings. Mr. Martin was seen in reference to the matter yesterday and said:

"The agreement made by us with the Board of Delegates of the Building Trades provides that we shall employ only union men, but stipulates that all of our present non-union employés, without exception, shall be admitted to their several unions. Most of these men came into our employment three years ago, during the union strike against us, and we promised them that they would not be discharged to make room for union men. We have kept that promise, as they are not now, nor will they be, discharged; under the agreement they will become members of the union and still remain in our employment. There has been no strike against us on the part of the bricklayers, plasterers or laborers who handle our materials. This has been simply an attempt on the part of the trades who are connected with the Central Labor Union (housesmiths, painters, framers and others) to enforce the boycott against us, particularly in the interest of the longshoremen and cartmen. To our surprise the employers of the strikers made no effort to fulfill their contracts, but laid down in helplessness, and our customers were unable to proceed with the erection of their buildings. Only a little manliness on the part of the employers of the strikers would have made the whole affair result differently."

Newark News.

Readers of our Essex County filings will notice that there has been some activity of late in a part of the county which has long been regarded as utterly waste land. We refer to the Newark Meadows. Two railroad companies have been buying land for the purpose of building tracks across this territory; and property which years ago was not worth $25 an acre has suddenly become of some considerable value. Indeed, in some cases there are apparently no owners at all for tracts of large size; and there has arisen an obvious obstacle in consequence to any purchase of certain parts. One of the companies, as is generally known, which has an object in view in making these acquisitions is the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Its tracks run through the centre of Newark; and as at present, at all events, the street crossings are on grade, the trains are obliged to slow up to such an extent that the corporation would have good reason to find a route for their through trains which would be shorter and less impeded. A route across the meadows which would strike the present track outside of the city and very near the county line, offers these advantages. The purchases of the Pennsylvania Company for this purpose have extended over two years, and title has been taken in the names of several people. The Essex and Hudson County Land Improvement Company have figured to some extent in the transactions, though apparently title has not rested with them. Other names which have been used for the purpose are Arthur Devine, Margaret E. Tammany, B. F. Shanley and John C. Wilson. The titles of most properties are gradually being put in the name of Mr. Wilson, for he has appeared as grantee in a great many cases, whereas he has not as yet retransferred his holdings. Mr. Wilson, we understand, is connected with the railroad company, and lives in Philadelphia. Most of the conveyances are made for nominal considerations; but the aggregate sum involved cannot be less than $200,000.

The filings at the Building Department for the past month disclose an unusual number of important buildings. There are no less than four factories, all of them of respectable dimensions; and the number of private dwellings built of stone, and large enough to live in, is greater than ordinarily. There are also a number of important improvements being talked about.

The following is a list of the principal plans filed with the Superintendent of Buildings during the month of May: Mrs. Mary E. Morehouse, Nos. 22, 24 and 26 Maiden lane, three 3-sty bk stores and tenem'ts, two 20x44 each and one 24x64; F. J. A Gowanus Canal Site.

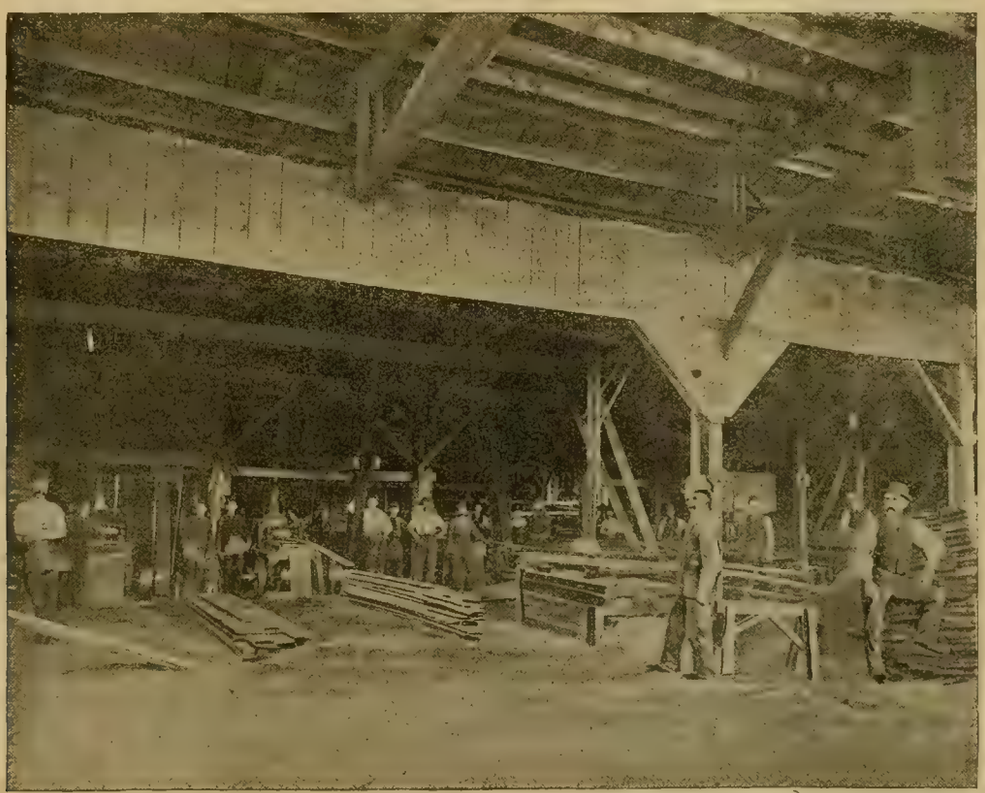
[COMMUNICATED.]

The difficulty of procuring eligible sites for manufacturing purposes which shall have the conveniences of access to transportation by water as well as land is becoming greater year by year. The water front capacity in and around New York City and Brooklyn, near the great centres of population, is decreasing continually, with the result that each remaining parcel increases more and more in value. The Dock Department of the City of New York has not been slow to appreciate this fact, and they have for years been adding to the area of water frontage owned by the city. Still, the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund have not supported that department to the extent demanded by the shipping interests of the metropolis, with the result that large water front improvements contemplated have been so long postponed that the shipping interests have found it necessary to go over to New Jersey and Brooklyn to secure those accommodations which they could not obtain in New York City.

The building material interest, also, which is very large, has found it difficult at times to locate at the spots desired on an economical basis.



Land has not always been cheap where it was wanted, nor rents as low as required. Brooklyn has still a few eligible sites on her water fronts, and these are to be had at considerably lower figures than in New York.

The property shown in the illustration comprises a parcel having three frontages, one of 222 feet on the south side of 3d street, one of 313.7 feet on the east side of Bond street, and one of 236.7 on the north side of Gowanus Canal. The site is situated in the 10th Ward of the City of Brooklyn and has a depth of 231.9 feet running from 3d street to the canal. The ground covers an area equal to over thirty-one lots of 20x100 each. It has on one side a frontage on a street (3d) that is a main thoroughfare extending from Prospect Park westerly to Smith street, and thence through 2d place and Summit street to Hamilton avenue, and through that avenue to Hamilton Ferry, which is within ten minutes sail of the Battery. The property cau also be reached in twenty minutes from the Brooklyn Bridge or Fulton Ferry. It is distant, in trucking time, from Hamilton Ferry about twenty-five minutes and is only two miles distant, in a direct line, from City Hall, New York.

The ground has on it at present the Phœnix Planing Mill. The plant consists of the mill and appurtenances, embracing office building, drying kilns, stable, engine house, shaving vault, sawdust bin, lumber sheds, etc. The machinery consists of a 16x30 Wright engine, with patent automatic cut-off, a 100-horse-power Root boiler, feeders, resaws, blowers, drill press, tool grinder, pump, tank, lathes, shafting, belting, planers, etc.

The property is connected by the canal with the bay, from which it is only three-quarters of a mile distant. Three-masted schooners ply up to the site, and vessels of a draught of 10 feet or more can easily come up to load and unload. The property can be subdivided in two or three parcels conveniently and suitably, as may be required. It is extremely valuable for building material men and manufacturers, stone yards, coal yards, and for storage purposes generally. The property was some years ago leased for $5,000, taxes, assessments and water rates, and at that time —though they are now paid off—the Gowanus Canal and 3d street assessments were still running, making the rental practically $7,500 per annum. The entire parcel is now being offered for sale, on behalf of the owner, by Broker Thomas C. Smith, of No. 111 Broadway, New York City. Mr. Smith, when seen, said: "I think the property extremely valuable for building material men, or for manufacturing purposes, as it enables shipments to be made directly by boat from the very spot. It is the only large parcel obtainable between the mouth of the Gowanus Canal and its head on the northerly and westerly sides." WANDERER.

Notes.

Notice is given that the bill of costs incurred for the purpose of acquiring title to East 176th street, from Jerome avenue to Tremont avenue, from Carter avenue to 3d avenue, will be presented for taxation to the Supreme Court on the 24th day of June.

The Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment in the matter of acquiring title to that part of Lincoln avenue extending from the Southern Boulevard to 3d avenue, give notice that the completed assessment has been deposited at the Department of Public Works, there to remain until the 21st of July, and that all objections thereto must be presented in writing to the Commissioners on or before July 19th.

Real Estate Exchange Matters.

The following gentlemen have been proposed for membership in the Exchange: Geo. L. Slawson, R. W. Myers and H. H. Dreyer.

During the week the property-owners of 76th street, between Central Park West and Columbus avenue, met in the office of Messrs. Bennett & Beam, and completed the negotiations by which Wm. B. Baldwin, who threatened to build stables on the block, was bought out, and the block was restricted. The sale of these 76th street lots was reported in last week's RECORD, as was also the purchase by Mr. Baldwin of a lot on 70th street, west of Central Park West. During the week Mr. Baldwin filed plans for a stable on the 70th street lot. It is said that this lot is the only unrestricted piece of property on the block, and if Mr. Baldwin succeeds in building his stable he will depreciate the value of all the rest of the property very much. So long as people will pay Mr. Baldwin a bonus, it is likely that he will find unrestricted property in private residence streets on which to build a stable.

Real Estate Department.

The summer dullness seems to have settled upon the market and for nearly three months now we can look for comparative inactivity. The offerings on 'Change this week were not important and in more than one case the sales were anything but successful. In the brokers' offices it is reported that there are many inquiries and a pleasing number of negotiations under way, but sales are very difficult to close. This is due, the brokers say, to the unusually large exodus to Europe and the spell of hot weather which sent many people to the country. More than one broker tells us that bargain-hunting clients who have failed to buy during the spring have postponed their purchases till the autumn, when they hope to find a weaker market. At present there are no signs of a break in prices, but on the contrary everything seems to indicate that owners will ask as much if not more for their property later on in the year.

The projected buildings this week are very interesting as showing the movement in the erection of large buildings with the cost up in the hundreds of thousands. The total estimated cost for buildings in New York City filed at the Building Department this week was over three and a-half millions of dollars. In Brooklyn, too, the filings have been exceptionally large, as will be seen from reference to another part of the paper.

On Monday the only sales at the Exchange were of a four-story dwelling on 97th street, west of 8th avenue, under a decree of foreclosure, to C. M. Hillman for $22,100, and of 109 lots and six villa sites adjoining Bedford Park, in the 24th Ward. These lots sold at prices ranging between $400 and $1,100 each. The total realized was $88,855, or an average price of $773 per lot. The principal buyers were Chas. Danenbaum, R. M. Quinn, J. J. Bannan, E. Mallerhan, Rudolph Prellwitz and M. McHale. The crowd which faced the auctioneer's stand was an entirely satisfactory one, both as to number and, what is more important, composition. An interesting sign in these suburban sales latterly is the number of purchasers who do not care to avail themselves of the opportunity to allow fifty per cent. or so to remain on bond and mortgage. This practice of paying all cash would seem to indicate that the purchasers are buying to build.

On Tuesday the sale of greatest interest was that of the northwest corner of 5th avenue and 12th street, to be sold in a partition suit. Before the sale took place it became known that the property had been sold at private contract and that it would be put up at auction simply to give a more satisfactory title. Thos. E. Stillman made the first bid of $160,000, at which figure he became the purchaser, no one wishing to compete under the circumstances. A small lot on Canal street, near Forsyth, was sold in a partition sale for $18,800. A two-story veterinary hospital on 13th street, west of 3d avenue, sold for $20,000, to which figure it was advanced from the first bid of $15,000.

On Wednesday six lots on 127th street and two lots on 128th street, near Park avenue, comprising the old site of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, were sold by order of the wardens and vestrymen of that corporation. The crowd which faced the auctioneer was mainly composed of the shrewd buyers and speculators regularly seen on 'Change. Newman Cowen secured the two lots on 127th street, nearest 4th avenue, at $7,000 each, and the adjoining lot at $6,975. The other lots on 127th street were sold to John B. Simpson at $6,975 each. The two 128th street lots sold to Louis Lese at $7,000 each. Under foreclosure two lots on Central Park West, north of 67th street, sold for $29,750. A country seat at Brewsters, New York, including 384 acres of land and a three-story dwelling with outbuildings sold for $47,500.

On Thursday there was a fair attendance on 'Change. A good deal of interest was manifested in the partition sale of the southeast corner of Bleecker and Carmine streets. The plot is 60x75 feet, and it is at present covered by one and two-story brick buildings and stores. The first bid was $50,000. This was quickly raised to $69,000, at which figure it was sold to M. Coleman. John R. Foley purchased an irregular plot, 50 feet front, on the north side of 74th street, 225 feet west of 1st avenue, for $18,750. Under a decree of foreclosure the southwest corner of St. Nicholas avenue and 146th street, with the buildings thereon, was sold to the plaintiff for $84,802. At public auction a number of parcels in Mt. Vernon were disposed of; the prices ranged from $400 for a vacant lot to $13,100 for house and lot.

On Friday the only sales at the Exchange were under foreclosure. No. 251 West 53d street sold to the plaintiff for $23,000, as against $23,056 due on the property. No. 1018 Avenue A sold for $14,500 to Cyrille Carreau.

On Monday, June 16th, at 2.30 P. M., on the premises, John S. Mapes & Co. will sell 190 choice lots, with two frame dwellings and store and dwelling, being a portion of the M. S. Arnow estate. The property adjoins the station in the village of Westchester, which is only fifteen minutes from Harlem. The titles are guaranteed, and 50 per cent. of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage. Full particulars will be found in an advertisement elsewhere. Lunch and music will be provided.

On Tuesday, June 17th, Jere. Johnson, Jr., will sell at 1 o'clock on the premises, by order of William Ziegler, 658 lots, consisting of part of the great Martense farm in West Brooklyn. This property is situated on 37th, 38th, 39th, 40th and 41st streets, and 9th, 10th, 12th and Fort Hamilton avenues. The lots can be reached by the Fifth Avenue Elevated Railroad, which connects with the Prospect Park & Coney Island line, and are situated within twelve minutes' walk of the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry. On all purchases of $500 or upwards 60 per cent. may remain on bond and mortgage, and the titles are guaranteed by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company.

On Tuesday, June 17th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the four-story brown stone building, 27x61.2x103.3, No. 59 East 11th street, and by order of the executors of the estate of Garrett L. Schuyler, deceased, the ten four and five-story brick and brown stone flats, Nos. 1672 to 1690 Madison avenue, being the west frontage thereof, between 111th and 112th streets.

On Thursday, June 19th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will hold an important sale at the Real Estate Exchange of Bedford Park property. Thirty-six lots in all will be offered, situated on Southern Boulevard, Bainbridge avenue and Suburban street, a diagram of which will be found in another column. The property is the choicest in Bedford Park, and the sale will no doubt attract a large crowd.

On Tuesday, June 24th, Smyth & Ryan will sell at auction on the premises at Croton Landing, Hudson River, a brick factory with a capacity for 16,000,000 brick per annum.

Special Notices.

The Standard Paint Company of 59 Maiden lane, New York, whose building paper prepared with the celebrated P. & B. compound has been favorably known in the market for years, announce placing in the market two new grades of building paper; one, whose trade mark is the "Universal," is prepared with their P. & B. compound, is thoroughly waterproof, acid, alkali and gas proof, in all respects superior to the ordinary building papers in the market. A special feature, and the one which has induced the manufacturers to give it the name of the "Universal" in addition to its merit as a building paper, is that they have put it in the market at a lower price than any building paper of any description, for which reason they feel certain that it is bound to become the universal building paper. The other new brand is put into the market under the trade mark of the "Giant" building paper. This paper is completely saturated with waterproof, acid and alkali proof and insulating material, and the work is so thoroughly done that the paper can be cut in any way and torn into bits and no particle of it will absorb moisture. Every fibre is thoroughly impregnated, and there has never been a similar paper manufactured before. The paper is more waterproof than leather, and where the best article that it is possible to make is wanted the "Giant" paper is sure to be used. The attention of architects and builders is especially called to these papers, and they are urged to send for samples.

M. Gibbons & Sons, the building contractors, desire to call the attention of architects and real estate owners to the excellence of their facilities for doing all kinds of work connected with building, from excavating to elaborate artistic decoration. They construct all kinds of new buildings with promptitude, and with the aid of their long experience, their perfect facilities and their skilled assistants have uniformly given satisfaction. They also do mason work, repairing, stone-cutting, plastering and carpentering. In another column will be found a few tributes to the energy and success of this firm, which has of late been putting up much heavy work. Their address is Nos. 818 and 820 Columbia street, Brooklyn.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

In your issue of May 31st there were notices of liens filed against me on two of my buildings by the New York Anderson Pressed Brick Co., because I refused to pay their bills until they made a correction of same on account of overcharges, and also a claim of damages I have against them for the discoloration of the brick they furnished me.

When I made the contract with their agent I was assured that their brick would not discolor or turn green, but now when the buildings are up I find that the brick turn various colors, and are thereby seriously damaged. RICHARD DEEVES.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For prices see pages VI., XI., XII. and XIII.]

BRICKS.—The oft-repeated story again presents itself, and in all essential particulars the market for Common Hards is reported as "just about the same."

One development of a favorable character may be found in the evidences of a somewhat increased demand, as, notwithstanding a continuation of full arrivals from all points, a counter outlet was secured that prevented the unsold accumulation from reaching any fuller proportion than last week, and some of the trade consider the average quantity awaiting custom as somewhat smaller. On the other hand, however, the price has probably ranged somewhat lower as a necessary factor to retain the attention of buyers, the bulk of the business in good qualities taking place at $5.00@5.25 per M, with a few sales of extras at $5.50@5.75, and very exceptionally a possible schooner load of something gilt edge in quality reaching $6.00 per M. On the other extreme where grades were faulty and unattractive, it was simply a go-as-you-please affair, with sales at the best price possible, some Up-River touching $4.12½ and the poorer sorts of Jerseys at $4.00 or a fraction less. In the sale of Pales receivers have had very good luck, all merchantable lots getting prompt attention from $2.50 up to $3.00 per M, and at the close there were some indications that the latter figure might be exceeded for a choice offering. It appears to be quite generally conceded that thus far this season consumption has run behind last year to a considerable extent, not only through the absence of big special jobs, but on regular work as well, yet now it commences to look as though a larger number of buildings were getting up to the brick consuming point, and would expand the outlet materially. We can learn nothing very new from primary sources. In the majority of cases the only check to production has been found in the stormy weather, but there is rather more talk about some action on the part of manufacturers to curtail the output unless the market assumes a better general position. Some will do so it is claimed as soon as they have made their complement as agreed upon under leases, and others because they are getting tired of running at a loss and prefer to make a shut down. These are not new stories, however, and are only rumors as yet.

LATH.—Receivers have retained the advantage, but were unable to improve it to an extent sufficient to increase the line of value. Receipts were small, indeed so small that any one of our leading dealers could under ordinary circumstances have taken the entire lot and made no unusual purchase, but somehow demand managed to keep away very well, and in the absence of competition buyers obtained the supply as it came to hand without an advance. A story was current of several additional shipments from the Provinces, and upon investigation we found it to be so, but made up of the usual small lots on ice vessels, etc., and the entire bunch would not exceed three millions. Unless consumption has been remarkably small it looks as though a vacuum was being created in dealers' stocks that will be pretty hard to fill when necessity arises, even at an advanced line of bids.

LIME.—There is no change for the better on this market. Supplies continue more than enough for all calls directly made and greater than can be readily placed under a forced effort to secure custom, and while no one is willing to make the direct charge, there is again evidence of more or less suspicion that valuation has in some way been arranged to greater advantage of buyers. It is understood that shipments have been suspended at the Eastward, but no other information of an important character suggested.

LUMBER.—An irregular and contradictory line of reports may still be found on the local lumber market, but the general and not unnatural tendency is to bring to the front the more roseate view of the situation. On the distributive outlet buyers are getting over the extreme tendency to caution exhibited during the earlier portion of the season, and calling for supplies with a greater degree of promptness, at the same time broadening the selection and giving a greater variety of stock on opening. Partially in reflection of this, and in part as a matter of necessity looking to a proper yard accumulation, dealers are bestirring themselves a little more, including particularly those who had held off in hopes of getting better terms on some classes of stock and now commence to realize that they are likely to be disappointed No further special buoyancy is stimulated on values, but influences as they exist are more or less strengthening, and the confidence that has brought sellers along thus far is emphasized and confirmed. Some of the localities adjacent to this city have of late been furnishing most excellent custom.

Eastern Spruce holds its grip very well and intimations of coming weakness occasionally heard come mainly from the buying side. Receivers hear plenty of stories about a determination to abandon the use of spruce for substitutes, and no doubt other woods have been used to a considerable extent by consumers trying to economize, but the Eastern product evidently is not at a prohibitive cost as yet, nor the quantity looming up sufficiently large to put sellers on the defensive. Orders for specials are constantly being tendered, and they are placed very slowly, while everything of a standard or desirable random has generally found prompt sale on first offering Some receivers, who have recently made more or less extended trips among the yards, assert that the supplies and assortments of dealers have run down very low.

Piling is probably in less general demand on some of the outlets present, and prospective have been fairly well provided for by the free contracts made early in the season. Receivers, however, claim a great deal of very good custom still to be found, and express no fears regarding their ability to take care of all the stock that may come forward. It is now reported that a couple of tugs have gone to St. John, N. B., to take in tow for this port the Leary raft, as it is called. It is apparently to be made up of a number of cribs bound together in a compact manner and with pointed ends to assist its progress through the water, and altogether said to contain more stuff than the last venture of a similar nature. The market does not appear to be disturbed, and dealers say it will not be until the raft is safe in this harbor, if it is even then.

Hemlock has the usual firm market with cheerful reports in accord, and for all first-class stuff an assured outlet seems to be in waiting. Indeed, about all the Pennsylvania product reaching this locality is upon contract made some time ago and behind which many of the principal agents are booking additonal orders that insures them for months to come, and thus far there has been no competition from State goods, calculated to have a depressing influence. Indeed, the report is that Northern Spruce cannot be turned out fast enough to satisfy the demand.

White Pine probably affords quite as much ground for complaint as any other wood from the fact that there are more people trying to sell it and many of them without a full knowledge of proper methods to be employed in working the market. Competition, however, is not of a rank character, and when agents find they are making poor progress here in placing the stuff intrusted to their care they look over their memorandum of instructions and start off to other points in search of more desirable custom. Local consumption we believe to be about equal to last season if, indeed, in some sections of the city it is not larger. Arrivals have been somewhat irregular owing to impediments in the way of transportation, but it looks now as though supplies would soon move forward with greater freedom.

Yellow Pine might, of course, find a much fuller and more anxious demand; but sellers seem to be very well satisfied with what they are doing, if the absence of specific complaint can be accepted as any criterion. Some intimations have been given of cut rates and other evidences of weakness, but only in an ambiguous sort of manner and generally traceable to some outside operator who, unsuccessful in securing a contract, imagines that underbidding by competitors was the cause of defeat. Ability to deliver promptly sometimes accompanied by a guarantee, from the larger manufacturers, however, is frequently an attraction for buyers that cannot be secured in dealing with poorly equipped operators, and slashing of prices has become a very rare occurrence. More or less complaint may still be heard over the export trade without, however, developing any really new feature in this matter.

Carolina Pine moves in the even tenor of its way, and while the local exhaust is probably not increasing to any extent sellers claim to have no difficulty in reaching an out-of-town trade whenever they seek it. On value a positive steadiness is also reported with chances favoring an advance rather than any quotable decline. Timber has some chance, but there does not appear to be a feeling that the market is a permanent one, especially on local account.

Hardwoods are finding some demand for pretty much every staple grade upon the list and few complaints of a serious character are to be heard. Of course there is the usual differences of opinion regarding prices and we assume these will always exist, but it generally turns out that when low figures are named the quality of the stock is in accord, and that really choice first-class selections command extreme rates. This seems especially true in regard to quarter-sawed oak which has thus far secured about all the attention predicted for it and contiuues in such full demand that a further advance in cost is believed to be imminent. A great many consumers hanker strongly after cherry, but only a few of them can afford to submit to the cost. Mahogany holds its own at firm rates. Walnut remains as a memory of the past.

A Washington correspondent forwards the following on lumber rates to Boston:

The Interstate Commerce Commission has, in an opinion by Commissioner Morrison, announced its decision of the case of James & Abbott against the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia Railway Company and others. This is a complaint of the transportation charges on lumber carried from Johnson City, Tenn., to Boston, Mass. The rate of which complaint is made is 36 cents per 100 pounds of lumber in the carload for a distance of 911 miles, though from the more distant point of Atlanta, Ga., 1,240 miles, a lower rate of 34 cents is charged, which is alleged to be in violation of the fourth section of the Act to Regulate Commerce. From Macon, Ga., to Boston the freight charge is the same as from Johnson City, 417 miles the shorter distance over the same line. The Commission holds that combined rail and water competition at a longer distance point does not justify a greater charge for the shorter distance, while the shorter distance rate is maintained by the carrier at points where the competition is of greater force and more controlling than the longer distance point; such greater charge is not justified by the fact that local rates have been first paid on lumber to the longer distance points nor by the fact that the freight is shipped in cars from the longer distance points which brought machinery to those points and for which profitable return loads were not always to be had, nor by a difference in the bulk and value of the lumber when the published rate sheets put the lumber in the same class and at the same rate. While distance is not always a controling element in determining what is a reasonable rate, there is ordinarily no better measure of railroad service in carrying goods than the distance they are carried; and where the rate of freight charges over one line in sending freight carried from a neighboring territory to the same market is considerably greater than over other lines for distauces as long or longer, such greater rate is held to be excessive, and should be reduced. The rate on lumber from Johnson City to Boston should not exceed 33 cents per 100 pounds.

GENERAL LUMBER NOTES.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman as follows:

A syndicate of Buffalo, Olean and New York City capitalists is reported to have purchased altogether about 180,000 acres of timber land in the Adirondack region, estimated to contain about 500,000,000 feet of spruce and pine over 12 inches in diameter, and about the same amount of other woods, chiefly hemlock, beech, birch and maple. The pine and spruce will be removed at the rate of 60,000,000 to 50,000,000 feet annually. The tract embodies the finest fishing and game district in the State.

Within the past week a pronounced change has come upon the cargo market of the upper lakes. While as yet it has not developed an observable increase of shipments from mills to distributing point, prices have stiffened and advanced as respects framing dimension, and dealers have thus been awakened to the fact that there is a solid bottom in the market at a time in the sawing season when it is expected to show weakness.

As respects actual transactions at the docks, a report of the market this week might about as well be omitted. Few cargoes have been offered for sale, for the reason that few were consigned. The commission men have sat in their offices, keeping as cool as possible, swapping yarns and selling now and then a lot to arrive. They have also entertained the yard men, when they have dropped in to see what the stillness meant. At the yards a new interest has been awakened in the trade. It has recently developed that there is a short supply of piece stuff, that several sorts are about exhausted, and that it requires a deal of hunting among the yards to get together sorts for a miscellaneous bill. It was expected that by this time there would be plenty of new lumber with which to fill up assortments. Usually there is no lack of piece stuff by June 1 But this year conditions have been reversed. Scarcity has come at a time when in other years there was plenty. Dealers have stayed out of the market because they insisted on prices that the manufacturers would not accord. The result has been light receipts and a rapid decline of stock on hand under the influence of a good shipping demand. If there had been no carpenters' strike things would have taken shape differently. That discouraged local dealers, and rendered them apathetic about buying cargoes. This was a drawback on the bulk stock market, and the manufacturers, seeing that there was no use in consigning to a market where there was little demand, withheld their lumber. Shipments and such local demand as there was steadily reduced stocks, while comparatively little was coming in. If there had been a brisk building requirement, while distribution would have been greater, receipts would likewise have been in heavier volume. The dealers within a week have waked up to the fact that supply of piece stuff is short, and a ripple of excitement has pervaded the yards in consequence. Higher prices are freely talked about, and several yards have already advanced lists to a twelve-dollar basis. Simultaneously with this an advance on the cargo market is announced, the price of short green piece stuff now being $9.75 instead of $9.50, as reported last week. If the yard men needed a boost from behind in the effort at putting up prices, this cargo lift was sufficient. Now the cry is for an advance all along the line.

CANADA.

The Canadian Journal of Commerce as follows:

Reports from the lumber districts of the Upper Ottawa are to the effect that the timber and sawlog drives have been considerably retarded by the backward spring weather. This is especially the case on the northern side of the Ottawa where the season is at least a fortnight behind that on the south shore. Reports from the Kippewa district last week are to the effect that the ice had not melted on several of the lakes up to the 15th of May. There is also considerable snow yet remaining in the back woods around the Blue and Sand Lake districts. From other sources it was learned that log drives of several firms have already been floated down the tributary streams and are now in the Ottawa river.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot retains a very strong general position, with business in about the form last noted. Buyers who handle large parcels appear to have pretty well stocked themselves when the heavy movement was consummated at the first revival of demand, but the small consumers are constantly picking up such lots as may appear adapted to their wants and affording an outlet for pretty much all the supply available. The mining companiee offer their product with reserve, and appear in a more or less indifferent attitude toward the market. Quotations are generally placed at 15⅝@15¾c. for Lake and 13⅜@13¾c. for casting brands. Manufactured copper is reported as finding excellent and satisfactory sale with a strong market ruling, and higher prices talked as a necessity in order to secure a margin over the cost of material. We quote as follows: Sheet, not above 30x72 in., 16 oz. and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 23c.; do, 12 to 14 oz., 24c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 25c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 28c.; do, under 8 oz, 30c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz., 2c. for 10@12 oz, and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 36x96 in., 16 oz and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 24c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 26c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 30c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 33c. Sheets longer than 96 inches 22c. for over 32 oz. and add 1c. for 16 to 32 oz, 14 to 16 oz, 12 to 14 oz, and 2c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96, 32 to 64 oz, 22c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 25c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 27c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 34c. Sheets wider than 48x96 and longer, 22@25c. for 32 to 64 oz. and over, and 27@30c. for 16 to 32 oz. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz, 25c.; 14 oz, 27c.; 12 oz, 29c.; and 10 oz, 30c. Bolt copper, ⅜ inch diameter and over, 22c. Circles, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 5c. do; circles, 96 do and over, 6c. do. Segment and pattern sheets, 3c. above price of sheets required to cut them from. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1@2c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottom, 26@29c. per lb. IRON.—Scotch Pig has a demand mostly of a jobbing or retail character, and only a slim, unimportant sort of market. Immediate accumulations of stock are not very plentiful, but supplies can be brought out promptly if desired, and importers seem a little anxious to get the orders even for small lots. We quote at about $19.00@24.50 per ton, according to brand. American pig may on the whole be considered in very good form with a tendency toward gaining a better footing, if anything. There is on the whole scope of the productive territory unquestionably an enormous output and efforts to offset that may possibly account for some of the booming reports furnished from primary sources, but deliveries and fresh demand furnish a pretty good balancing outlet and permit the support of former general values without much difficulty. The Southern companies, too, seem to have in a measure recovered from the "blues" and incline to display more stamina on the high grade irons. We quote at $17.00@18.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $16.00@17.00 for No. 2 X do., and $15.00@16.00 for Gray Forge. Old material finds a somewhat uncertain market with rumors of big sales of rails and prompt denials thereof, and a further report that the whole story is simply a bull effort to stimulate the position and open the way for considerable foreign stock awaiting a market. Scrap has light attention. We quote at about $24.00@24.50 for old rails; $21.50@22.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $17.00@17.50 for cast scrap, and $18.00@18.50 for car wheels. Manufactured iron is fair, and somewhat fuller demand, with "regular" prices steady, but on specials buyers occasionally gain an advantage. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary sizes, at 2.10@2.12c. from store, and refined at 2.30@2.60c.; Rods, round and square, 2.40@2.45c; Bands, 2.60@2.65c.; Norway Nail Rods, 4@5c., and domestic sheet on the bases of 3.00@3.05c. for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. Steel rails have all in all found a very good demand, and some quite respectable contracts were booked, but the policy of manufacturers was evidently to meet the call promptly, and the line of cost remains about as low as for some time past. We quote at about $30.50@31.50 per ton for standard section at the mills and $33.00@33.50 do. at tide water. LEAD.—Domestic Pig has settled off somewhat from extreme figures of valuation, and found a rather slow market. Actual consumers were not much alarmed at the advance, nor do they appear to find attraction at the decline and speculation is passive. The close looks stronger again. We quote at 4.35@4.40c. as to quality. The manufactures of lead are quoted: Bar, 4½c.; pipe, 6c.; sheet, 6¾c., less the usual discount to the trade; and tin lined pipe, 15c.; block tin pipe 45c., on same terms. TIN.—Pig has moderate consumptive demand, but the bulls on the speculative market retain advantage, and prices are well sustained against depressing efforts. We quote at about $21.70@21.75c. for round lots, and $21.85@22c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plate has found a quiet and somewhat uninteresting market, with no fluctuation in value of a pronounced character. We quote prices as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Melyn grades, $5.75@5.80, each additional X add 1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment Allaway grade, $4.90@5.00, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.00@7.05; M. F. grade, 20x28, $13.80@13.85; Worcester, 14x20, $4.90@4.95; Worcester, 20x28, $9.50@9.55; Dean grade, 14x20, $4.55@4.60; Dean grade, 20x28, $9.00@9.05; D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $4.45@4.50; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $8.90@9.00; I. C. Coke, Penlan grade, $4.40@4.45; J. B. grade, 14x20, $4.45@4.47½; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $4.70@——basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $4.80@——basis. Spelter has been in moderate supply, fair demand, and retained a pretty steady sort of market throughout. We quote $5.60@5.70c. for common Western, according to brand.

NAILS.—Buyers as a rule will not hurry themselves and business takes the form of a simple movement against actual natural wants. A great many wire nails are going into consumption to the detriment of cut, with plenty of both kinds available and prices easy, under any attempt to realize. Manufacturers, however, have of late commenced to feel a little ugly over the low ruling rates and are seeking methods to infuse a somewhat stronger tone. We quote at $1.70@1.80 per keg for car lots and $1.85@1.90 per keg for parcels from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—The general line of business accomplished has been of very fair proportions, and there appears to be no great measure of complaint regarding the amount of business doing. The average is probably somewhat smaller to date than last month, but this is seasonable, and as the first six months of the year draw to a close operators rather calculate upon a natural shrinkage. The break in white and red lead and litharge, noted in detail in our last issue, as a matter of course creates quite a disturbing element in the matter of values. It practically amounts to an entire revolution in the methods pursued during the past five or six months, and restores the market to pretty much the original basis of unrestricted competition, and as the result was brought about through the underselling of "outside" corroders the war against the latter promises to wage bitterly, all of which must prove of advantage to the consumer. It is to be expected that mixed leads and ready mixed paints will be influenced, and, indeed, signs of irregularity in prices are noted. Colors have been fairly active and steady, with Paris green inclined to harden in price as its use for the killing of insects increases. Chalk is irregular, but supplies tend to increase somewhat. Linseed Oil has a good full and satisfactory demand, current supplies disappearing promptly, and the production to some extent finding engagement ahead. We quote 60@61c. for Western and 62@64c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has found a somewhat fuller and more general demand, infusing an improved tone to the market and placing prices on a firmer basis. Supplies are only fair. We quote at 38@39c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—The market shows very little life and no really new feature worthy of note. Supplies seem to be available whenever a demand develops and the cost is much the same for some time past. We quote Pitch at $1.40@$1.55 per bbl.; Tar at $2.12½@2.30, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

VOL. XLV. JUNE 21, 1890. No. 1,162

On the day this paper is issued the Rapid Transit Commissioners will make their report to Mayor Grant, having come to a decision, as the Scotch gentleman acknowledged he joked, "with deeficulty." While the Commissioners have refused to divulge the result of their consultations, yet the newspapers claim to have discovered the route, and the Commissioners are either in the position of the man who would not give the exact number of his house but said it was next door to No. 32, or the newspapers are in error. The latter alternative is not perhaps, on general grounds, improbable; but such is their unanimity on the question that we may look upon the matter as settled, at all events in its main outlines. Assuming this to be the case, a glance at the results may be instructive. According to our authorities, they have found themselves so "cab'in'd cribb'd, confin'd" by legal restrictions, that they will limit themselves to laying out a route from City Hall to 42d street. The route proceeds from the City Hall Park up Elm street to Spring, through Marion street to Jersey street, then under private property to Lafayette place, and up Fourth avenue to 42d street. It will be largely a sub-surface road, and it will doubtless necessitate the widening and extension of Elm street, which the Board of Street Opening laid over for fear of the expense. In adopting this route the Commissioners have done their best, and if it is incomplete and inadequate the responsibility will not be their's, but it will rest with them who, by their political squabbles, left us with the two alternatives—either of doing without rapid transit or of trying to forge a chain with tools of wood.

As it stands, the route is so obviously incomplete that it would be folly to contemplate constructing it without making provision for further extensions. It would not make even a satisfactory make-shift; the proposals of the Manhattan Company would afford a far larger measure of temporary relief. But the very point that one after another of the papers and the politicians have been making is that they want a permanent and adequate solution of the problem, one which will at once meet all present requirements and go a long way towards anticipating those of the future. In this they have undoubtedly been mistaken. Pressing necessities must be met by immediate alleviation, and we have already spent three years in trying to get the permanent solution, and are apparently not so very much nearer to it yet. But it is folly to aim at a permanent solution, and rest satisfied with a pitifully inadequate subterfuge. It would be too much like resolutely starting for the North Pole, and fetching up at Washington Heights after a hard journey of three years. Rapid transit that deserves the name must have its terminus at the Battery; it must extend the whole length of the island; and it must connect with a system that will ramify the annexed district. The Commissioners, however, although they will not attempt to get south of City Hall, are in hopes of getting north of 42d street by means of some arrangement with the New York Central Railroad. Great are the revenges of time! When the late William H. Vanderbilt proposed to construct a rapid transit line along Fourth avenue from the Grand Central station to the Battery, and operate it in connection with the New York Central, a tremendous howl arose from the press and public, similar to the intelligent expressions of disapproval that were showered on Jay Gould when he was pleased to suggest that perhaps the Manhattan Company with a little help might give New York a better transit service. And so we are always biting off our nose to spite our face. We surrender our streets to gas, steam heating, electric lighting and railway companies at a merely nominal charge. We allow them to tear up the streets, without giving any guarantee as to their proper relaying; but when a wicked, monopolistic millionaire offers a proposition which may result to the advantage of the public, the press and politicians raise their hands in pious horror. In truth, the public of New York present the spectacle of a man who is so desperately occupied in holding his hat on his head that he allows his pockets to be picked. But time has its revenges. The Commission has no authority to enter into an arrangement with the Central Railroad, but if the public is willing and the Vanderbilts acquiesce, it is thought that there will be no difficulty in adjusting matters. All of this is a justification of the contention continually urged in these columns, viz.: that after all Mr. Jay Gould or the Vanderbilts, or both, will have to be party to any effective solution of the rapid transit problem. We cannot break away from all existing interests and facilities; the foundations already laid cannot be either ignored or destroyed; they must be strengthened and enlarged.

It can hardly be said that the reception accorded to the circular of the Rev. Mr. Heber Newton & Company has been all that could be desired. The reporters have been industrious in sounding political opinion as to this first move in the electoral campaign; but the published results have not been encouraging to the reformer. The Tammany men interviewed smiled sagely; but said nothing. The Republicans almost universally scouted the idea that there would be any combination between them and this citizens' movement; while the County Democrats also were inclined to turn up their noses. This much was to be expected. One of the gentlemen connected with the movement said, that it was distinguished from all previous movements in this, that it was purely and simply non-partizan, consequently it was not to be expected that it would find favor among men whose bread and butter or even whose beer depended on party adhesions. But in order to make such a movement really effective, it should be supported by all or the majority of that better portion of the community who put pure government above politics. There are plenty of men who pay their debts and look their neighbors in the face who from conviction or from habit ordinarily vote with either one party or the other. Such men constitute probably the majority of the better classes in the community. Yet they are not so bound by party lines that they will not forsake them when the occasion seems to demand it. It is this class that it is necessary to win over to the support of a citizens' movement, otherwise it is impossible to draw the lines sharply and make the issue a moral one. The movement may be in the right; in this case it certainly is in the right; but unless it can create an impression of being overwhelmingly in the right, of being backed by a large preponderance of the most respectable names in the community, a citizens' movement has small chance of success. You may have Dignitaries No. 1 and No. 2 with you; but if you have Dignitaries No. 3 and No. 4 against you on one side, and No 5 and No. 6 on the other, the respectable small fry will be torn by doubt and eventually vote with their party. We are sorry to say that this appears to be the case with the well-intentioned efforts of Mr. Newton and his confreres, and though we most devoutly hope that they can succeed in electing a good Mayor, it would be too much to say that our expectations equal our hopes. There are no indications of that preponderance of dignitaries on the side of Mr. Newton that would insure a momentary, if not a lasting triumph. It is early, however, for predictions, and until it is seen how far the exchanges and unions respond to the call, how much enthusiasm and intelligence is exhibited when the time comes to organize, and what methods the organization adopts, judgment may well be reserved. Important results have frequently followed from the most unpromising beginnings; and while it would hardly be logical to say that because the beginnings are unpromising, therefore the results will be satisfactory, there is no use putting the word failure on the shield, before the weapons are made or the opponents counted,

Louis C. Whiton, one of the "citizens" who combined with Mr. Newton in sending out the circular, expressed himself in an interview to the effect that the new ballot-reform law gives all men a good chance to throw off political thraldom without fear of being punished by their bosses. But the question is, do they want to throw it off? We are inclined to think that the good effect of the Ballot-Reform Act will not be as great as expected. This act was, confessedly, framed to prevent bribery. The voter under its provisions is absolutely secluded when he does his voting, and no electioneering can be done within some distance of the polls. It is generally assumed that the briber will hesitate to use money when he cannot see with his own eyes that the goods are delivered, and doubtless that is so to some extent. But the value of such a contrivance is very certainly restricted. Take the case of the men who are absolutely purchasable. In the first place, such men probably have no convictions. If their sympathies tend either one way or the other, it is towards the worse of two candidates; and this is the one, of course, who is more likely to be the briber. His "heelers" will know this, and in most cases they will know the men with whom they have to deal. Consequently they can very well afford to take the risk of two or three men going back on them, when the majority stick to them, and both the interest and, as we have said, the sympathies of this portion of the sovereign people will probably lead them to vote the way they are told to. In order that the Ballot-Reform Act should become effective, it must needs be that the purchasable people have convictions which they are willing to sell, but which would influence their vote if there were no means of keeping them to their bargain. Only too frequently find this assumption is unwarranted, and we have no doubt that the bribers will be quite willing to take the risk. As to that more subtle kind of bribery which takes the form of a promise to pay with an office in case the election is successful, it is obvious that the Ballot-Reform Act cannot touch that at all. And as it is probable that this is the kind most frequently used in our municipal elections, it will be seen that the change in our election laws will not be of much assistance to our Citizens' Committee in the gigantic task of freeing New York from the control of the "bosses."

Methods of Taxing Corporations.

When a business man of moderate ability finds himself getting into financial straits he is very apt to conclude that he could succeed better by extending his business in new directions; he accordingly "branches out" as far as already strained credit will permit, and so flounders the faster into bankruptcy. When a State government, also possessed of very moderate financial ability, finds that it needs more money for current or extraordinary expenses the conclusion is apt to be that the way out of the difficulty is by multiplying the number of different taxes imposed. Latterly corporations have been the most frequent recipients of this class of attentions, and a sort of Donnybrook habit of taxing every corporation that shows itself has grown up.

Under most State constitutions of the present time the Legislature is in a position to say to every artificial person within its jurisdiction, "Your money or your life." The old medieval tendency to impose taxes mainly on those too weak to defend themselves is still strong, and these fast multiplying corporation taxes are too often imposed in proportion, not to the tax-bearing power of the given class of corporations but in proportion to their political weakness or defencelessness. Thus the oldest and most common corporation tax is that imposed on insurance companies. In this business the corporate form of organization is almost indispensable, as is also government regulation and supervision. Thus a large body of wealth comes directly within the view of the authorities and they have taken advantage of the fact to help themselves on behalf of the State without stopping to remember that they are taxing a necessity of business life and in a way that makes it perfectly easy to shift the tax to the shoulders of the consumer. The insurance business is not susceptible of being monopolized, and a tax imposed upon it merely adds to the general weight of indirect taxation under which the community already groans.

On the other hand, as this journal has so often insisted, those corporations whose charters give them almost inevitably a monopoly of the special business in which they engage have been able to defend themselves from taxation to a most unwarrantable extent. It requires almost as much of a political "pull" for a laborer to get work on many of our street car lines as on the public works, and the same is true of other corporations that have found it necessary to throw up political entrenchments against the community as represented by the tax-gatherer.

The earlier method of taxing railroads was to let the local assessors turn them in at whatever rate suited the fancy or the interest of the local functionary and then levy a duplicate tax on all the stocks and bonds that could be found in the possession of private persons. The result was that the holders of stocks and bonds effectually dodged the inquest, and the different sections of the road were over or under assessed according as the assessors could be most "influenced" by the road or by their constituents. The remedy for these evils has been sought in twenty States and Territories by providing that the railroads shall be uniformly assessed by a State board or commission and the regular general property tax rate then imposed upon them. The attempt to further tax their stocks and bonds as personality is still kept up in most of these States.

In only fifteen of the States has progress been made beyond this cumbrous and futile way of taxing the railroads. Of these fifteen States eight tax them on gross earnings alone. This is a tax difficult to dodge, but is unjust to roads whose net earnings may be small while their gross earnings are large. To meet this difficulty Maine, Michigan, Vermont and Wisconsin grade the tax so that roads with small gross earnings per mile are taxed more lightly than the others. It is evident that this meets the difficulty in part, but in part only. The States fear to try to tax net earnings lest these should altogether disappear from public view under the skillful manipulations of our railroad financiers.

In New York, where the laws relating to the taxation of corporations are so complicated that a law book dealing with this class of cases alone has recently been prepared, the railroads are twice remembered. They are first taxed under the general law for the taxation of corporations. This tax is so graduated that corporations paying 6 per cent. dividends or more are taxed one-quarter of a mill on capital stock for each 1 per cent. of dividend. If they pay less than 6 per cent. dividends they must pay one-and-a-half mills upon the cash value of their capital stock, this provision being so drawn as to discourage stock watering. Whether or not it is designed to discourage bond watering is not so clear.

The above rules apply to all corporations alike, except certain classes specifically exempted, but in addition to this general corporation tax the transportation companies are further subject to a tax of five-tenths of 1 per cent. on their gross earnings. This completes the tale of their liabilities to the State tax-gatherer (except upon their real estate), but they are in all other respects liable to assessment and taxation as before.

From all this it appears that our system of State taxation does not appear to be approaching perfection by the multiplication of new taxes. The corporations most properly taxable, like the holders of personalty, are merely playing hide-and-seek with the tax-gatherer.

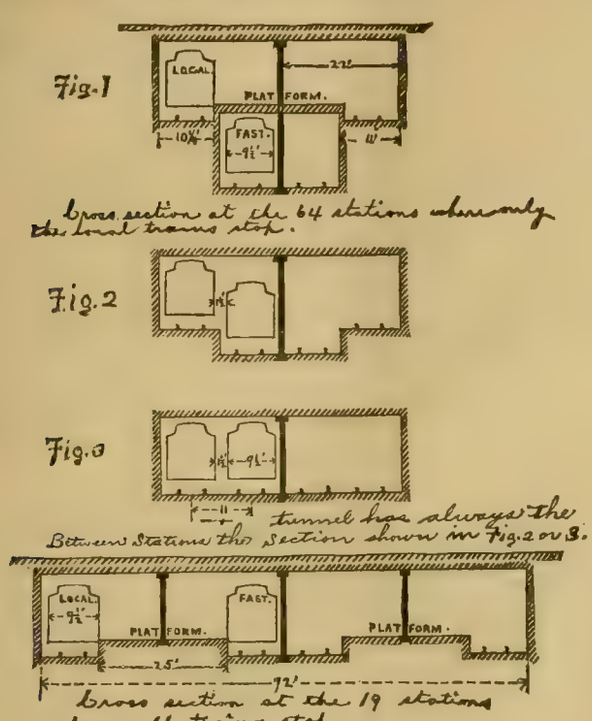
When a reporter asked of Mr. Bourke Cochran what he thought of the new Citizens' movement, he replied shortly, "I don't think of it at all;" and, therein, as neatly as possible, Mr. Cochran gave expression to the consideration the latest attempt to purify the city-government receives from practical politicians. Discourteous to the "Newtonian Party" though this attitude of our politicians is, betraying as it does a sad lack of moral tone and appreciation of the moral side of the new movement, we have to admit reluctantly that from a practical point of view the politician is very likely to be right. Usually he is right in such matters, and the phase that the first attempt to establish a wholesomer municipal government has taken, shows unmistakably how little understood is the problem; how greatly misapprehended are the fundimental facts of our condition. The guiding idea, the inspiration, as it were, of Dr. Newton's party is, that reform is obtainable by merely nominating good men, or as one of the daily newspapers puts it: placing in the field "a remarkable municipal ticket." The supposition that the majority of voters hunger and thirst after righteousness while there is no one to fill them betrays a remarkable ignorance of facts. The last mayoral election showed that 114,111 voters found in Tammany rule the closest approach to their ideal of municipal government that existed, in spite of the fact that Abram S. Hewitt and other excellent candidates were in the field. When from the remainder of the voters are subtracted party men of the hide-bound type of other denominations, and men who want nothing of reform that does not come with the ascendency of their party, how select, but ineffectual, is the remnant left to support a moral movement! The fact is, as the RECORD AND GUIDE has repeatedly stated, the government we have is the people. The only reform that can be fundamental and really effectual is the reform of the moral tone of men, the elevation of their sentiments and ideas. Only in so far as the "new citizens' movement" is educative will it be reformative. The stir of moral sentiments which it betokens in the community will be purifying like air passing through stagnant water, but that it will defecate appreciably that Slough of Despond of ours is not reasonably to be hoped for. One other fact remains to be touched upon. Will this citizens' committee be merely a Committee of Eminent names and nothing more, a paper committee of very busy men, merchants, ecclesiastics and others, who having received a mild shock from the recent "exposures" have given a quarter of an hour of their time to the new moral diversion of "Parlor Politics?" Merely to give one's respectable signature to a reform movement of the character this of Dr. Newton's assumes, would be a farce. The "survy politician" holds his position by work, by disseminating his vulgar ideas and his dollars; and it will be only by hard work, work at first uphill and discouraging that his position can be assailed. All the respectable people of this city may meet, sign resolutions, denounce, then scatter to their several occupations, and the politicians, like Bourke Cockran, will truthfully declare "I don't think of it at all." A Committee of Eminent names was not sufficient to get New York the World's Fair, and it will not be sufficient to reform our city government. It may be said this is a hopeless view of our case. It is not. It is simply a recognition that we are in a very bad state, that we need for medicine more drastic remedies than a little moral rosewater and sugar. Parlor politics are absolutely ineffectual. A long campaign of hard work is necessary.

Railroad Mileage.

NEW YORK, June 16, 1890.

Editor RECORD AND GUIDE:

You gave us a very good report on first page issue June 14, saying sixteen organizations own or control 111,149 miles of railroad interests. Now to make the report more complete, will you please tell us in your next issue how many miles of railroads there are in operation in the United States?



AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

[According to Poor's Manual for 1889, there are 154,276 miles of road constructed in the United States, of which 145,387 are operated. It is estimated by the Iron Age that some 6,000 or 7,000 miles more will be built during the current year. As the figures we quoted from the Financial Chronicle were based on the estimates of 1889, it is unnecessary to take the mileage since constructed into account.—Ed.]

A Study of Cross-sections for the Stations of a Rapid Transit Tunnel.

By Saml. Buel, Jr., C. E.

In preparing the transit paper recently printed in the Record and Guide, I thought it best to omit details and present simply a bare outline of a plan. But it has since occurred to me that, inasmuch as I pointed out the economy in operating expenses of using intertrack station platforms, it might be of interest to show how this arrangement could be attained, in a permanent way, without necessitating bad alignment. It has, I believe, been even assumed that the feat is impracticable. It does not seem so to me. Indeed, in my outline of a transit plan, I have suggested nothing whose detail has not been well thought out. Now in regard to the station arrangement of a four-track tunnel, it is simply necessary to run the fast trains under the platforms where only the local trains stop, to insure that at each of these stations, every track will be straight, that the platforms may stand on summits (thus lessening the wear, tear, and jar of trains in making quick starts and stops), and that a right of way fifty feet wide, the same as is required between stations will suffice. The suggested arrangement is shown in Fig. 1 of the four following diagrams.

All the trains seen in cross section run in one direction. In the half of the tunnel represented as unoccupied, the trains run in the other direction. It is thus seen that passengers can transfer from the fast to the local trains, and vice versa, by simply walking across a platform at each station where all trains stop. To have the tracks at different elevations at any of the stopping points for both fast and local trains, would be an undesirable arrangement. A system of inter-track platforms for an elevated way would be worked out somewhat differently; but is easily practicable.

Whether passengers can be carried comfortably in a tunnel is a question yet to be settled, because if thirty or forty trains an hour run on each track of a four track covered passage way, it will be impossible to maintain pure air, by any known process, if the trains are drawn by fire box locomotives; and, as it happens, no other adequate motive power is known. If, therefore, no satisfactory substitute can be found, it seems fair to say that the idea of a tunnel should be abandoned. I do not believe that room can be found for an open cut; or that fire box locomotives could be satisfactorily used in a subway partaking somewhat of the nature of both cut and tunnel. But if a prize were offered for a motor which can start and stop ordinary railway trains, and run them at the speed of fifty miles an hour, without necessity to carry a fire, it is not a wild supposition to believe that either by means of electricity, hot water or cable, a motor will be produced, to meet the demand. Now such a demonstration will take time. Hence, if the transit question should ever come to be treated by experts, a step which they might, properly, take within twenty-four hours after they organize, would be to offer engineers of motive power an incentive to produce a motor which will meet the requirements of a rapid transit tunnel.

Men and Things.

It is of little use, I believe, to tell a man how to succeed—that is, how to accumulate treasure for the present world. We may say many things that are very, very true; our saws may be as wise as those of Polonius; our experience as valuable as that of the great Mr. Carnegie; but unfortunately people cannot follow the advice even if they would. It is one thing to resolve to be sagacious, enterprising and tireless, but it is quite another thing to exercise these admirable qualities, just as it is one thing firmly to determine to possess a dollar bill and another thing to have it in your pocket. Advice, however, on the art of failure is far more easy of adoption, and consequently I deem Andrew Lang's essay on "How to Fail in Literature" to be a far more valuable discussion than Brother Carnegie's essay on "How to Succeed in Life." As I have said, many men cannot pursue the paths of wisdom even if they would; but a determination to adopt all of Mr. Lang's admirable precepts to aid a literary failure would surely be attended by success in compassing the desired object. Such a one would not only attain failure; but, as Mr. Lang says, he would deserve it—which is always a comforting assurance. Mr. Lang, however, did not pretend to exhaust his subject, and more advice in the same direction from one who has ambitions neither in one direction nor the other may, perhaps, assist some poor struggling soul who is verging on the desired end without having quite reached it. Thus a valuable precept which may be unhesitatingly recommended for the purpose is the constant use of quotations which are as old as the hills, and which, if possible, express your meaning in a circumlocutory way. Thus, if you wish to speak of dancing, write about "tripping the light fantastic toe;" if you wish to speak of death, always employ the phrase "that great leveler," and a reference to "the undiscovered country, etc.," as a clause expressing the other world, cannot fail to disgust most editors. Another absolutely infallible method of assisting an editor to hold your name in the utmost contempt is to write a little essay comparing life to a flowing river. There is a certain period in the existence of every intellectual fledgling when this comparison assumes immense importance. Let any one who really desires to fail make the most of that period; let him nail the comparison to his mast; let him circulate it through the domain of the editor and the publisher; and I warrant him as complete a failure as ever fell to the lot of mortal man. I would willingly expand on this fertile theme; but, after all, any addition to the advice of Mr. Lang might be considered a work of supererogation. No one really needs to go behind his precepts, and additional rules might well confuse many people who already are on the high road to failure.

The Important Sales of the Season.

THE LARGE NUMBER OF VALUABLE PROPERTIES SOLD IN THE SEASON OF 1889-90 MANY MILLIONS INVESTED IN PARCELS WORTH ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS AND UPWARD.

The real estate season of 1889-90 is about closing, and it may be interesting to glance at the principal transactions in property which have taken place since its opening. The season for real estate may be said to commence about the middle of September, and to end about the middle of June. Transactions of importance are, it is true, recorded in the early part of September and in the latter part of June, but the season practically begins and ends with the nine months comprised in the Fall, Winter and Spring.

It is with this period that we will deal. During these nine months about 170 deeds have been recorded, where the consideration has been $100,000 and over. Of these, about one quarter were of properties south of the City Hall, and about one quarter between the City Hall and 59th Street, and the balance being very nearly evenly divided between the East and West sides of the city, north of that street. The most valuable parcels were, of course, situated down town. Yet, it is remarkable how much money has been put into uptown properties. The section between Houston Street and Washington Square, has shown unusual activity, the parcels purchased in the majority of instances, being for improvement. The Record and Guide was the first paper to realize and point out the fact that this section was likely to undergo a great change in the very near future, the old residences and other small buildings being forced to give way to business structures. That anticipation has already been largely verified. Numerous important improvements have been commenced, and values have risen very considerably.

There has also been considerable buying in the neighborhood of Wall and Pine Streets, with the object of improvement, and it would seem as though the entire section south of the City Hall is gradually, but surely, being turned into a solid block of high buildings. The old-time structures are being sought out wherever they still exist, and high buildings are constantly taking their place.

Inroads have been made, more than ever, upon the houses on 5th avenue. Even Madison avenue, which "society" fondly hopes will survive the incursions of the vandals, has not been free from attack. The entire front of Madison avenue between Dr. Parkhurst's Church and 23d street has been torn down to make way for a business building to be erected by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and the very crown of Murray Hill was only saved by the purchase of Zion Church by parties who are interested in saving the neighborhood from an encroachment that would make the quiet and pleasant air of that section vanish.

But we are digressing. Let us take a glance at the principal properties sold during the past season.

SOUTH OF THE CITY HALL.

Some large parcels have changed hands on Broadway. The principal of these were the office buildings on the northwest corner of Liberty Street, comprising Nos. 149 to 153 Broadway and 83 Liberty. These parcels were purchased by the Singer Manufacturing Company. No. 149, which contains only 3,576 square feet, for $544,500 (the sale being under partition orders); No. 151 for $200,000, and No. 153 for a similar sum, a total of $944,500. It is understood that the Singer Company intends improving this property eventually by erecting an immense building on the site. No. 55 Broadway, on the southeast corner of Exchange Alley, was transferred to Herman Wronkow by one of his "dummies" for $395,000, the mortgage thereon being $325,000. No. 30 Broadway sold to Geo. B. Wilson for $100,000 and other considerations, while Nos. 31 and 33 Broadway, adjoining the northwest corner of Morris Street, was sold to Orson D. Munn for $380,000. It comprised about two city lots and a five story office building, and adjoins the plot on which Spencer Aldrich is now erecting a twelve story and basement office structure at a cost of $400,000. Another property of importance was that at Nos. 177 and 179 Broadway and No. 10 Cortlandt Street, comprising three five story office buildings on a plot of ground covering nearly three and a quarter full lots, sold to Ferdinand Fish for $600,000, who turned over the property to the trustees of the Isaac G. Pearson estate, the consideration not being named in the deed, subject to a mortgage of $195,000.

There does not appear to have been a sale of any Wall Street parcel worth $100,000 or more. In the neighborhood of that street some valuable properties have changed hands. No. 52 Broad Street and No. 52 New Street, containing about 3,830 square feet, with two four story office buildings thereon, sold to Hugh N. Camp for $108,500; No. 34 Pine Street to the Hanover Fire Insurance Company for $125,000; Nos. 45 and 49 William and Nos. 41 and 43 Pine Street, with one eight story building, to J. A. Stewart, et al., for a nominal consideration, and Nos. 97 and 99 Cedar Street, on the northwest corner of Temple Street, to Alfred B. Dunn for $130,000 and mortgages. No. 111 Cedar Street, with Nos. 106 and 108 Liberty Street, was transferred to Julius Schulz, no consideration being named in the deed. Among other properties sold on Liberty Street were Nos. 60 and 62, opposite the Real Estate Exchange, to Wm. Ziegler, the Brooklyn real estate operator, for $240,000, subject to mortgages amounting to $100,000. No. 37 Liberty Street, comprising 1,116 square feet, sold to The Lawyers' Title Insurance Company for $110,000. Nos. 55 and 57 Pearl, 22 Stone and 93 and 95 Broad, were purchased by the Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Company for $105,000, and they are now erecting a handsome building on the site.

On Nassau Street the largest parcel transferred was No. 49. It takes in No. 19 Maiden Lane and No. 22 John Street, with one five-story and two four-story buildings, and was bought by Mary C. Barnes et al for $300,000. Nos. 76 and 78 Nassau Street, near John, with old buildings and 3,686 square feet of ground, were sold to Geo. Ehret, the brewer, for $150,000, and No. 33 Nassau to The Holland Building Association for $175,000.

Cortlandt Street has shown some little activity. In addition to No. 10 mentioned above, No. 26, on the northeast corner of New Church Street, a five story building and 3,371 square feet of ground, was purchased by John Mayer, of Mahwah, N. J. for $212,500. The same party bought the adjoining property on the southeast corner of Church and Dey Streets, for $200,000. This gives him the entire Church Street front and it is not improbable that the whole was bought with the object of eventually erecting a high building on the site. No. 24 Cortland Street and No. 19 Dey Street in the rear, sold to Henry B. Classon for $200,000, and No. 77 Cortlandt, on the southwest corner of Washington Street, a five-story store and tenement and 1,160 square feet of ground, to Chas. F. Havemeyer for $100,000.

A few parcels have been sold on William Street, Nos. 104 and 106, south of John Street, with two four story stores on 1,795 square feet of ground to Olivia E. P. Stokes, for $100,000, and Nos. 1, 5 and 7 on the northwest corner of Frankfort Street, 73.5x108.4x32.4x98.3, with three five-story factory buildings and two-story dwellings, to Francis A. Curry for $112.500.

Other parcels sold included Nos. 252 to 256 Pearl Street, near Fulton, and No. 192 Water, near Burling Slip, to John Pettit; No. 9 Albany Street and Nos. 135 to 139 Washington Street, containing five six-story tenements with stores, to Lyman Denison, for $129.000; two five-story stores on the southwest corner of Greenwich and Liberty Streets, on 4,112 square feet, to John Mayer, of Mahwah, for $168.000; No. 19 Barclay Street and No. 24 Park Place, running through, a six-story building on a lot 25.9x148.7, to the National Railway Publication Co. (two-thirds only sold), for $108.667; the northeast corner of Washington and Vesey Streets, with four four-story stores, on a plot 53x96.2x49.11x77.3, to E. Einstein, under partition, for $147.000, and the northeast corner of John and Cliff Streets, to Wm. E Dodge, for $140.000.

BETWEEN THE CITY HALL AND FOURTEENTH STREET.

The principal sales in this section have been along the line of Broadway, and to the East of the Bowery. Starting from the City Hall, we find that Nos. 105 and 107 Chambers Street, running through to 89 and 91 Reade Street, 50x150.1, was sold to Isaac H. Cary, of Brooklyn, for $240,000. Nos. 394 and 396 Broadway, and 32 Lafayette Place, was sold by W. W. Astor, to Richard T. Pettit, in exchange, subject to a mortgage of $100,000. Nos. 9 to 13 Walker Street, about 60x106, with two five story factories, were bought by J. B. Weinberg, for $225,000, of which $141,000 was paid in cash, $84,000 remaining on mortgage.

Further North, Nos. 113 and 117 Spring Street, near Mercer Street 75x100, with two five story iron front buildings, were sold by Josiah Belden, to Jacob Emsheimer, for $205,000, and Nos. 801 to 807 Broadway, Northwest corner of 11th Street, the Methodist Book Concern's building, to Wm. Johnston Jr., for $750,000, on which $400,000 was a mortgage. The latter transferred the property to J. McCreery for the same sum, the latter paying only $50,000 in cash, leaving $700,000 on mortgage. M. L. Sire transferred to Aaron D. Farmer, Nos. 159 and 169 Waverley Place, on the Southeast corner of Christopher Street, No. 37 Ann Street, and No. 184 South Street, for $200,000, while the Northeast corner of Washington Square and 4th Street, 56.5x100.2, with two and four story dwellings and stores thereon, was sold by Amos R. Eno, to Wm. Kraus, for $110,000. The Northeast corner of Hudson and Leroy Streets, was sold to Jas. W. Ketcham for $110,000.

Turning Eastward, we find that some important sales took place near the Bowery. Of these the Grand Street properties are of most interest to real estate men, on account of the high prices obtained. No. 271 Grand Street, Southeast corner of Forsyth Street, 20x62, with an old building, was transferred to Dorothea Wolff for $112,500, the sum of $47,000 remaining on mortgage. This property covers less than half a full city lot. No. 263 Grand Street, near Forsyth, 25x80, with old buildings, went to Abraham Wolff for $100,000, and comprises four-fifths of a full city lot. Then properties on the Bowery, Allen, Delancey, Pell, Chatham and 112th Streets were transferred to Ernest Plath at a nominal consideration, and a number of parcels on Cherry and Monroe Streets, South Fifth Avenue and Amity Place were conveyed to Harriet L., wife of Alfred T. Carroll et al, for $295,000, the mortgage being only $94,000.

BETWEEN FOURTEENTH AND FIFTY-NINTH STREETS.

A glance at the principal sales within the five or six square miles of territory embraced in this region shows where investments have been made in particular sections, and gives a clue to some changes that are likely to occur in these sections.

On Broadway, the southeast corner of 48th Street, taking in Nos 1,580 to 1,590 Broadway, and running easterly to, and including, Nos. 712 to 720 7th Avenue, with ten two and three story stores on the site, was transferred on April 1 to Moritz B. Philipp, by Benj. C. Wetmore, for $250,000, of which $161,400 comprised mortgages. The southwest corner of Broadway and 48th Street, running to 7th Avenue, 100x69.4, was sold under foreclosure by Roger Foster, to Benj. C. Wetmore, for $190,500. On this they are about to build an eight-story and basement business building, to cost $750,000. There is little doubt but that within a few years the other private houses on this select residence square will be torn down to make way for business purposes. No. 238 Madison Aveuue, a four story dwelling, on a lot 55x100, was purchased by Luther Kountze, the banker, for $105,000, the deed being re-recorded in May, 1890.

There has been considerable activity on 57th Street, west of 5th Avenue. On the blocks between 5th and 6th Avenues, which contains the homes of some of our wealthiest families, no less than three parcels changed hands in the nine months. Barnes, at $240,000, leaving thereon a mortgage of $160,000.

Turning to the west side generally, between 14th and 59th streets, we find that among avenue properties the northeast corner of 6th avenue and 55th street, 100.5x100, with the buildings thereon, was transferred to Sarah J., wife of Abraham Mead, for $300,000. This sale took place June 25, 1875, but the deed was not recorded till December, 1889. Real Estate Department.

There is nothing new to report as to the condition of the market this week. The dullness noticed last week continues and, if anything, there is increased deliberation and circumspection on the part of buyers. This, taken together with the fact that prices remain firm, makes it difficult to consummate sales. At auction there is nothing of importance to report, as no large sales were held. The account of the daily sales held at the Exchange follows. Our "Gossip" column shows the largest sale closed at private contract this week to have been the northeast corner of Broadway and 42d stroet for $540,000.

On Monday the only sales announced were under foreclosure and all of these were adjourned.

On Tuesday some business property was sold to close an estate. The southeast corner of Water street and Catharine slip sold for $12,400. At public auction No. 59 East 11th street sold to L. Sonntag for $41,500. In a partition suit No. 145 West 35th street sold to Thos. Walker for $23,900. Twelve lots at Fordham sold at from $690 to $1,000 each. All the legal sales were adjourned.

On Wednesday there was no important sale of city property south of the Harlem River. In a partition sale, No. 350 West 37th street sold for $22,750. Another sale of Bedford Park property was held and attracted considerable attention. The total realized from the sale of thirty-six lots was $29,200, or an average of about $811 per lot. The lots were not distributed among as many buyers as at former sales of suburban property, and at Wednesday's sale some of the buyers were speculators. The buyers included L. Z. Bach, F. Frederick, J. E. Freystadt, N. Litter, J. H. Londergan and R. Crawford.

On Thursday, the only sales of city property at the exchange, were under forclousre. No. 111 Delancey street, sold to David Gerber for $17,900, and No. 32½ west 44th street, sold for $14,000. On this latter property there was due $13,065. A plot of land about 100 feet square, with a dwelling thereon, at the corner of Mount Vernon and Terrace avenues, Mount Vernon, sold for $7,900.

On Friday the only sale at the Exchange was of four flats on 69th street, west of 11th avenue, under a foreclosure decree. They were sold to Randolph Guggenheimer, the lawyer, for $14,000 each. There was due on each flat $17,041, or $3,000 more than what they were sold for.

On Tuesday, June 24th, Fairchild & Yoran will sell thirty-one lots situated at Fordham, in the 24th Ward, on Jerome avenue and Highbridge road. These lots are located on the line of the proposed Jerome Avenue Railroad, but a short distance from both the Fordham Station on the New York and Harlem Railroad, and the Fordham Heights Station of the New York and Western Railroad. Sixty per cent. of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage for three years; and the title is guaranteed by the Lawyers' Title Insurance Co. free of cost to each purchaser.

The yard is well equipped, and its capacity is 16,000,000 brick per annum. It contains an inexhaustible supply of material and is connected with the New York Central by side tracks. It will be sold on liberal terms.

On Wednesday June 25th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the two four-story and basement dwellings, Nos. 1216-1218 Tenth avenue, 17x52x81 each, and the four-story and basement brown stone dwelling, 18x50x100.5, No. 140 West 64th street.

On Wednesday June 25th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell in partition, the four-story brick tenement with store, 20x45x60, No. 423 Grand street, being the south-west corner of Attorney street.

On Thursday June 26th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell 190 lots at Bath Beach, town of New Utrecht, L. I. Mr. Lawrence's office is at Nos. 16 and 18 Exchange place.

The Goldthwaite Geographical Exchange, No 107 Nassau street, plumes itself on being not only the single depot in the United States, from which publications relating to geography are exclusively circulated, but it prides itself in keeping the largest variety of these publications. Almost any geographical, astronomical and marine book in the world can be found at this store. It is easy to understand that such an office is of the greatest service to real estate dealers, shippers, &c. who continually need maps and charts that are authentic.

Messrs. Crombie & McKean, of No. 1589 Third avenue, offer for sale in another column, five full lots, situated on the south side of 99th street, between 2d and 3d avenues. The terms of sale are favorable. For particulars apply to the above firm or to Hall J. How & Co. No. 171 Broadway.

F. H. Mela has recently bought the property at No. 197 Greene street, and will build two six-story basement and sub-cellar, brick, iron and stone buildings for store purposes. These buildings will be 37x100 each, and are to be the same in general design as that at No. 21 West Houston street. They will be of fire-proof construction throughout, with steam heat, sidewalk, freight and passenger elevators. The stairways will be of iron and slate, and will be placed at the extreme front of each building, with window on each landing. Other features will be developed in building which will make these store buildings models of their kind and entirely different from others in this section. Cleverdon & Putzel are the architects and about $150,000 will be expended on the improvement.

Brick manufacturers and others are offered sixty acres of fine clay land on the Hudson River, near Albany, with good dockage facilities, through C. L. Cornish, 177 Broadway, New York.

Truman H. Baldwin, it is reported, has sold the plot 95x100 feet on the southeast corner of 121st street and Manhattan avenue

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

*Editor Record and Guide:

Liens have been lately filed against my property on 48th Street and Lexington Avenue by contractors and subcontractors. To obviate any misconstruction, let me state, that not one cent is due of the amounts for which these liens have been acquired, that every dollar which has become due under the contract made by Mr. Mondolfo (from whom I took the property) with the builder, was not only paid, but in many instances anticipated, and that any further sum, which may become due, will be paid at maturity,

It seems that the filing of these liens was caused by the departure, of the builder, who left last Saturday for Europe for his health, but has made arrangements, that all payments, when due byhim to subcontractors, will be made by his representative Mr. John E. R. Brodsky, 49 & 51 Chambers Street.

June 19th 1890. Maurice V. Freund,
760 3d Avenue, N. Y.

†Editor Record and Guide:

We have read in your issue of June 14th, a communication from Mr. Richard Deeves, and beg to state that the same as to alleged overcharges, and statements made by our agent is in every particular incorrect.

Our lawyers are foreclosing the liens and Mr. Deeves will be afforded an opportunity of meeting us other than in the newspapers.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

(For prices see pages XI, XIII, XIV and XV.)

BRICKS.—It is difficult to introduce anything that will materially change the report on condition of the market for Common Hards. As compared with last week, the supply has undoubtedly been smaller, and that, of course, is a good feature so far as it goes, but, as there seemed to be enough stock for the outlook presented, the impression holds that there was also some diminution in demand. Accepting the surmise as correct, however, it does not necessarily indicate a shrinkage of actual consumption, but rather that dealers and contractors, having taken care of the previous large quantities, are, for the time being, at ease in a great many cases, and feel no necessity for further immediate investment. In the matter of cost, just about the old range of figures is mentioned, the top standing at $6.00 for exceptional lots, and ranging thence downward to about $4.00 for Keyports, though now and then a good, close buyer can do even a fraction better on the latter run of stock. Pales have continued in very good demand, with satisfactory sale, exhausting the supply about as promptly as offered, and supporting $3.00 readily enough for the best, with a chance now and then for a little more money on the best stock. Inquiry in regard to quality brings the response, that while there is more or less sprinkling of washed brick, and now and then a little annoyance on that score, as a rule the run of condition is very good. Indeed there is nothing particular the matter with the market so far as quality and price are concerned, over which buyers can or do grumble, and the one fault is excess of supply over present outlet. In regard to chances for a reduction of product, nothing definite can be gleaned at the moment, manufacturers simply threatening a shut down and continuing work. It is, however, surmised that when the usual break in shipments during the week of the "Fourth" takes place, it will be made permanent, and work cut off unless prospects for demand in meantime greatly improve.

LATH.—The general market has scarcely been able to hold the full strength of the past two weeks, and there is a reduction in the line of value that prevents any consistent wholesale quotation above $2.30@ $2.55 per M. Up to the present writing, there is no disappointment in calculations upon the quantity of stock offering from first hands; and, while the amount afloat is known to have increased somewhat, it certainly is not great enough to create any special measure of apprehension. Demand, however, lacked force and character, and the position being one where the seller had to seek negotiation, the result was naturally to be found in a weakening off in value. There seems to have been some disappointment in the out of town inquiry, as well as that from local sources.

LIME.—At last after two years of monotonously unchanged values the spell is broken with a decline all along the line. Ever since the commencement of the year we have heard and printed from time to time intimations that the Eastern Association of Manufacturers was held together by a very weak tie, and a confirmation of these stories is the influence under which the market has given way. We understand that on Friday last a meeting was called for the purpose of arranging production and regulating shipments, the idea being to shut down on supplies entirely for the present. One concern, however, with considerable stock loaded and ready to ship refused point blank to enter upon the agreement and actually sending the vessels off independently, severed the compact, and caused the disintegration of the combine. Thus relieved of their obligations local sellers promptly commenced forcing matters and there has been a tumble in price on common, through which sales were made at 80c. for Thomastown, and 85c.@90 for Rockland with no recovery noticeable up to the close, though it should be noted that the inside figures were in most cases accepted on held stock only, of which quite an accumulation had piled up in first hand. At the decline some increase of demand was secured and dealers still appear willing to invest in first class fresh arrivals but not over anxious. Lump has not been quite so much depressed and as a rule is still held for $1.20, though we know of business at $1.10 also from held cargoes. St. John lime has become "nominal" since the break, and State stock uncertain, though it is surmised that manufacturers will prefer shutting down to attempt running at the reduction in cost they would have to submit to in order to compete with Eastern on the present basis.

LUMBER.—The local market continues free from exciting or unusual features upon business for either distribution or accumulation, and, indeed, there is very little really new to suggest. Operators disagree sufficiently to carry an impression at times that quite an undertone prevails, but investigation reveals the fact that the differences of opinion are of a minor and somewhat stereotyped character, and an epitome of the wholesale and retail market is that business is seasonable with sellers enabled to preserve sufficient advantage to keep rates pretty steady on all really standard goods. Yard dealers are putting away a little stock, but a considerable portion of the arrival either goes direct into building or manufacturing channels, or is balanced by deliveries from old accumulations already under contract. The export trade is quite uncertain and not altogether promising as other points can now compete for shipping calls with apparently some anxiety to do so in order to make up an average if possible as the season moves along. Advices from abroad are more or less unpromising for the movement of any large amount of stock at the moment.

In the amendments recommended to the McKinley Tariff Bill by Finance Committee in its report to the Senate—

White pine is reduced from $1.50 to $1.00 per thousand feet.

Sawed boards, 20 per cent. instead of 35 per cent.

Eastern spruce is so prime a favorite with a large portion of the consuming trade of this locality that its use will continue as long as cost can be found anywhere within the bounds of reason, while a settling off in price would merely increase the number of buyers. Some of these have been driven off because they simply could not afford to put spruce at this Spring's rates into the work they were doing, and others because they were pretty well prepared to make a contract, and did so for the advantage it would bring them; but the wood has lost no favor in this locality; indeed, has gained in popularity with some consumers who have been trying to use "just as good" substitutes. It is not difficult to secure bids at good round figures as yet, but buyers mostly confine themselves to necessity, and not a few are banking upon the expectation of fuller receipts and lower values later in the season.

Piling remains quite firm on all the standard useful sizes, of which none appear to have been left over for accumulation after perfecting deliveries on contracts. The new demand is somewhat more indifferent and rather smaller, but receivers have no fear of the situation, they say, and seem to think there will be another good flurry of demand from operators looking out for Winter supplies.

Hemlock does not appear to undergo any actual change. Some buyers, and now and then a seller, may be found indulging in complaint, but the one generally wants difficult, or almost impossible specification, or unreasonable delivery, and the other is very apt to be trying to place something for which this market has no use. Standard assortments, it is claimed, can be sold as rapidly as offered, and will command former full rates without difficulty. Both the Pennsylvania and Northern product is sold close to output of all attractive cutting.

White Pine keeps along in quiet an even groove, so far as the general range of price is concerned, but there is a great deal of irregularity in the reports regarding the amount of business accomplished. Agents both local and transient speak quite liberally at times of the orders they are booking, and there is scarcely a doubt that some increase of trade is really secured, but dealers and consumers generally draw down the corner of an eye in a knowing sort of way when any suggestion regarding their anxiety over the situation is made. So far as good use can be seen for the wood it will be taken, but it does not look as though buyers were in any hurry about getting it, except possibly in the way of box boards. These have a demand it is said fully equal to the offering, and command full, but no higher rates.

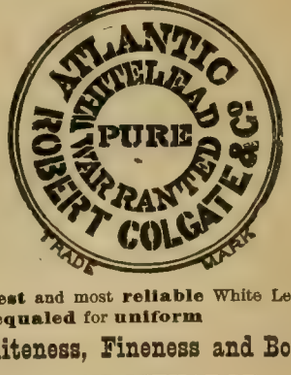
Yellow pine secures a good general demand for consumption and also has attention from dealers not only here but at many other localities coastwise, and the business is keeping up to satisfactory proportions upon that groundwork, and, supported on one side by a good control of supplies, and on the other by a uniform yard rate through the dealers' cooperation, the occasional small irregularities developed by the outside element simply serve as a foil to set off a market showing probably as solid healthy tone as any section of the lumber business. Orders from some interior points received at the mills are said to be far ahead of last year.

Carolina Pine retains good friends, not only on the selling side, where pleasant words would naturally be expected, but among buyers, who are steady and constant in calling for a pretty full supply to keep up assortments against the exhaust made by consumers. Irregularities of price now and then develop, but nothing to cut down the general line of quotations or throw permanent advantage in buyer's favor. Timber sells on catch trade only and at prices to suit the immediate deal under negotiation.

Hard woods are comparatively easy to handle if condition be all right, and, if faulty, they cause more trouble than any other line of stock on the market. Already complaints are to be heard of consignments coming in, entirely out of character for use here on any regular outlet, and with, of course, the full limit of valuation thereon, as though the stuff was of the highest and most attractive grade; and when the final forced sale comes, as come it must, there will be a howl over the poor market here, if even worse accusations do not prevail. When it is intended to consign goods, write to a first class house, ascertain just what is required, and send nothing else, if full rates are expected. Quarter sawed oak, poplar, ash, cherry, and, in fact, all the standard grades, are getting about the usual proportionate attention, either for consumption or the accumulation of stock.

GLASS.—There appears to be nothing new developing upon the general market for window glass, either domestic or foreign. Business is somewhat irregular, and frankly admitted to be falling away by some of the trade, yet that is a seasonable experience, and by no means unexpected. On prices, a firm tone is supported, and there seems to be no likelihood of a change, for the present at least. Home production is rapidly falling off, though it is understood that a few factories have found excuse to ignore the recent agreement, and will run for a couple of weeks longer. Plate glass at the moment is slow, with the movement only jobbing in character, without, however, reducing the strength of the market. Quotations remain at discount 50 and 10 per cent on sizes above 10 square feet and 60 per cent. on smaller sizes.

The amendments to the McKinley Tariff bill as made by the Finance Committee and reported to the Senate has the followieg recommended duties: Unpolished cylinder, crown and window glass not exceeding 10 by 15 inches, ⅜ of a cent per pound; not exceeding 16 by 24 inches, 1⅞ cents per pound; not exceeding 24 by 30 inches, 2¾ cents per pound; above that, 2⅞ cents; plate glass, when ground or obscured, 10 per cent in addition to the rates otherwise chargeable.



PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Business is moving along fairly, but without any special increase of volume or spirit, and in some instances there is an admission of slight dropping off in the number of orders. The recent decline in the price of lead still fails as an incentive to much demand. There is no complaint regarding current cost, but jobbers seem to feel that in view of the contest between corroders in and out of the trust, matters are very unstable, and that it is not altogether good policy to load up with any great amount of stock for the present. Dry colors have more or less jobbing call right along, and there is also a good average deal in colors in oil, with some of the trade reporting that the handling of supplies includes a very satisfactory proportion of house painters specialties. Colorations are running much the same as last advised for the majority of goods with a firmer inclination on Paris green and a downward incline on chalk, the latter being offered, to arrive by sail, it is said at considerably lower rates. Linseed oil is without much change, the line of inquiry proving quite satisfactory, and with back orders still to work upon, crushers feel no doubt over ability to provide for the productions. We quote 60@61c. for Western and 62@64c. for City. Spirits turpentine meets with only an average trade demand, and the local stock has of late accumulated somewhat. Advices from primary points, however, are looked upon as encouraging, and holders are pretty firm at some advance over last week. We quote at 39@40c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—Demand is keeping full enough to exhaust most of the supply as it comes to hand, and maintain a pretty steady sort of market all around, but absence of speculation prevents sellers from forcing advantages. We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.55 per bbl.; Tar at $2.12½@2.30, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

NAILS.—The demand is of a thoroughly natural order and will not hurry or, as a rule, invest beyond early clear cut wants. Supplies have thus far proven full enough, and, while consumption is probably increasing, buyers seem to be in no haste to increase their wants. Considerable effort is being made to keep the production down to narrow limits. We quote at $1.70@1.80 per keg for car lots and $1.85@1.90 per keg for parcels from store.

The Manufacture of Ironwork as an Art.

VISIT TO THE JACKSON ARCHITECTURAL IRON WORKS—GOING THROUGH A FOUNDRY SURROUNDED BY STREAMING METAL—HOW THE MOST DELICATE DESIGNS ARE PRODUCED IN IRON, BRONZE, COPPER AND BRASS—CASTING A THREE-TON COLUMN.

[COMMUNICATED.]

"The liquid ore he drained
Into fit moulds prepared, from which he formed
First his own tools, then what might else be wrought
Fusile or graven in metal."
—Milton's "Paradise Lost."

We live in an era of advancement. Progress is the watchword, and the work of to-day gives way to the invention of to-morrow. Hardly a decade has elapsed since simplicity in ironwork for building purposes was as characteristic as was its commonplace character and its uniformity. But new ideas have come upon us. We are no more satisfied to tread the beaten tracks. Our architects have studied the best examples of architecture in Europe; our designers have learned to draw under masters of the art; and our decorators have given years of labor toward the perfection of their studies. Our people, also, have become wealthy, and with their ability to purchase the best in art, their taste has proportionately improved. Hence, our finer appreciation of the better things in art, and the ever increasing aspiration among us toward the use of more artistic design and workmanship.

To make an application of the expressions contained in the preceding paragraph to the products of the foundry would almost at first sight appear farfetched. But in reality this is not so. Ironwork, which is the principal product of the foundry, is beginning to enter very largely into the building construction of to-day. This is especially the case in New York. Land has become so extremely valuable here, particularly in the lower wards of the city, that architects have been forced to make a study of architectural ironwork so as to be able to economize space in construction—space so valuable to investors and capitalists that it often becomes a question as to whether they shall or shall not improve their properties, the saving of one front foot possibly meaning the difference between a paying and a non-paying venture. This will be realized when it is seen that in Wall street, Pine street, and on lower Broadway and the various streets on the line of that great thoroughfare, property brings such enormous prices. Here every square foot counts.

Thus the efforts of the architect have been directed toward a study of design and construction in ironwork. Beginning on the old lines he felt that the cumbrous metal was hardly an inviting subject for his thought. Whereupon the question presented itself to him—"Why can I not make this black mass attractive to the sight. Its use has become necessary and its utility bids fair to increase with each year. Why can I not do with it what has been done with stone. Why, indeed, can I not make the office building, the store front, the wholesale and retail business house, and even the flat or private house, as attractive where iron-work is used, as though stone, brick or terra-cotta had been used?" Thus arose a new branch of architecture. It has developed to enormous proportions. It has created a new field for the thought, the study and the application of the architect and draughtsman, and it is called "architectural ironwork."

EXTERIOR OF FACTORY OF JACKSON ARCHITECTURAL IRON WORKS.
28TH STREET, EXTENDING THROUGH TO 29TH STREET.

IN THE FOUNDRY.

Did you ever ask yourself how architectural ironwork is produced; how the immense iron columns and girders that are used in the construction of our large office and business buildings were brought into existence, from inception to completion? Have you ever pondered over the thought, the intelligence, the nice workmanship and the painstaking care which is required to produce the thousands of articles in different kinds of metals which we use in our homes, in our offices and in the construction and ornamentation of our business buildings all over the city? If you have not, follow me in this article through the different departments of one of the largest architectural ironworks in the Metropolis, and I think I will be able to interest you, especially if you are a builder, or in any way connected with structural or ornamental work in buildings.

Arriving at the works of the company at Nos. 305 to 323 East 28th street, I was met by one of the managers of the concern. Our first step was to enter the main yard and inspect the "raw material." This comprises stacks of the various brands of pig-iron, thousands of which they have stored, consisting of the standard grades of Low Moor, Thomas and Sloss iron. "By tests made," said the manager, "these vary in ultimate strength from 115,000 to 126,780 pounds per square inch. The average ultimate strength per square inch is over 121,000 pounds.

At a meeting, in February last, of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the eminent analyst, Prof. J B. Johnson, read a paper entitled "Cast-iron-strength—resilience, tests and specifications." This paper has been published, and is a valuable contribution to the literature on the subject. In an addendum to the paper the remarks made in a discussion which followed appear. In this discussion George A. Just, Louis De C. Berg and Prof. Johnson took part. Mr. Just, in the course of his remarks, gave the result of some tests made by him of the cast-iron used by the Jackson Architectural Iron Works. The tests were made on the 150,000 pounds Fairbanks' machine in this city, and they resulted in a showing of an average ultimate strength per square inch of 121,829 pounds; an average ultimate strength of 54,000 pounds per square inch in compression (1x1x8 inches long. Planed ends); and an average ultimate strength per square inch of 17,081 pounds in tensile strength (specimens: one inch square x 16 inches long.

So much for the raw material used by the Jackson Company in their castings. "We have for years made a point," said the manager, "of using the best iron in the market, and we have found that it has paid us to do so."

AROUND THE CUPOLA.

We then entered the room where the cupola is located. Here we found a number of men busy attending to the immense fire which is continually kept at a white heat to melt the raw material. The fire is first started with wood, on which a layer of coal is placed. The next layer is of coke and the next of iron. On top of all this more coke is placed. The whole is fanned by a blower of great power, which is kept going by machinery. The fire is kept at a white heat and fed with the raw iron for hours. The material all melts and flows into an immense receptacle below. Here tons of liquid metal are held captive until the hour for casting arrives. Let us leave the metal for a while, however, and pass on to the other preparative processes.

WROUGHT IRON LANTERN.

THE CORE.

"What is a core?" asked the writer, "and of what is it composed?"

"A core," was the manager's reply, "is an internal mould which occupies the space—the inner part—intended to be left hollow in casting metals. It is composed of sand and flour, and is kneaded into a sort of dough until it assumes the exact design or shape of the hollow space which is to be left in a pipe, a tube, or other casting not of a solid character. We buy 200 or 300 barrels of flour at a time, and boatloads of sand from the seashore, for the purpose of making these cores." I was then shown some of the patterns, many of them being of the most delicate character, and requiring the most skillful treatment.

IN THE MOULDING SHOP.

One of the most important, as well as interesting, of the processes is that seen in the moulding shops. Here scores of moulders are reproducing in sand the models and patterns for the structural and ornamental cast-iron work. This work is beautifully done, and an entire day is sometimes consumed by the moulder and his assistants in modeling a single design. The work is done partly with the fingers and partly with modeling tools.

Vacuities are scooped out with a quick precision that comes with years of practice. When the mould is completed, it is covered with lead facing. Then all particles of dust are blown off with a pair of bellows, so that the molten metal, when poured into the mould, shall come out with the lines clearly and sharply defined, and not show any exterior defects. A dozen men are then summoned, and with great care the finished half of the mould is "let down" on the second half completed, the greatest care being taken that the jointure is perfectly-made to the smallest fraction of an inch. After the flasks have been properly clamped the mould is ready to be "poured."

A VERITABLE HADES.

Casting time has arrived. Tons and tons of white streaming metal are ready to rush forth from the fiery cauldron. The light foundry work is first started, the heavy foundry work next. A man stands, tall and erect, with an immense prong in his hand, ready to push aside the cone of clay that stops up the aperture through which the streaming metal is to flow. He is a Goliath in stature. Scores of men surround him, but he is seen above all the others.

"Let go!" Out flows the liquid metal with a quiet, almost noiseless, thud. The Goliath has released the living mass from bondage and a score of his fellow-workers are ready with ladles, or cauldrons, to catch the iron as it streams forth. The men come forward in sets of two and as each cauldron is filled, others take their place, and all pass on. Showers of burning sparks fly all over the foundry, as each cauldron is taken away and the hot liquid falls to the floor; but only for an instant, as another cauldron immediately takes its place. Now and then a spark dashes on to a man's face. But he must bear the sting without flinching, for a move backward might cause him to upset the ladle and place his life, and the lives of his mates, in danger. Twenty, thirty, forty, fifty cauldrons are filled and the metal carried to the moulding shops, where it is poured into the mouldings through small holes which are left in the moulding sand to receive the metal. The iron is kept flowing until all the mouldings in the light foundry shop are filled. Then the men rest awhile and preparations are made to begin the casting in the heavy foundry. The cauldrons used now are large and cannot be carried by men. They are handled by machinery. One holds three tons of metal, and another two tons. They are filled with blazing iron, and at a given signal they are turned over and emptied into the heavy foundry moulds. Up flies the smoke, the escaping gases flash forth, and the pouring stream of a moment ago is now a shapely mass, formed into the design pictured by the brain and drawn by the fingers of the draughtsman.

SOME OF THE MOULDINGS.

Before the castings were made I ascertained the character of some of the moulds. One was of a column for the new Carnegie Music Hall; another of a column for the new Third avenue horse-car depot. Among the others were mouldings for the steering-gear of a yacht, for a soda-water fountain generator, and for a stair string for the new wing of the Museum of Natural History. This serves to indicate the variety of work turned out in the shops.

THE CHIPPING, CLEANING AND FINISHING SHOPS.

When the castings have cooled down, which generally takes some seven or eight hours, they are taken up and removed to the chipping shops. There they are cleared of all excrescences which may adhere to them. Rough edges are smoothed and protruding particles are chipped off. If necessary, the castings are turned into the lathe, so that the edges may be beautifully smoothed. They are then ready for the finishers' work, when they are completed for painting, after which they are ready for delivery.

OTHER DEPARTMENTS.

We then passed through several other departments. There is the heavy blacksmith shop, where large forgings are made, and where shears, punches, drill and trip-hammers are at work, and where holes are punched into iron an inch or two in thickness. Then there is the ornamental wrought-iron department, the brass and bronze foundry, the cleaning and finishing rooms for brass and bronze work, the plating and japanning rooms, and the pattern shops, as well as the draughting room, where a number of expert draughtsmen and architects, as well as competent engineers, are continually at work. In these rooms I noticed a design for some ornamental wrought-iron work which is to be placed in the Women's Lodging House now being built by Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard; for the gates to be placed in the new gate-house for the Aqueduct; a counter rail for the Union Trust Company's banking room; an ornamental rail and screen for Kidder, Peabody & Co's office, and a very handsome griffin which is to form part of an imposing gateway leading to the Newport residence of Ogden Goelet. This gate has been designed by R. M. Hunt and is one of the handsomest pieces of work in metal ever produced in this country. The company also has a beam yard on 31st street, near the East river, where they occupy fourteen lots. Here they have an immense stock of iron and steel beams, angle iron, channels, etc., and where they have adequate space for laying out and fitting work of the largest structural character.

WROUGHT IRON CANDELABRA.

WROUGHT IRON GRILLE.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE WORKERS.

Over 500 men are employed by the company. The blacksmiths are largely Swedes, Germans and Irish. The ornamental work is done mostly by Germans, with a sprinkling of Frenchmen. In the pattern shop, Englishmen, Scotchmen and Americans are found. Some of the men have saved enough money to own their own houses. One of the workmen has been with the firm for thirty years and is said to have accumulated more than $20,000. I saw him as he left work a few days ago, and although getting old he is evidently good for some years yet. The wages earned by some of the men are nearly double what an ordinary clerk receives, and they have opportunities of working overtime on extra pay. They have steady work.

SOME OF THE COMPANY'S WORK.

The vast amount of structural and ornamental iron, brass and bronze work turned out by the company, since they were established over half a century ago, would fill a good sized book. Among the buildings on which they received the contracts were the following: The State, War and Navy Department Building, Washington, D. C.; the New York Mercantile Exchange; Puck Building; Bloomingdale Bros.; E. Ridley & Sons, and Young Men's Christian Association, Harlem; the Universal, Brooklyn; the New York Catholic Protectory, Westchester, N. Y.; the Potter Building; Smith, Gray & Co., Brooklyn; Excelsior Steam Power Co.; the Loeser Building; the Tower Building; the Market and Fulton National Bank; the Cohnfeld Building; Amberg's Theatre; the Progress Club; the American Museum of Natural History; the Rouss and Lincoln Buildings; the Washington Bridge (ornamental iron and bronze work); the New Criminal Court Building; the 3d Avenue Railroad Co's. new car stables and the Schermerhorn Building on Broadway and 4th st, George B. Post, architect.

The manufacture of ironwork as an art has come to stay. Only those who have seen the splendid work turned out by the foundry can realize to what a height of excellence it has been brought. If this article will have given a fair idea of the processes of manufacture, and of the character of the work produced, I shall have achieved the object with which I set out to pen these lines.

We are enabled to turn out first-class work in every branch of the business with the least possible delay. With the large force of skilled mechanics in our employ we are prepared to begin operations on any kind of buildings from one hour to a day's notice, if required.

We have no particular specialties but our long experience, aided by the best journeymen obtainable. We do all kinds of work, from the excavating to the most elaborate decorations.

New Buildings.

CHURCHES, SCHOOLHOUSES, HOTELS, PUBLIC BUILDINGS, STORES, PRIVATE DWELLINGS, FLATS, FACTORIES, STOREHOUSES, STABLES, AND IN FACT ANY KIND OF BUILDINGS OF THE MOST ARTISTIC DESIGNS ARE CONSTRUCTED BY US.

Mason Work.

New foundations built under old buildings and foundations sunk deeper. Front, rear or any portion of a building taken out or rebuilt. Put in Girders, Columns, Posts, etc. Elevator Shafts, Engine Beds, Pointing and Cementing Walls. Boilers and Stills of every make set. Areas, Area Steps and Chimneys repaired. Mason work of all kinds in connection with buildings. Factories, Chimneys, Steeples, or where high and difficult scaffolding is required, built, repaired or taken down. Repair to Buildings Damaged by Fire.

Buildings damaged by fire or water repaired, remodeled, etc. We give no inconvenience or annoyances experienced by Owners, Architects and Insurance Companies. There is a saving for owners on these jobs by having the work rushed through so that tenants may go under rent, or if it is their own place of business the sooner it is completed the sooner their business will be in operation. Fire work from Owners, Architects and Insurance Companies respectfully solicited.

Stonecutting.

Brown, blue, granite or any kind of stone repaired, etc. Fronts repaired, remodeled or cleaned. Old fronts redressed; resetting of stoops and all defaced work Stones and tiles of vestibules and halls. Marble mantels repaired and reset. Stonework of every description. Designs executed in a most careful manner.

Plastering.

Plain and ornamental plastering. Molded ceiling brackets. Cornices and centres repaired, or if necessary new pieces molded. We do our own plaster casting and consequently can afford to make molds of any shape or form at a comparatively small figure. Repairing of walls and ceilings; patching of every description. Plastering in Churches, Halls, Theatres, or places where high and difficult scaffolding is needed. Fronts plastered and blocked in imitation of stone. Old stucco fronts repaired. New work and repairs of every description promptly attended to.

Offices and stores of every description fitted up. Alterations, repairs and designs executed with promptness. By doing all the different branches it dispenses with a great deal of inconvenience to both architects and owners, and many times averts conflicts among different contractors. During our many years' experience we have built a great number of buildings of every description and design. Our work is to be done in all the principal thoroughfares of the city. We guarantee absolute satisfaction in our work, and have testimonials from many of our leading citizens.

VOL. XLV. JUNE 28, 1890. No. 1,163

The stock market of the past week has been remarkable neither for activity nor for advances, and the general feeling in Wall street is certainly not bullish. Yet there can be little doubt but that the theoretical conditions which have acted to cause this depressed feeling have had an effect entirely out of proportion to their significance. The decision of the Court of Appeals in the matter of the sugar trust should be rather a matter for congratulation than for sorrow. It affects only the form which the combination will take. There will be no confiscation of property, and the ultimate result will probably be a reorganization into a corporation, after the manner of the erstwhile cotton oil trust, a change that will certainly be to the advantage of Wall street, for in place of an unlimited amount of certificates of uncertain value there will be substituted a limited number of shares of a calculable value. In the matter of silver legislation, also, Wall street has nothing to fear. When the Senate is assured that the House will not pass the free-coinage bill, it will agree to a compromise measure, such as the Street has counted on for the past three months. Even the extremists will understand that half a loaf is better than no loaf at all; and an increase in the coinage of silver means, if it means anything, an increase in prices. Neither is there anything alarming in that bug-bear—the gold exports. Thus far this year we have lost little if any net amount of gold, whereas during the same period in 1889 there were net exports of the metal amounting to fully $30,000,000. The large outflow last year did not seriously injure the market, and any one who sells stocks on the strength of the shipments during the last few weeks is alarming himself at a shadow. Money is plentiful enough, and the July disbursements will make it the more so. The labor troubles, also, though serious, are fortunately local, and will or should have no effect on the general market. In short, there seems to be no good reason for depression, and those who are willing to wait need not fear the outlook.

The report of the Rapid Transit Commissioners will not, we believe, directly result in anything. Orlando B. Potter has said, in an interview, that it was not likely that any corporation would be found which would build an expensive sub-surface road, from the City Hall to 42d street, without some positive assurance that the laws would be so modified that both a northern and a southern extension could be operated in connection with it; and this seems to be the common-sense view of the matter. In other words, so far as any immediate action is concerned, the solution of the problem remains just where the last Legislature left it, viz., in the hands of the next Legislature. But although it is not probable that we shall accomplish anything until the Republicans at Albany can reconcile the passage of some bill with their political interests, still we are inclined to think that the atmosphere has been so cleared that the public and the press will both be forced into seeing things more as they really are. For instance, the Sun said, on Monday last:

> The report of the very able Commission appointed by Mayor Grant to consider the problem of rapid transit clearly demonstrates one fact, and this fact is that the proprietors of the existing elevated lines hold the key to the question, and possess a virtual monopoly of swift urban transportation in this city. They own the most available central routes, and what is equally important, if not more so, the one important terminus at the southern end of Manhattan Island; and they have fixed a rate of fare for the entire length of the city, which any new company must adopt, and which is so low that no line that is very costly to build or to operate, can be sure of living on it.

This is true so far as it goes; but it is not the whole truth. Just as it would be the height of absurdity to ignore the elevated railroads in settling the question of transit facilities for the next quarter of a century, so it would be equally absurd to ignore the Vanderbilt interest. Every intelligent man or body of men that have considered the problem have come to the conclusion that some arrangement seems feasible. The recommendations of the Commissioners advise it; and even the most rabid of the anti-corporation newspapers have passed the suggestion without making it an occasion for their ordinary shibboleth. The New York Central will not stand in the way of an arrangement, which will give it an enormous increase in traffic, even if accompanied by a considerable increase of expense. More difficult in all probability, will be the settlement with the Manhattan Company; but it is just as necessary if not more so, as one with the New York Central. Luckily, however, we shall not have to wait all improvement until next spring. Two street railroads will take immediate advantage of the recent decision of the Court of Appeals, which absolves our surface railroads from the necessity of applying to the city authorities when they wish to change their motive power, and it is most probable that others will follow this good example. Another improvement which will doubtless help matters considerably, and which should be operated in connection with any new rapid transit route, is the Long Island Railroad tunnel. When Austin Corbin resigned the presidency of Reading, it was given out that he wished to devote his time and energy to the forwarding of this project. This may be a charitable view to take of the resignation, but such is the importance of the tunnel to the Long Island Railroad Company that we may well believe that Mr. Corbin will find some means of getting the permission of our city fathers, who, though they frequently exhibit an almost school-girlish coquettishness in dealing with corporations, generally end by being lavish of their favors. If all these projects come to a happy consummation; if the New York Central is given an outlet to the Battery; if the system is combined with that of the Manhattan Elevated Roads and with the Long Island tunnel; if our surface roads forswear the lumbering horse for a less antiquated and more expeditious motive power, then may New Yorkers be able to get out and around their city with some convenience and more celerity.

Two Political Scarecrows.

Out of the demagogy and insanities of the interminable, vexatious, fruitless tariff discussion have issued into the practical, every-day world two political scarecrows, as ragged as any that ever kept watch over cornfields. One is the Laborer, the handiwork of Protectionists, figured usually broadchested, muscular, sober-faced, sunburnt; laboring with simplicity, cheerfulness and steadfastness to maintain a little home of almost Arcadian charm and purity, perpetually filled with sunlight and infants. His domestic occupation is chiefly singing psalms and rearing a rising generation in the fear of God. This scarecrow, say the Protectionists, is the Stay of the Nation. The other scarecrow comes quite as lifelike from the hands of Free Traders, Tariff Reformers and others that hold extreme or latitudinarian views concerning the economic sanitity of Protection. This scarecrow is labeled the Farmer. It is tall and thin, dressed usually in an old straw hat, red shirt and such shoddy clothes as very humble means can procure this side of a hundred per cent. tariff. But there is no life of Arcadian simplicity and cheerfulness here!

This Free Trade scarecrow sows, toils, starves, and at the utmost succeeds only in supporting a mortgage. The principal role of this Farmer is not as an Agriculturist, but as a Victim: he is the despoiled of monopolies and manufacturers. He is withal a hero, this leathern-skinned, half starved political figment, for he supports unaided by tariff the brunt of a universal competition against pauper labor.

Embodiments of typical conceptions, images of generalities, produce as a rule much false thinking and mischievous action among the multitude. They influence public thought, and become the centres of prejudices, because it is never long before they come to be regarded almost as real existences, or at least as representative of all that can be related to them, whereas they are at best typical only of a great many parts never conjoined in fact. Probably, if all the people of this country were searched, ample elements could be found to construct Brother Jonathan; but the untraveled European expecting to find the chief characteristics of Brother Jonathan in every American is deceived, exactly as people are who imagine the Protectionists' Laborer and the Free Traders' Farmer are more than very inaccurate generalities.

It would be a fortunate occurrence if the straw were knocked out of these two scarecrows. The American Laborer of the Protectionist does not exist. His Arcadian home is not to be found in the smoky purlieus of Pittsburgh, nor in the tenement house sections of this or any other large city. Equally true is it, the Free Traders, mortgage-bound farmer is a figment. The presumptive evidence alone against his existence is overwhelming, and should have crushed him in any attempt to rise above it. The prosperity of this country, the great increase in wealth, population and foreign trade, is largely due to agriculture. Year by year the plough enlarges its domain and additional noughts are put by statisticians to the numerical expression of its products. Yet, we are told the farmer's condition yearly becomes more lamentable and his financial existence more completely a matter of mortgage. That his complaint about hard times, competition, low prices, continues, now emphasizing one note and now another, no doubt is true. But in this respect his case is not so different from that of the manufacturer, mechanic or professional man, and is no more deserving than theirs of special attention. Indeed, it would not be a difficult task to show that the condition of the farmer, relatively at any rate, is fortunate. The average farmer could not, save with outrageous flattery, be ranked very high in the army of skilled labor. Many will no doubt assert that his is not, strictly speaking, skilled labor at all, and that he is not entitled to receive in the division of wealth anything like what the carpenter, the glass-blower, the cotton-spinner, the iron-worker should. Yet visit him. As a rule he lives in an ample and moderately comfortable house. His surroundings are pleasant. It may be his palate cares little for the kind of food supplied by the farm and dairy, preferring rather Bowery steak and lager; nevertheless he has plenty to eat that is wholesome, and with sufficient fire and intelligence, could be made palatable. His hours of labor it is true are long in summer, but he does not work at a very high pressure, and during perhaps four months of the year he can take life positively leisurely. His occupation is eminently ancient and respectable, and in it, with thought and diligence, his chances of supporting himself comfortably are as good as in any other industry, even wherein higher intellectual power, better education, longer preparation and larger capital are necessary. There is no reason for thinking that every farmer who misses becoming a millionaire is a failure. He deserves a comfortable living attendant upon much hard work, as in the case of the majority of mankind, and let no mistake be made, he usually gets it. As to the Free Traders' Farmer, however, that scarecrow, with the Protectionists' Laborer, should be tied together and utterly destroyed, with the humbug, demagogy and buncombe that gave them existence.

We cannot but think that the effect of the McCann testimony, and the subsequent denials of much thereof, will be most unfortunate. The various assertions of Patrick McCann were specific enough in the first place; and had they been corroborated, must have caused the political death of Grant and Croker. But they were not corroborated. Most of them have been denied by the various people concerned therein; and those that were admitted were so speciously explained that many people, who are not used to the weighing of evidence, will think that they have been explained away. Messrs. Croker and Grant will then occupy the position of public men who have been falsely accused; they can pose as injured innocents; they can claim sympathy for themselves; they can call down righteous wrath on their accusers. And even if they do not go into heroics over the matter, there are doubtless many men in the city who will think it the part of fair play to support these falsely accused officials. Thus the real quarrel of the friends of good government with these gentry will be obscured; they will find adherents, not for what they have done, but for what their enemies have done or failed to do. And it is just this real quarrel which it is of the greatest necessity to keep before the public; because they are in constant danger of forgetting it. We believe Hugh J. Grant to be as honest as most men. When he appropriated the fees that he did in the Sheriff's office he probably thought he was taking only his due. The judgment of a man who could think so was certainly warped; but it was warped by all the influences which surrounded his political life. He has been a politician among politicans. A little wealthier than his associates, and he was consequently more likely to find opportunities to occupy positions of responsibility. And it is as a politician among politicians that he should be attacked. It is in so far as he represents a system that he should be condemned. If there is one thing that experience has proved, it is that efficient administration of public office is impossible so long as the appointees thereto are chosen not for their business or technical qualifications, but for their partisan services. It is not that such men are necessarily dishonest, it is not even that they are always inefficient and neglectful; it is because they are selected for reasons that give no guarantee as to their qualifications. It at once becomes a matter of chance whether they are or are not suited to their positions; and when we consider the wonderful amount of knowledge and the kind of faculties that are essential for the satisfactory administration of a city department, with its enormous expenditures, its great variety of work, and the constant necessity for changes in methods suited to changes in conditions, we need not wonder that we are so badly off as we are. War unceasing and uncompromising should be declared against this system, for no improvement can come until it is overthrown.

One of the worst characteristics of these political appointees is that they lack the ability to forsee possible troubles, and the knowledge to provide satisfactory cures. Your man with ordinary common sense—let us give Tammany politicians credit for so much intelligence—may be quite adequate for routine work. He will get to his office prompt and early; he will find matters A, B and C to be attended to; he will remember how matters A, B and C were managed yesterday, or he will inquire how his predecessor managed them last year. Then he will go and do likewise; and so he will continue in his official career, doing as other people have done, or as he himself has done before, wondering perhaps all the time why the iniquitous press finds fault with the result. Now, this is the kind of ability which is excellent in a thousand dollar a year clerk. What we require in such a functionary is regularity and accuracy; we do not require that he should see farther than his nose, provided his sight is so far correct. But such are not the qualifications for the administrator of an enormous office with immense responsibilities. We will pardon his non-arrival until 12 o'clock, provided he comes to the office teeming with suggestion. Like Chauncey Depew, he may absent himself in Europe, in Chicago, in Kalamazoo; if only when he is present he puts life into every department of his office, makes economies here, reforms methods there, devises new means to meet new ends, forsees complications, is always dissatisfied, and never lets any one beside himself be idle. He need not go so far as the man

> Who was so well aware how things should be done,
> He is displeased with his work before it's begun.

but he should be intellectual activity personified, with a suggestion for every underling in his office and the largest knowledge of its functions and possibilities. At present not a single office in the city is administered on such a plan. If there is danger of death from electric wires, our officials wait until two or three people are killed before taking effective steps to remedy the matter; if there is danger of explosions from steam heating pipes, they always wait until the pipes explode. It is obviously necessary that with all the various pipes under our streets, that some central conduit should be built which would accommodate every one of them and which would permit of their satisfactory inspection. Authorization for such a conduit would have to be obtained from the Legislature, but none of our officials even have suggested or worked for a reform which is of the utmost necessity and which is sanctioned by experience in other cities, and they will keep on ignoring it until the state of our streets becomes unbearable to them, even as it is to most of us. In short, instead of being forever active for improvement, they forever resist it. What wonder, then, that we should wish for men who know something beyond the rule of thumb to govern us.

The Madison Square Garden.

The new Madison Square Garden has been the lion of a week or two and a very impressive lion it is. The interior is simply and structurally treated, without any architectural effect that is noteworthy, except that the treatment does justice to the great spaciousness of the place. This is in itself more impressive than could be any aggregation of ingenious or beautiful detail, of which there is none.

It is the outside that we have to consider, and here also the best result of architectural treatment would have been to give effect to the dimensions of the building and to enhance them as much as might be. A building four hundred feet by two hundred, and completely detached on all sides is such a rarity in New York that it cannot be made unimpressive by any architectural frittering of it away, while its apparent dimensions may be greatly enhanced by architectural skill. In the Madison Square Garden it has not been frittered away, nor, on the other hand, has it been made the utmost of. It is the long sides that are most impressive, of course, by dint of their length, and in these much might properly have been sacrificed to the development and emphasis of length. Strong and continuous horizontal lines with a slurring or an effacement of the vertical lines were indicated by the conditions of the structure. This leading point of treatment has been well brought out in the Produce Exchange, where the heavy cornices and the range of openings give an effect that everybody feels and recognizes as impressive, in spite of many shortcomings of design and of detail. It is worth while to make some sacrifice of the expression of the interior structure to attain such a result. Now the Produce Exchange is very much shorter, we believe, than the north and south sides of the Madison Square Garden, but its length is very much more impressive. In the latter work the capital mistake is made of dividing the long sides into bays of four openings each. These bays are easily numerable by the eye, while if the piers that formed them had been omitted and the openings equally spaced, the uniformity of these would have produced an arcade to the eye interminable and with only moderate detail would have been a very grand feature. One excellent point of design there is, and that is the extraordinary breadth of the corner piers throughout. Their dimensions are such that they seem effectually to abut the long wall and to anchor the building. Their crowning members which extend above the level of the parapet are of questionable design. They are, as it were, pinnacles to the buttresses formed by the massive piers, and they are in form belvederes, square with pilasters at the angles. They are perhaps adopted from similar specimens in the Renaissance of Spanish America, but they are more strongly suggestive of the meeting-house architecture of New England, and are trivial and illiterate in effect.

The main shortcoming of these long sides is the division into bays, and the absence of sufficiently pronounced horizontal member. There is a heavy decorated cornice above the basement, and the main cornice is heavy and continuous. But these are in a creamy white terra-cotta, lighter than the pinkish brick of which the walls are built, and their weakness of color prevents them from having the effect they might derive from their form and size if the color had been more emphatic. Color also aggravates another defect in these walls, the absence of an evident and realized thickness of wall. The walls by no means look so massive as they ought to look, and their paleness has much to do with this comparative thinness. The Metropolitan Opera House is a conspicuous example how much more depth a wall needs, or how more vigorously its openings ought to be modeled when it is in a very light material. What will do in red brick will not do in buff. Very few of our designers, if any, have shown in their work that they are aware of this important truth. Certainly it does not appear in the Madison Square Garden. As a matter of fact the modelling would not give the effect of vigor in any material, and it is weaker in this than it would be in almost any other. Indeed the somewhat feeble elegance of the ornament throughout, though perhaps appropriate to the purpose of the building, is not appropriate to its dimensions. Filagree is scarcely the proper decoration for such vast and massive walls.

The Madison avenue front is decidedly the best piece of design in the building, and is a noteworthy addition to our street architecture. It is flanked by the powerful piers already described, and between each of these and the central pavillion is an intermediate bay of three openings, slim and round arched in the principal story. The central pavillion is by far the richest thing in the building. Pairs of Ionic columns support the round arch in the basement, which is the main entrance. In the principal story over the entrance is a slim arch framed in polished marble, and again, outside of this, in terra cotta, with a riotous profusion of Rococo decoration. At the sides are niches with a general eruption of ornament, and above a panel with the date of erection surrounded by further riotous demonstrations. Above the whole front is to run a light colonnade. The detail of this is happy-go-lucky, and is not worth serious consideration. But the general effect of the front is extremely sumptuous, festal and amusing, and a thing to thank the architect for.

There is not much use in talking about the Giralda which the architects proposed to transplant from Seville and culminate their building withal, since it is unlikely their practical clients will permit them to erect that monument.

The Citizens' movement has reached another stage of development; a nominating committee has been appointed, so now practically nothing remains to be done but try to elect the candidate selected by the committee. It's a pity, ought else however cannot be said truthfully, this Citizen's party strongly suggests the resurrection of the Three Tailors of Tooley street in clerical garb. It is not "popular" in any sense, though the resolutions read well enough. About the movement there hangs the air of an attempt. The enthusiasm that ought to be there is not there. Vivacity, pulse, that momentum energy and swing is lacking, that must exist if the "public"—that inert mass—are to be carried along and the movement is to be something more than an essay in "parlor politics." We greatly fear that when the day of trial comes, Dr. Newton, his fellow ecclesiastics and lay supporters, will be like the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel, who cried in the name of their gods for fire out of heaven, and were discredited before the people. The Moral Sentiment of the community which the party is relying on will not be there to help them; neither, as we have already said, will they gain much from the new ballot system. "Practical politics," it's dirty methods and common ideals, far more in accordance with the average moral tone of the community, will carry the day overwhelmingly as in the past. It is only the Right, however, that can undertake a waiting game, and though immediate success or any measure of success is not to be expected, the Citizen's party can with equanimity bide their time if they are resolute in intention to be ceaselessly energetic and vigilant, regardless of political seasons and the coming and passing of election campaigns. The education of the people is slow work; but after all that is what has to be undertaken. "Our first duty," said Heine, "is to become healthy." On these lines the Reform party must work, patiently and with hope. They must liberate decent people from their present abject slavery to "party." They must set up as it were in the highways, the distorted image of government as it exists in this city. At the same time they must preach and work for their ideal; but before all things they must work for it.

Americans as Legislators.

A recent syndicate letter by the genial philanthropist and author, Edward Everett Hale, begins with the statement that "the instinct for legislation of the American people has been one of its most remarkable characteristics in history." The whole tenor of the article reminds one of the no longer fashionable flattery once bestowed upon the "American people," and which Sir Henry Maine likened to the inflated phrases of Oriental courtiers:—"'O, King, live forever,' was the ordinary formula of beginning an address to the Babylonian or Median king, drunk or sober. 'Your ascent to power proceeded as uniformly and majestically as the laws of being and was as certain as the decrees of eternity,' says Mr. Bancroft to the American people."

Certainly the strong point in our American government is not administration, but latterly there have been signs that even in the department of legislation our hand has been loosing its cunning. Dr. Hale speaks admiringly of the New England town meeting and commends it yet again to the attention of all interested in good government and the training of good citizens. Valuable as we may concede the town meeting style of democracy to have been we hardly see how it can be adapted to the migratory urban communities of the present time, where neighbors do not know each other, and where centralized city government is essential. If our "remarkable genius for legislation" of which Senator Hoar and others have said so much is still in existence, it ought to guide us to some satisfactory means of enacting laws for the government of cities; but just here is the point where our "genius" has, as yet, proved inadequate to the work that needs doing. Formerly the most powerful branch of a city government in this country was the legislative branch. The town council, made up of one or two chambers, had the practical direction of the affairs of the city. As evils grew out of the exercise of the extensive powers granted to municipal legislatures we found no better device for reforming these bodies than that of emasculating them. Function after function has been taken from them and given to the Mayor, or some commission, or reserved to the Legislature of the State.

This mode of treatment has been likened to the continual bloodletting of the old school of medicine. That it has not resulted in a a cure of the political evils from which we suffered is demonstratable. At one time about the only power of any importance that was left to the New York Board of Aldermen was the power of granting franchises to private companies. The law, as all remember, said that a street-car franchise might be put up at public auction and sold to the highest bidder; but instead of doing this a majority of the Board put themselves up at public auction and sold out to the Broadway company. Persevering in the original method of treatment, the reformers of city government now wish to take the remaining scraps of power from the city legislature. It is to be wished that our "genius for legislation" would assert itself, and conduct us to a conclusion in which something might be concluded.

The same tendencies that bring about the practical abolition of municipal legislatures seem likely to bring about an effectual fettering of State legislatures. All of the newer States have adopted long constitutions with circumstantial regulation of matters formerly left to the legislative branch of the State government. Distrust of the wisdom and honesty of the State deliberative assemblies does not exhaust itself in making two Houses that are practically, in the western States, mere duplicates of each other, or providing minute regulations as to the methods in which bills shall be considered, or in giving to the governor the power of veto; but besides all these restrictions the people see fit to take an increasing number of important subjects entirely out of the sphere of legislative action. The constitution of North Dakota is expanded with provisions in the nature of mere statutory enactments, so that the instrument reaches the great length of more than 28,500 words. It locates in detail the State public institutions, thirteen in number; it contains an enactment against trusts and combinations; prohibits child labor; and provides that public schools shall instruct in those branches of knowledge which tend to impress upon the mind the vital importance of truthfulness, temperance, purity, public spirit and respect for honest labor of every kind.

The tendency to sermonize may not be as strong in all States as in North Dakota, but the tendency to fetter legislatures is very general. The clamor for the adoption of prohibitory amendments, even in States where the sentiment in favor of prohibition is overwhelming and persistent, shows that the people will not trust their representatives to enforce their will by "appropriate legislation," unless that will has been embodied in some mandate which it is impossible for the legislature to ignore.

Limitations upon the borrowing power of the State and local governments are now the rule; and the public finds itself incompetent to undertake industrial enterprises without the intervention of private corporations, because it has tied itself hand and foot through distrust of its own legislatures. But State legislatures show no more tendency to improve in proportion as they are fettered than was shown by the municipal legislatures under similar treatment. As their power is lessened so is their responsibility, and chronic distrust of them operates to increase the failings that begot it. Some more scientific treatment than perpetual bloodletting is required.

The Important Sales of the Season.

A FURTHER LIST OF PARCELS TRANSFERRED FOR ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS AND UPWARD DURING THE SEASON OF 1889-90.

Last week the RECORD AND GUIDE gave an interesting resume of many of the principal parcels of property which had been transferred during the fall, winter and spring of the season which is about closing. This week the list is resumed, the large number of such parcels making it impossible for them to be treated in one article consistent with the space at our command.

In the numerous properties referred to in this article, combined with those mentioned last week, the real estate student as well as the broker, investor and dealer, will find much useful information. Values change so rapidly in these days in some sections, and the process of equalization between section and section is so swift, comparatively, that it requires a close attention to the sales in order to keep posted as to the market prices. We see this strongly illustrated in that section of the Fifteenth Ward, west of Broadway, between Houston street and Washington square, where prices have advanced only within a year or two from twenty to forty per cent. and in some instances even more.

In our last week's article we gave a list of many important parcels of property which changed hands in various wards of the city south of 59th street. In this article we will resume that list, and in addition show to what extent large investments have been made in properties north of 59th street.

It will be noticed how numerous are the parcels sold in the great wholesale business district, especially in the improving section of the Fifteenth Ward referred to above. Among the parcels transferred will be noticed the properties of the Stewart estate, which comprised the largest block of conveyances during the season. These cannot, however, be classed as sales, for they were simply transfers to the heirs of that estate. It should be added that the principal properties which changed hands in the neighborhood of Wall street and on lower Broadway south of the City Hall, were enlarged upon last week, and therefore do not appear in this article. To gather a complete list of the parcels transferred for $100,000 and upward during the season of 1889-90 both articles must be perused.

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

Continuing the list of properties transferred, as described in last week's article, we find that No. 510 Broadway, near Spring street, a five-story stone building, on a lot 25x100, was sold to Charles A. Bandouine for $125,000. No. 535, a similar building on a lot of the same size, on the west side of Broadway, nearly opposite 510, was purchased by Olivia E. P. Stokes for $10,000 less, namely $115,000. Nos. 594 and 596 Broadway, including No. 130 Crosby street, a five-story store building, was sold to W. G. Weld of Newport, and W. F. Weld of Philadelphia, for $325,000 with a mortgage thereon of $155,000. Pelham St. George Bissell, the broker, bought the buildings at Nos. 693 to 697 Broadway, on the southwest corner of 4th street, for $480,000, giving a mortgage of $415,000 on the property, the sellers taking in exchange the residence No. 811 5th avenue, near 62d street, at $100,000, with a mortgage thereon of $60.000. Nos. 726 to 730 Broadway and 31 to 39 Lafayette place, running through, were transferred by the Stewart estate to Henry Hilton. The property comprises a parcel formerly owned by the Church of the Messiah, the present site of an exhibition building, as well as the Colonnade Hotel, and five three-story houses. The price paid was $465,000, the deed being dated March 1, 1881, and recorded December, 1889. And here it may be of interest to note the transfer of the Stewart properties to the heirs, by authority vested under the will of the late Mrs. Stewart. They comprise the Park Avenue Hotel; the Grand Union Hotel, Saratoga; the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, L. I.; the Stewart and Denning buildings on Broadway; the Colonnade Hotel; eleven mills in various parts of New York State; the mansion on 5th avenue and 34th street, and scores of other properties on many of the principal down-town streets. A number of these parcels were offered on the Real Estate Exchange in March last, but as they were nearly all leaseholds, the buyers were limited in number, leasehold realty not being a favorite form of investment. The largest price obtained for one of these parcels was for the Denning building, which was knocked down to Albert B. Hilton at $70,000. It is rented at $125,000 per annum, has an annual ground rent of $36,000, and the lease expires May 1, 1911, without a renewal.

Among other down-town parcels sold were the two five-story office buildings, Nos. 32 and 34 Spruce street, near William, by J. B. Andrews, of Mentone, France, to Adolph Scheftel, the leather dealer, who has his place opposite at No. 31. The price paid was $105,000. The northwest corner of Washington and Vesey streets, four four-story brick stores, was sold in partition to Em. Einstein for $140,000. Nos. 96 to 102 Reade street, near West Broadway, with two five-story stone front warehouses on a lot covering 6,080 square feet, was purchased by David L. Einstein from the Stewart estate for $170,000. Geo. F. Betts bought Nos. 75 and 77 Duane street, 44.3x75, with a five-story iron front building for $100,000, and Chas. S. Sentell acquired Nos. 79 and 81 Duane street, adjoining, 40.9x75, for $90,000. No. 50 Rose street, east of Duane, and the property adjoining, 102.7x79.1, to Chambers street, x 118.4x139.5, was sold to John Hevzer, of Newark, N. J., for $200,000, a mortgage of $70,000 remaining. On Worth street, Nos. 100 and 102, 50.1 x about 80, with a six-story iron front store, sold to Cornelia Wadsworth for $200,000, which is considered a very good figure. The Kingsland estate sold Nos. 51 and 53 White street, 39x99.9, and a five-story iron front store to John Downey, the builder, for $130,000, while Andrew J. Soher paid $120,000 for the five-story stone front factories at Nos. 13 and 15 Lispenard street, taking in exchange the Massasoit flat at No. 118 West 129th street, at $120,000. Nos. 9 to 13 Walker street was transferred to B. S. Levy, at $230,000, an advance of $5,000 over the last sale, a short time previous.

On Broome street, Nos. 419 and 421, a five-story store, east of Crosby, sold, under foreclosure, to Jane E. Johnson, for $143,000. This was on January 6th. On February 28th the same property was sold for $200,000 to John E. K. Greene, of Malone, N. Y., an advance in fifty-three days of $57,000. On Bleecker street, Nos. 92 to 96, running to and including Nos. 199 and 201 Mercer street, southwest corner, 72x129, with one five-story and three four-story stores, were sold on February 8th by the Stewart estate to Ad. Boskowitz, the fur dealer, for $140,000. Twenty-four days later Mr. Boskowitz transferred the property to Rachel Cohnfeld for $240,000, with mortgages thereon for $175,000. Nos. 98 and 100 Bleecker and No. 197 Mercer sold to John E. Parsons and Harriet V. Ogden for $200,000, a mortgage of $160,000 being given by the purchasers.

Several Prince street properties changed hands. Nos. 112 and 114, 40x75, with a six-story iron front building, sold in March last to Chas. F. Havemeyer, one of the sugar-syndicate family, for $127,500. Mr. Havemeyer has been a large investor in realty during the past year. No 113 Prince street, 25x95, No. 115, 25x95, and Nos. 119 and 121, 50x95, with a five-story factory, stables, etc., thereon, were sold to James H. Havens on December 2d last, for $127,500, who gave in part in exchange No. 408 West 19th street, a flat, for $35,000. This gentleman turned around on April 29th, hardly four months later, and sold half of this property—Nos. 119 and 121, containing the stables, etc.—for $120,000, to Madeline Pierce, taking back a mortgage for $98,500. This is certainly an extraordinary advance in so short a time. On Crosby street, Nos. 145 to 149, including Nos. 24 to 32 East Houston street, northeast corner, a six-story store on 6,618 square feet of ground, sold to Charles F. Havemeyer for $225,000, a mortgage of $180,000 remaining thereon.

Greene street has also had its quota of activity. Nos. 62 and 64, near Broome, 50x100, and a five-story store, went to Norman Henderson, for $152,500; No. 105, a five-story iron front factory 37.6x100 to Cornelia Wadsworth, for $115,000; a six-story iron front factory, 50x100, at Nos. 121 and 123, near Prince, to S. M. Swartz, the clothing merchant, in March last, for $164,000, Nos. 132 and 134, a similar building, on a lot averaging 38.2x100.4, selling for $133,000.

On Waverley Place there has been greater activity than in any similar period for a generation past. In addition to the properties mentioned last week, Nos. 7 and 9, with three and four-story buildings thereon, covering a lot 50x108, were sold in December to Jacob Hirsh, for $115,000, who, within a few months, transferred the property to John Kehoe and Patrick Gallagher for $145,000. Nos. 15 and 23, northeast corner of Greene street, 142.6x132.11, with six three-story dwellings, were bought by Jere. C. Lyons, the builder, from Leo. Schlesinger, on May 9, for $362,000, of which $250,000 was left on mortgage. The property is to be improved with a large business building. No. 23 Waverly place and No. 256 Greene street, the northwest corner, comprising two lots, which were part of Mr. Lyons' purchase, had been bought only a few days previous—May 1—by Mr. Schlesinger, for $100,000.

Among other properties sold were Nos. 167 to 173 Wooster street, near Houston, 98x100, to Scott & Bowne, for $100,000, subject to mortgages; Nos. 75 to 79 Pitt and 211 to 215 Rivington, southwest corner, with two five-story tenements and stores, to Kavy Rosansky for $100,000, in exchange for Nos. 42 and 44 Oliver street; Nos. 22 and 24 West 3d street, 40x75, and 208 Greene, 25x100 to Michael Giblin, the builder, for $135,000, on June 3, for improvement; No. 57 West 10th street, a seven and eight-story flat, 21.9x94.10, by Maclay & Davies to Helen B. Thompson, of Niagara Falls, for $125,000, the former taking back a mortgage of $65,000. Nos. 113-117 Spring street, near Mercer, with two-five-story iron front factory buildings, were purchased by Jacob Emsheimer for $205,000. The latter transferred No. 113, size 37.6x100, to Edward Rothschild for $102,500, and a half-interest in No. 117, to Leopold Stadecker, for $51,250, Mr. Emsheimer evidently being the nominal purchaser and the two latter the actual purchasers. The northeast corner of University Place and 10th street, with nearly six lots, was sold by Lloyd Aspinwall, and another, to Albert S. Rosenbaum, for $130,000.

On the north side of 13th street, 125 feet east of 6th avenue, Nathan Straus purchased for Macy & Co., the New York Juvenile Asylum, situated on three lots, for $150,000. This property is in the rear of Macy's and was purchased for the purpose of extending their emporium. On 14th street, south side, west of Avenue C, a vacant plot of ten lots was sold to Henry M. Bendheim, the real estate dealer, for $100,000, subject to mortgages and the taxes of 1889, and under a contract to build tenements thereon. W. H. Muldoon, the builder, bought these ten lots for $120,000, and built the tenements thereon. On 1st avenue, between and on 29th and 30th streets, Nelson J. Waterbury, Jr., sold to S. Rosenwald, the hop brewer and tobacco manufacturer, three five-story factories, four five-story buildings, and a six-story malt factory, all under foreclosure, for $215,000 on May 24th. One of the largest purchases of unimproved property on the west side took place in the transfer of the blocks bounded by 11th and 13th avenues, 27th and 28th streets, on February 17, to Wm. W. Rossiter, a Franklin street merchant residing in Brooklyn, the price paid being $400,000. The fact that the purchaser is a namesake of Treasurer Rossiter, of the New York Central Road, who also lives on Long Island, may or may not suggest that the property was purchased in the interest of that road in connection with the Hudson River Road. No. 861 Broadway, near 17th street, a four-story stone building, was purchased in November last by D. L. Einstein for $130,000.

A five-story flat and three five-story dwellings, on the northeast corner of Broadway and 41st street, were sold by W. L. Pomeroy, to W. S. Cooper at a nominal consideration, subject to a mortgage of $140,000. On the west side of 2d avenue, south of 24th street, and running in an "L" to 24th street, six lots with bulldings thereon, were transferred to Kranich & Bach, the piano manufacturers, for $125,000; and on Lexington avenue, southeast corner of 48th street, 174.6x100.5, with one seven-story and four six-story flats, were conveyed but not sold, by Angelo Mondolfo to Maurice V. Freund, the former being the nominal owner only and a "dummy" of the latter. The consideration named was $452,000 and all liens.

The west side of Park avanue between 50th and 51st streets was conveyed to Randolph Guggenheimer, at $135,000, of which $85,000 was mortgage; while five lots on the southwest corner of that avenue and 59th street, were purchased by the city for $130,000, for a new Board of Education Building.

Among 5th avenue properties, in addition to those named last week, may be mentioned No. 72, on the northeast corner of 13th street, 51.7x100, which was sold to Frank Fuller for $150,000, and on which a bachelors' apartment house will soon stand in place of the two houses now on the site; No. 81, near 16th street, 34x128.4, purchased by W. J. Demorest at the absurdly low price of $95,000; No. 91, near 16th street, bought by Eyelina K. wife H. B. Hollins, the banker, for $110,000; Christ Church, on the southeast corner of 35th street, to Fred. Billings, 62.9x125, for $215,000; Nos. 483 and 485, near 41st street, in partition, to Robert Graves and Lena B., wife of Thos. W. Strong Jr., for $162,000; No. 489, two doors distant, to Augustine Pottier for $269,089, the two latter sales being of business properties and to parties in interest; No. 557, near 46th street, 25x100, to Wm. C. Adams for $102,500, in exchange for properties on 72d, 95th and 96th streets; and the southeast corner of 59th street, with the old buildings thereon, to Judge P. H. Dugro and Fredk. Wagner, et al., for $200,000, on which those gentlemen are building an eleven-story and basement hotel. The numerous dwellings included in these 5th avenue sales will, in a very short time, all be converted into business properties.

NORTH OF 59TH STREET, EAST SIDE.

Let us now turn our attention to the numerous large parcels sold during the season north of 59th street. We will deal first with the east side. These sales are noticeable for one thing, they are very nearly all of avenue properties. This would seem to show that whatever large transactions are undertaken by investors, dealers and speculators on the east side, are in properties having frontages on avenues, and not on side streets. This is quite an important point to have discovered, and it teaches its own lesson. A good proportion of the purchases were of 5th avenue properties, and a considerable proportion of Madison avenue parcels, the properties sold on the two avenues being both improved and unimproved. Park avenue looms up also, though only in certain favored sections, while 3d and other avenues produce a small quota. Only five or six parcels out of thirty were strictly of street frontages, one of these being the Central Turn Verein.

We will first take a glance at the 5th avenue properties. Of these five lots on the northeast corner of 59th street, comprise probably the most important. They were purchased by Wm. W. Astor, for $390,000. A fourteen-story building is to be erected on the site to cost about $1,000,000. The largest sale of vacant property on 5th avenue was of fourteen lots between and on 91st and 92d streets, by the Taber estate to Julius Katzenberg, at a nominal consideration, subject to a mortgage of $175,000. Mr. Katzenberg transferred these lots to Randolph Guggenheimer and Isaac Untermyer at $255,000. The northwest corner of 115th street, with a dwelling and five lots, together with a dwelling at No. 130 East 61st street, were conveyed to Mary J, wife of J. B. Coe, the lawyer, for $120,000. Ten five-story flats and stores between 131st and 132d streets were transferred, but not sold by J. W. Haaren to Andrew T. Judge, one of his associates at $3 25,000, with a mortgage of $146,000; while the latter transferred them to the former at $335,000, leaving a mortgage of $190,000. Nos. 2201 to 2207, on the northeast corner of 134th street, No. 3 East 134th street, and Nos. 3 to 9 East 133d street, nine tenements and lots, were sold, under contract, to Louise P. Norton, of Stonybrook, L. I., for $248,000. Nos. 2220 to 2226, on the northwest corner of 135th street, five tenements and lots, were conveyed, but not sold, to Adrew T. Judge, at $150,000.

On Madison avenue the conveyances were about equally numerous. No. 30 East 64th street, southwest corner, was purchased by ex-Mayor Seth Low, of Brooklyn, on his appointment as President of Columbia College, which necessitated his residing in New York City. The price paid was $100,000. The Church of the Holy Spirit, on the northeast corner of 66th street, with the parsonage on the avenue adjoining, were sold to All Soul's Church for $170,000, a mortgage of $135,000 being allowed to remain. The fine residence on the northwest corner of 79ht street was purchased from The C. Graham & Sons Co. by John S. Wilson for $135,000; seven vacant lots on the northeast corner of 98th street went to Mr. Buhler, Jr., at $100,000; sixteen vacant lots on the southeast corner of 107th street to Michael Riley, the builder, at $150,000; the northeast corner of 115th street, 100.10x84, with a five-story tenement and store, and No. 53 Suffolk street, a tenement on lot 25x100, were transferred to John H. Parker, of Loonie & Parker, builders, at $200,000; five flats on the southwest corner of 116th street were conveyed, but not sold, by J. H. Wellwood to Homer J. Beaudet for $156,000, including mortgages aggregating $127,262, and Vice-President Levi P. Morton sold to J. D. Putnam 10 2-5 lots on the northeast corner of 117th street at $125,000, taking in exchange seven four-story houses on 95th and 96th streets, near 9th avenue, at $202,500, with mortgages of $112,500.

On Park avenue three five-story flats, on a plot 115x102.2, were sold to Norman L. Munro, the publisher, for $237,500, a mortgage remaining thereon of $167,500. Nos. 965 and 967, near 82d street, two flats, were transferred to Wm. R. Martin at $109,000, the latter only paying $6,500 in cash, leaving $102,500 on mortgage. The entire block, comprising over 32 lots, bounded by Park and Lexington avenues, 100th and 101st streets, was conveyed to Solomon Marx at $155,000, an average of about $5,000 per lot, and Nos. 1820 and 1822, on the northwest corner of 125th street, 49.11x90, with two six-story buildings and bank thereon, was conveyed to the Mount Morris Bank at $190,000, of which $125,000 was a mortgage.

On 3d avenue, ten flats and stores comprising the western front between 66th and 67th streets, 200.10x80, were sold to C. Grayson and W. Clarence Martin for $450,000, of which $337,500 was mortgage. On the northwest corner of 71st street, three four-story tenements and stores on 4,616 square feet were transferred by Jacob Bookman to Susan C, wife of Benjamin Haxtun, at $100,000; three tenements and stores on the northwest corner of 97th street to Elizabeth Higgins at $160,000; and ten five-story flats, on the west side of 3d avenue, between and on 66th and 67th streets, 200.10x80, by Wm. C. Martin to W. W. Astor for $450,000.

On the north side of 67th street, 100 feet west of Avenue A, a vacant plot, 200x145.6 in size, was conveyed by the Schermerhorn estate to Ellen S., wife of Rich. T. Auchmuty, at $140,000, which was transferred one day later to Fredk. A. Schermerhorn at the same figure with a mortgage remaining thereon of $84,000.

Among other east side properties transferred were the following: The Central Turn Verein building by Jacob Ruppert, the brewer, to the Verein at $780,000, of which $350,000 was a mortgage; eleven vacant lots on 95th street, west of West End avenue, to P. H. McManus, the builder, at $105,000; four flats at Nos. 107 to 113 East 75th street, plot 107x102.2, by the Trustees of the Society of Shakers of Mount Lebanon, to John S. Robinson at $156,000, of which $84,000 was mortgage; eight lots and four flats and stable at Nos. 165 to 171 East 77th street, and 164 to 172 East 78th street, running through, by Max Danziger, the building loan operator, to Wm. C. Burne, for improvement, at $103,500; Nos. 422 to 426 East 86th street, three tenements, to F. A. Libbey (deed dated March 12, 1885), recorded December last, at $126,000 and all liens; and eight tenements on Avenue A, between 83d and 84th streets, 204.4x98, to G. & J. Schreiner, builders, at $138,000.

Recently the Committee on Parks and Open Spaces of the London County Council made a report to that body on the re-organization of the staff employed in connection with the Parks. The report says that during the last twenty years the area of Parks and open spaces of London under municipal control has increased from 178 acres to more than 3,000, and the number of persons employed is now nearly 400. The annual expenditure has reached $250,000 for maintenance only. These figures the Committee thinks indicate the necessity for a thoroughly good organization, and of efficient control under a responsible head. The kind of man for this place, they conclude, should be a professional landscape gardener of a high class, having a thorough technical knowledge of everything connected with the formation and maintenance of parks, together with some general business capacity and experience in the management of the men that would be placed under his control. Consequently they recommend that resolutions should be passed re-organizing the department and placing such a man at its head. Such action would never be taken by the authorities of this city. It is obviously opposed to democratic principles to put a engineer into a public office, and retain him there, for it tends to the creation of a stiff-necked bureaucracy. At the same time the fact that a department spent $250,000 a year, and employed 400 men, would indicate in this city, as in London, the necessity for a thoroughly good organization—that is a thoroughly good Tammany organization.

Real Estate Department.

The week just past has been a quiet one both in the brokers' offices and on 'Change at auction; the foreclosure sales have, in many cases been adjourned, and where the property was sold it was generally bought by the plaintiff in the action. The public auction sales of city property too have been unsatisfactory; at one sale during the week the auctioneer could get no bid, and at other sales, property has been bought in for the account of the owners. At private sale the transactions were neither large nor very numerous, but the brokers say that there is a good deal of inquiry for reliable investment property. The owners of such property especially in the business districts, however, do not seem at all anxious to sell, even where a good advance is offered, and so transactions are hard to close even with a plenty of buyers. The trading feature just now is a factor in the market, and it will probably continue so through the summer. Next week. we cannot look for much important business as it is a "Holiday week" with pratically only four working days.

On Monday, the only business at the Exchange was a sale under foreclosure of five flats on the northwest corner of Madison avenue and 105th street. The amount due on the flats was $98,324, while the total realized from their sale was $98,500.

On Tuesday six auctioneers held sales at the Exchange. No. 62 Essex street, the only down-town property announced, sold for $23,825. By order of the administrators, a 20-foot lot on 118th street, west of 5th avenue, sold for $5,350. Under foreclosure, two lots on 75th street, east of 5th av, sold for $40,000, as against $66,085 due on the property. In the way of suburban property, Auctioneers Fairchild & Yoran sold thirty-one lots on Jerome avenue. between 184th street and Highbridge road. The prices ranged from $330 to $1,100 for the corner of Highbridge road and 164th street. The total realized for the thirty-one lots was $13,835 or $446 for each lot. The sale differed from suburban sales held earlier in the year, in that the property was divided among a few buyers. Their names are Hugh N. Camp, W. J. Barnes, R. G. Cornell, R. M. Bruno, M. Magee and J. L. Robinson. Some three-story houses, on 15-foot lots, on the corner of Grant avenue and 164th street, sold for $3,850, $3,900 and $4,000 each.

On Wednesday only two parcels of city property were disposed of on 'Change, a four-story dwelling on Lenox avenue, north of 121st street, was sold under foreclosure to the plaintif for $35,000, and the northwest corner of 10th avenue and 28th street also sold under foreclosure for $23,500. Two private houses on Amsterdrm (10th) avenue, and one house on 64th street, east of Amsterdam avenue, were withdrawn, as the auctioneer could get no bid. The general opinion seemed to be that the houses were pretty well sold already, considering the amount on mortgage. On the two 10th avenue houses, which are 17 feet front, there was a mortgage of $16,000 each, and on the 64th street houses there was a little over $19,000. A house and lot on Eastman Terrace, Poughkeepsie, sold for $6,500.

On Thursday the sale of No. 423 Grand street, corner of Attorney, sold by order of the Supreme Court in a partition suit, was interesting. The property started at $15,000, and it was quickly bid up by several competing parties to $24,000, at which figure it was sold to Joseph Stiner, the large tea merchant. Under foreclosure No. 608 6th street sold to Thos. Dreyfus for $21,750, as against $20,000 thereon. The sale of 190 lots at Bath Beach, belonging to Geo. E. and J. Lott Nostrand, attracted considerable attention. The prices, which were generally satisfactory, ranged from $60 to $400, although most of the lots sold in the neighborhood of $200 each.

On Friday, the fourclosure sales advertised were adjourned.

On Monday, June 30th Jere. Johnson, Jr., will sell by order of William Davison, Esq., at two o'clock, on the premises, 400 desirable lots, on Spring field avenue, Springfield, Long Island. This sale, which was announced to take place on Saturday, June 21st, was on account of the storm adjourned until Monday the 30th. There will be a free excursion by a special train, leaving Long Island City and Flatbush avenue at one o'clock. Tickets issued for the first sale will be good for the postponed sale if presented by responsible people. On all purchases of $500 and upwards 50 per cent. of the purchase money may remain on bond and mortgage.

On Monday, June 30th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the four-story brown stone flat No. 512 East 119th st, 20x60x100.11, and sixty-two lots in the village of Westchester, situated on Green and Washington avenues and 2d street.

On Tuesday, July 1st, Ricnard V. Harnett & Co. will sell the three-story and basement, high stoop, brown stone dwelling, 16.8x100, No. 157 Carroll street, Brooklyn.

West Brooklyn is developing very quickly, and is an excellent residence district. It can be reached by the Fifth Avenue Elevated Road to the new Union depot, and thence by the cars either of the Prospect Park and Coney Island Railroad, or those of the Brooklyn, Bath and West End Railroad. The title is guaranteed by the Title Guarantee and Trust Co., and 60 per cent. may remain on bond and mortgage on all purchases of $500 and upwards.

On Tuesday, July 8th, Richard V. Harnett & Co. will sell 400 building lots well situated at Lowerre Station on the New York & Northern Railroad. The property is fifty minutes from Rector street by the express trains and is located just north of Van Cortlandt Park. They are all available for immediate improvement. Out Among the Builders.

DeLemos & Cordes have plans under way for a five-story and basement warehouse, 75x100. Men and Things.

Edison's phonograph is a toy, out of which can be spun a good deal of amusement; but in spite of the ingenuity of the inventor with his several hundred patents, I do not believe that it has as yet become popular for any practical purpose. A possible use for the instrument, however, was recently called to my attention; and I give it for what it is worth. It has been ingeniously suggested that it might prove a valuable aid in the mechanics of conversation. We all of us have occasionally met people, who, to put it mildly, are neither amazing nor instructive talkers. Not infrequently this arises from a physical impediment or a mental lack of expansiveness; and in such cases we may still have a very good opinion of the person in question—that is, like Obadiah's cow, though he never gives birth to a calf, yet he may conduct himself with such manifest dignity, that he gains the respect and good wishes of the community. But there are others, who, hindered by no physical impediment and possessed of expansiveness unlimited, either dash boldly into a conversation on a subject about which their knowledge could be compressed into a word, hum and haw around other subjects, or confine themselves to conventional remarks about conventional matters that are neither inspiriting or edifying. A good talker must either know something or he must know to conceal his ignorance. An empty-headed person, unredeemed by imagination, superficial culture, or clever phrase-turning, is probably the stalest and most unprofitable, unfeathered biped on the planet, for you are obliged to treat it with some show of respect, when in truth it deserves no better handling than your chair or door-mat. But I am wandering from the point, as the fish once said to the fisherman, and the eel to the cook who was skinning it alive. The suggestion is this—if phonographs can be compressed into a doll, it ought to be possible to compress them also into a pill. Assuming that this could be done, the imagination is appalled by the possible consequences. In order to acquire pretty sayings and appropriate quotations, it would not be necessary to spend laborious nights and days studying the best that has been thought or written; it would be necessary to take simply a homœpathic dose of a certain style of quotation and conversation. Physicians might consider it something of a reflection on the noble art of therapeutics to put a pill to such a use; but as Richter says, humanity has other ills than those of the body; and if one of them can be remedied by the judicious employment of the phonographic pill so much the better. By its use the dull could become bright, the inane vigorous, the muddled-heads lucid. The great art of conversation, which as it is said, is being lost in the present days of train-catching and dollar-hunting might be restored. It would have its disadvantages of course. I have often heard one of your long-winded talkers begin a quotation only to find himself unable to finish it; and I have returned thanks to heaven for his lack of memory. Under the new regime he would simply, of course, refer to his medicine chest and pursue his quotation, after having washed it down with a little water. Under such circumstances it would be necessary to take heroic measures, but it would be better, even now, if this were done more frequently.

It may be interesting to speculate as to the possible specific results of this new suggestion on the mechanics of conversation. Thus let us suppose that some wag addressed to a person, who shall be nameless, but whom we all know—a man who united the conceit of knowledge with the utter absence of its substance, a question as to his opinion of Shakespeare. Let us further suppose that this familiar spirit who had been let into the secret, replied with Swinburne's spirited (though somewhat lengthy) comparison of Shakespeare and his infinite variety to the ramifications of a rough and broken coast line; there would be no doubt that our wag, like Saul, would have gone forth after his father's asses and found a kingdom. Or if the above designated gentleman, in a moment of bright perspicuity, should address to Miss Squeedunk a remark as to its being a "charming day," he would be suprised when she answered:

> And what is so rare as a day in June!
> Then, if ever, come perfect days;
> Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
> And over it softly her warm ear lays.

And he would doubtless answer, "Aw! how interesting." He might, however, feel a little hurt if she answered a remark of his as to his travels abroad with the following much-quoted couplet:

> How much a fool who has been sent to roam
> Excels a fool who has been kept at home.

And I feel quite assured that Miss Squeedunk would make an enemy of our friend if she replied to this inquiry as to her opinion of the melodrama entitled, "The World Well Lost," with these few words of Ulysses:

> O, Jupiter! within the cave,
> Horrible things, deeds to be feigned in words,
> But not believed as being done.

For he would sincerely dislike being called Jupiter, a person who really dressed very badly and he would not be able to connect the remark with the criticisms on the play in that favorite journal of his, the "New York Morning Daily Slop-over." These few instances will probably show sufficiently well how the phonographic pill might be judiciously used. Neither need anyone be too proud by the means of this instrument to eke out his own poverty, for I am not so sure that most of us, if we do not use the phonographic pill in conversation, most certainly do employ what I will call the phonographic method. Sheridan's well-known remark to a fellow-member of Parliament that the latter's speech contained both facts and wit, the only trouble being that he had drawn on his imagination for his facts and on his memory for his wit would be most true outside as well as inside the House of Commons. A person inexperienced in whist might for instance imagine that the four gentlemen sitting around the table playing were really very witty; but if he would remember that these four gentlemen had played whist many times before, and had slowly accumulated a fund of appropriate humor, it would not be illogical to draw the conclusion that the four gentlemen might be just as witty when divorced from the whist table as a clown is outside of a circus. Indeed, I ask the reader whether, on looking back over the many clever remarks with which he has convulsed the people who heard them, how many he finds that were born full-fledged of his own brain, and how many were the lingering reminiscences of things read or heard. Of course a person who would be eternally giving authorities would be an unmitigated nuisance. We should soon tire of what Mr. Bull said, or the words of the Rev. Dodo Drake, and long for something of John Smith himself, apparently, if not really. My only point is that we must not necessarily attribute wit to the person who makes witty remarks. He may have a good memory, and so far is to be congratulated, but the Thane of Cawdor can become King of Scotland only by an unjustifiable assumption.

Danger to Builders from Unrestricted Property.

How very important it is to builders who erect first-class private houses to make sure of the character of the property near them, has been strongly demonstrated on the west side lately. Wm. B. Baldwin purchased three lots on 76th street, between Central Park West and Ninth avenue, and had plans drawn for three stables, which he announced his intention of building on the site. This alarmed neighboring property owners who had erected handsome residences on the street, and they were forced, for their own protection, to purchase the lots from Mr. Baldwin. The latter thereupon brought a lot some six blocks further south, on 70th street, west of Central Park West, in an equally select residence locality, and right in the midst of some lots purchased a few weeks ago by two parties whose ground is restricted. In fact, the lot purchased by Mr. Baldwin is said to be the only one not restricted on the block. He has had plans drawn for a stable to be built on this lot, and if such a structure is erected on the site, it will depreciate the value of nearly every piece of property on 70th street, between Central Park West and 9th avenue. G. Fred. Pelham, architect, who is drawing these plans, recently said, in answer to a query: "I cannot say if Mr. Baldwin has sold his 70th street lot or not. I have not seen him since he ordered the plans, which are now completed."

It would not be correct to assume that Mr. Baldwin has purchased the lots so as to force neighboring property owners to buy him out at a profit, as has been stated on the west side, for it appears that he has bought a lot on Manhattan square, on which he intends to build a residence, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that he wants to build a private stable for himself near his home. It is pointed out, however, with equal force, that lots for stable purposes can be purchased west of 10th avenue, a little further south, at almost half the price of the 70th street lot, and that Mr. Baldwin has evidently gone considerably out of his way in paying such a high price for a stable lot, when he could have obtained the same thing at a saving of $6,000 to $7,000 in an unrestricted locality where he would not have so seriously threatened the value of his neighbors' properties as on 76th or 70th street.

The Manhattan Road Makes a Purchase.

A strip of ground has been purchased by the Manhattan Elevated Railway from the Lynch estate. It is 710 feet long and has a width at the southern extreme of 69.8 feet and at the northern extreme of 8 feet, where it adjoins the line of the Croton aqueduct. The property immediately adjoins, to the north, the strip of ground bought by the company from the Lynch estate in January, 1889, which is 69.10x300 in size, and which is at present used for the storage of engines.

Vice-president Gallaway, of the Manhattan road, was yesterday seen and asked to what purpose the strip just purchased would be put. He said: "We intend to use it for storing additional engines. We wanted more room for that purpose. That is the sole object of the purchase."

These are the only two parcels owned, at the northern terminus of the road, by the company. They have a lease of two docks to the east of this property from the city, for which they pay $6,000 per annum. These docks are used for coaling purposes. The company is somewhat cramped for room at this terminus, at present, and there is no doubt that they will eventually extend their lines northward to Inwood, as allowed by their charter, and make that spot their terminus. This would enable them to buy all the ground they wanted cheaply. It might not pay the company, should they extend their lines, in the first few years, but within six or seven years it certainly would.

With the advent of summer comes the necessity of once again reminding the owners of residences in this city who contemplate a vacation in the country or a trip to Europe, that it will conduce in a great degree to the health of their families when they return in the fall to have proper care and attention paid to the plumbing fixtures in their houses while they are away. We have on previous occasions reminded them of the danger of shutting up their houses for months, the traps left without being replenished, being certain to lose their seal by evaporation, permitting free ingress of the sewer air, laden as it invariably is with disease germs. It is an indisputable fact that much of the sickness prevalent among the class who are familiarly known as "summer birds" is induced, if not actually caused by the lack of caution in not making provision during absence for a frequent supply of water in the pipes while the houses are unoccupied, and on this account we again repeat our note of warning of previous years to have some one take care of the fixtures and see that all the pipes are regularly flushed at least once in the week or at farthest ten days. The trifling cost of having a careful and conscientious plumber look after this duty would be well repaid by the protection against sickness or its cause which it will afford. When we suggest that some plumber be engaged to look after the domestic piping, we have in mind the fact that he will be able to note if leaks in pipes become apparent, and have them stopped before any damage to walls and ceilings could occur. Some people may prefer filling their traps with glycerine, which is said to be proof against evaporation, but whatever be the precaution adopted, it should not be neglected. The "ounce of prevention" cannot be better applied than in the case of plumbing fixtures so as to maintain the seal of traps while the house is unoccupied.

MORTGAGES.

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given, and the amount. The general dates used as headings are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date. Whenever the rate is not given, read as 6 per cent.

BUILDING MATERIAL MARKET.

[For prices see pages x., xi., xii. and xiii.]

BRICKS.—A somewhat better showing has been made on the market for Common Hards since our last report, even to the extent of a partial recovery on value, and naturally operators are inclined to feel correspondingly hopeful. The top line of valuation remains about as before, or say $6 per M., but on the low and medium grades there has been an advance paid of 12½@25c. per M., as these through their cheapness were the most popular, and have sold so close to supply as to give sellers an advantage sufficient to exact the gain already noted. To some of the trade there still appears a doubt as to whether consumption has actually increased, but the majority incline to an affirmative opinion, and all agree that offerings have been less plenty. The latter is not due to any voluntary holding back of shipments, but to the fact that transportation facilities were scarce through detentions taking place at the end of the route. As is well known certain municipal regulations prevent the accumulation of brick in front of jobs in excess of the requirements of immediate consumption, and there are also a great many piers upon which only a certain comparatively small quantity can be landed, the result of which is that barges found it slow work discharging and could not return promptly to afford loading room at the yards. From all accounts manufacturers keep right along with their work, and, up to date, it is probably safe to say that about all capacity is producing, but, as previously noted, it is expected that during the coming week a good many yards will have completed their complement, and this with the defection of a certain amount of labor always expected to occur at this season is likely to cut down the make and prevent any removal, except through more attractive conditions. The demand for Pales has been good and the market firm, with $3.00 about an inside for finest stock. For North River Front there has been a better demand and the promise good for further increase, especially for public school buildings, where they have generally been found popular. The finer grades of Front have not done altogether so well as hoped for and remain only fairly active, but cost is unchanged, and we understand that Menton manufacturers have quite generally agreed to reduce production before they will consent to cut prices.

LATH.—No very decided change can be advised but the general tendency of the market was to strength, and the line of value on first hand parcels is raised a trifle, making $2.35@2.40 the range at present, with some exceptional business even a fraction higher. As arrivals have been somewhat fuller the firmer tone of the market would fairly seem to indicate an increase of demand, and receivers gain confidence accordingly, especially as there is no evidence of important additions to the quantity afloat. The arrivals from interior points continue to some extent and sell irregularly with business from $2.20@2.25 per M. up, and these goods, to a certain extent, act as a check to greater buoyancy on Eastern stock.

LIME.—Although still somewhat unsettled, the general market is in a little better shape than last week, and there is an evident desire to present a steadier tone, especially where there is a likelihood that it will appear in print. The held and poor stuff selling at the inside rates when the break first occurred is now about all worked off, new arrivals came in rather slowly, and receivers claim that no really fresh offering of common Rockland is available below 90c. per bbl. On Lump the reports are in even stronger tenor, as this variety happens to be exceptionally scarce, with some buyers very anxious to obtain stock and readily bidding $1.20 per bbl. It is, however, an open market now, unfettered by obligations to the combine, with prices likely to fluctuate on any change in the relative positions of supply and demand. Other makes are uncertain, but it is thought that beyond amounts afloat no St. John stock is likely to come forward, especially after August 1st, when the new Administrative law goes into effect and will raise the duty.

LUMBER.—Sifting over the reports from various sources, wholesale and retail, the return is much the same as for some little time past. Among our local dealers the claim over volume of distribution varies according to location of yard, the up-town and annexed district contingent evidently as usual doing the largest general business, and finding a good match among pretty much all operators across the bridge. Toward bulk lots the demand runs with somewhat variable force and volume, the sharpest call being for spruce, though desirable hemlock and the Southern wood get a good, full share of attention. Considerable white pine is taken without much fuss made over it, and the more popular hardwoods are holding their own in the moving stream of trade. Occasionally some variations in price take place of a minor character, but as a rule sellers manage to retain the bulk of advantage, and conditions are steady. Most of our Western Exchanges are talking firmer regarding general conditions of both primary and distributive markets.

Eastern Spruce remains a thoroughly saleable wood, for there has already been sufficient demonstration that high prices do not curtail the outlet below the scant supply through which the extreme cost is stimulated, and if a drop comes in the line of value, the entire run of trade, hungry from long fasting, will stand ready to take care of a vast amount of stuff of all descriptions suited to local consumption. From the mills come a repetition of the claim of booked orders sufficient to exhaust probably all they can obtain transportation for during several weeks to come, but work is increasing and may after a while lead to some surplus for open market use. Arrivals have been fair, and as usual principally under engagement, but where there was a cargo for sale the buyer could be found in waiting.

Piling is treated upon cheerfully by most operators, and there seems to be no worry over the present or prospective condition of the market. It is understood that the bulk of the liberal receipts of the season have practically passed into active consumption, and therefore any fresh requirements means fresh demand, with chances against getting much of an offset in way of desirable supplies About former rates quoted and general steadiness claimed.

Hemlock has a good general market with former range of quotations given, though possibly for a week or two there has been more business done at inside than outside figures. This represents no decided weakness, but merely the natural result of the season when competition is slightly broader, and the extreme anxiety of buyers in a measure allayed. Indeed, some pretty shrewd agents are cancelling a husbanding of the rather scanty supplies at primary points, on the theory that after the usual midsummer lull demand will revive with stimulating vigor.

White Pine does not take much of any increase in the distributive movement, but there is more doing in bulk lots. Sellers are now enabled to calculate with more accuracy upon time of delivery, and there is a better assortmenf to tender, both of which prove some attraction to buyers, who can from time to time pick up parcels to suit the requirements of their yard trade. Agents, too, act a little independently and talk of the outside custom as quite encouraging, which may somewhat stimulate the local call and help keep prices fairly steady. There is not, however, any positive anxiety among buyers and there would no doubt be prompt resistance to any attempt to advance cost in positive form. The Western reports are tuned up firmer of late, and some of them claim a strong demand from Eastern custom.

Yellow Pine remains much the same as advised of late, the inquiry proving generally satisfactory. Some operators who made quite a deal last year in stock by rail are doing little or nothing now, not through any difficulty in finding custom, but because they found many annoyances in handling car lots that the small commissions hardly balanced. For cargoes, however, and steamer parcels, custom can be obtained from most regular sources at satisfactory margin, and now and then a special bill or a railroad order pulls up the average nicely. Harmony seems to prevail in the associations, and a steady tone is well preserved.

Carolina Pine is acknowledged to be selling less freely by some of the trade, not through any loss of popularity, but simply because the steady and full takings since the opening of the season have finally, temporarily at least, filled many of the natural outlets, and buyers now withdraw. Manufacturers, however, have a great many unfilled orders yet to execute, and pretty much every one of them predict that before an accumulation of stock in first hands can take place, there will be a renewal of demand. Timber at $3 @ $4 per M less than spruce remains as an attraction to a great many consumers and is likely to hold favor until spruce becomes more plenty and cheaper.

Hardwoods are selling very well, but without showing anything detrimental to the interest of buyers. The fact is that all the season our market has been overrun with salesmen of all sorts, kinds and conditions, and while a great many of them were absolutely driven to seek other fields for want of patronage here, they have left ample directions through which they can be re-called, if necessary. Dealers, manufacturers and all buyers, therefore, are independent, except, probably, where they may require some very special selection. Poplar retains its full share of favor and is subject to the usual contradictory statement in regard to price, but the best result of pretty much all controversy is to show that about the former general range continues, with variation in cost due to difference in quality and other ordinary influences. For quartered oak the consumption is just about as full as ever, and all first-class stock can be placed at full rates. Faulty good, however, can not be sold, except at due allowance for imperfections, as buyers are not of the careless order. Other woods are doing their share in meeting consumption and hold a steady line of value.

A despatch dated at Chicago June 26th says: The United Association of Lumbermen was organized here to-day. The following officers were elected: B. D. Gribble, Gainesville, Tex., president; H. T. Bennett, Indianapolis, Ind., first vice-president; A. W. Booth, Bayonne, N. J., second vice president; W. G. Sunderland, Omaha, Neb., treasurer, and W. G. Hollis, Minneapolis, Minn., secretary. The membership is to consist of the officers of all lumber associations in the United States. The body will meet once a year, wherever it shall elect, on the third Wednesday in February. The next meeting will be held in Chicago.

THE WEST.

The Northwestern Lumberman, in reviewing the general situation, says:

As the season advances the lumber trade situation grows stronger. The general demand is healthy and active, while it is a peculiarity of the condition that the supply is nowhere excessive. Not since 1880 and 1881 have stocks been so nearly reduced to the actual consumptive demand as now. If there is any prospect of excess anywhere it is on the Mississippi river. The input of pine logs tributary to that stream was of very large volume last winter, and operators of mills from Minneapolis to St. Louis report a supply that will keep the mills running full capacity until frost stops the wheels. This means a heavy product of lumber. But conditions are favorable to trade in trans-river territory by reason of the promising appearance of the crops, and the prospect that there will be considerable railroad building this year in Minnesota, the Dakotas and others western states and territories. In all the country east of the Missouri river the supply appears to be no larger than the requirement for consumption.

* * * * * * *

A great help to the demand for white pine is the strength manifest in the yellow pine and hardwood trades. Stocks of oak, which enter so largely into house finish, are short, and the demand is unusually urgent. Yellow pine finish, flooring and ceiling are also in limited supply, and the mills are behind their orders for such lumber. Besides the car factory requirement is this season unusually large, and bridge timber demand is absorbing a good deal of product. The general call for lumber and timber of all kinds is having an effect to strengthen the lake pine markets.

The eastern demand continues to draw heavily on the Michigan and Wisconsin supply. This is an especial feature that is affecting the western trade. Eastern buyers have offered higher prices for lumber than western dealers felt able to pay. But affairs have now reached that stage that compels an advance in Lake Michigan markets in order to stock them with sufficient lumber to maintain their trade.

* * * * * *

Few lumber dealers have anticipated that the time would ever come when it would be difficult to procure all the oak that should be needed, no matter how enormous the demand might be. But this year we see yard stocks low and broken, and dealers hunting among the mills in all fields of production for enough lumber to maintain the current demand. Altogether the lumber trade and industry seems to have entered a period when the rate of previous supply is inadequate, and when, unless there shall be a great increase in production, prices must certainly rise.

The Northwestern Lumberman furnishes the following upon the Chicago market:

Receipts for the past seven days have been very heavy as compared with those of several weeks previous, but as the greater part of the stock coming in had been sold to arrive, the increase of arrivals was hardly noticeable at the docks. A few more cargoes than usual have been offered on the open market, but these by no means satisfied the hunger of buyers. Piece stuff is wanted, and wanted badly. Short is being held firm at $10, and the more desirable cargoes go for $10.25. There is active inquiry for longer lengths in consequence of the large demand for them out of the yard, and prices are higher in comparison than short lengths.

Green lumber has begun to arrive from the mills in much larger quantities, but stocks are so light in this city that there is no danger of an over supply. Manufacturers seem confident that prices will keep firm at present figures, and are therefore willing to ship freely to the extent of their resources.

A cargo of dry stock is seldom seen, and when one does come in it sells almost before the vessel has tied up.

Perhaps one of the liveliest features of the market is the trade in quarter-sawed oak. Not more than 20 per cent. of the average oak tree will make real good quartered oak, and as everybody wants it the manufacturer or dealer does not have a great deal of difficulty in selling good extra dry stock at from $38 to $47 per thousand. If it is narrow and green, it will not bring more than from $38 to $40, but good widths that are dry will sell for nearly $10 more than the narrow grades when green. The time is coming in the near future when the plain oak will be substituted for uses for which the fancy article is now demanded. The wood is becoming so popular that it will sell freely without the "frills" for many purposes during the next twelve months; not, however, because oak is not abundant in the tree. As a matter of fact it is the most plentiful we have, outside of the soft woods and yellow pine.

Low grade walnut and common maple have a struggle to maintain themselves in the high rank which the other hardwoods hold to-day in the market. High grades of walnut are quick sellers; 3-8, 5-8 and ¾ will sell for from $50 to $80 per thousand, inch $85 to $90, 1¼, 1½ and 2-inch will bring close to $100 per thousand.

The Mississippi Valley Lumberman as follows:

Driving is progressing very satisfactorily all along the Mississippi and its tributaries. Until Friday of last week drivers contended with a falling stage of water on the main stream and some of its branches, but since that time there has been a gradual and steady rise that has brought the river to a most favorable driving stage. The booms at Minneapolis are steadily turning an average of 2,500,000 feet of logs per day, and keeping the supply at the mills in good shape. With but few exceptions all the drives are now moving. On Pokagema the logs of Clough Bros. and others are held above the government dam The Prairie river drive is moving and will be out in ten days or thereabouts. The Swan river drive is out. The long prairie drive is now on the Crow Wing, coming nicely, and is expected to reach the main stream at Brainerd in a day or two. The driving stage on the upper tributaries has been notably improved during the past week by the heavy precipitation. All the streams are now full of water.

ENGLAND.

American woods are not very active in England at the moment. The Timber Trades Journal says of Liverpool:

American Black Walnut—The imports continue to be of indifferent or poor quality if we except one shipment, which we think is the best we have seen for months. It is, however, being transhipped to the Continent.

And of London as follows:

Black Walnut—Whitewood, Oak, &c.: In all of these, as in most other descriptions of cabinet-making woods, there does not seem to be more than a very moderate trade doing this week.

Generally there appears to be no want of stock, so that intending purchasers should be able to supply their requirements without any difficulty, and we have no doubt that the recent holidays are the sole cause of the present quiet conditiou of the trade.

METALS.—COPPER—Ingot has made still another advance in value since our last report, and generally the market appears to present quite a firm and promising position. The competing and Lake lots are now practically out of the way, the relative positions of supply and demand are strong, even under normal conditions, and with a probability of production becoming curtailed through strikes and other difficulties the companies feel very stiff in their views. Quotations are generally placed at 16¾@17c. for Lake, and 14½@15½c. for casting brands. Manufactured copper sells steadily and to full average extent, with producers generally strong and confident in their views, an advance in rates being looked upon simply as a natural sequence of the increased cost of ingots We quote as follows: Sheet, not above 30x72 in., 16 oz. and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 23c.; do, 12 to 14 oz., 24c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 25c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 28c.; do, under 8 oz, 30c. Sheets longer than 72 inches add 1c. for 12@14 oz., 2c. for 10@12 oz, and 3c. for 8@10 oz. Sheets, not above 36x96 in., 16 oz and over, 22c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 24c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 26c.; do, 10 to 12 oz, 30c.; do, 8 to 10 oz, 33c. Sheets longer than 96 inches 22c. for over 32 oz, and add 1c. for 16 to 32 oz, 14 to 16 oz, 12 to 14 oz, and 2c. for 8 to 10 oz. Sheets, not above 48x96, 32 to 64 oz, 22c.; do, 16 to 32 oz, 25c.; do, 14 to 16 oz, 27c.; do, 12 to 14 oz, 34c. Sheets wider than 48x96 and longer, 22@25c. for 32 to 64 oz. and over, and 27@30c. for 16 to 32 oz. All bath tub sheets, per lb., 16 oz, 25c.; 14 oz, 27c.; 12 oz, 29c.; and 10 oz, 30c. Bolt copper, ⅝ inch diameter and over, 22c. Circles, 60 diameter and less, 3c. above price of sheets of same thickness; circles, 60 to 96 do do, 5c. do; circles, 96 do and over, 6c. do. Segment and pattern sheets, 3c. above price of sheets required to cut them from. Cold or hard rolled copper, 1@2c. per lb. above the foregoing prices. Copper bottom, 26@29c. per lb, IRON—Scotch Pig does not secure a very liberal sale, most of the demand running to small parcels and generally to meet some early and pressing want of buyers. Offerings are called only fair, yet they have been found quite sufficient to satisfy all the requirements of the market. We quote at about $19.00@24.00 per ton, according to brand. American Pig meets with only a moderate uncertain demand on new orders, the business being confined in the main to small lots as wanted for special and unexpected requirements. The Northern and Southern products, however, are going into consumption with fair freedom on old contracts, and commanding about former rates all around. Reports of cutting on price may now and then be heard, but generally traceable to some unknown or second-rate brand. We quote at $17.00@18.00 per ton for No. 1 X foundry; $16.00@17.00 for No. 2 X do., and $15.00@16.00 for Gray Forge. Old material has in one way or another found a pretty good demand during the past month, resulting in the placing of several pretty full-sized parcels. The result seems to have had quite a stimulating effect upon some of the holders, and they are inclined to range the line of valuation above limits buyers are unwilling to submit to. The deal has been mostly in rails. We quote at about $24.00@24.50 for old rails; $21.50@22.00 for No. 1 wrought scrap; $17.00@17.50 for cast scrap, and $18 00@18.50 for car wheels. Manufactured iron retains a very fair amount of attention from all natural sources, and trade seems to be satisfactory, both in store lots and on special contract, indeed in some cases deliveries are rather behind time. Values are supported and as a whole the tone is cheerful. We quote Common Merchant Bar, ordinary size, at 2.10@2.12c. from store, and refined at 2.30@2.60c.; Rods, round and square, 2.40@2.45c.; Bands, 2.60@2.65c.; Norway Nail Rods, 4@5c., and domestic sheet on the bases of 3.00@3.05c., for common Nos. 10@16. Other descriptions at corresponding prices, with 1-10c. less on large lots from cars. Steel rails not active at the moment, but the market about steady. Most of the leading companies have orders in hand to keep them busy until September, though beyond that date are open to negotiations and might tender better terms than at the moment prevailing. We quote at about 30.50@31.00 per ton for standard section at the mill and 33.00@33.50 do. at tide water. LEAD—Domestic Pig has for some little time past secured a very full degree of attention, with a strengthening influence upon values in most cases. The supply seems to be well under control. We quote at $4.50@4.55c. as to quality. The manufactures of lead are quoted: Bar, 4½c. pipe. 6c.; sheet, 6¾c.; less the usual discount to the trade; and tin lined pipe, 10c.; block tin pipe. 45c., on same terms. TIN—Pig still meets only moderate consumptive demand, buyers investing only against actual wants, but speculators keep up their flurry and unsettle values. We quote at about 21.¼@21.⅜c. for round lots, and 21.50@21.75c. for jobbing parcels. Tin plates is inclined to a somewhat freer movement, but undergoes no striking change in value. We quote prices as follows: I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment, Melyn grade, $5.75@5.80, each additional X add $1.50; I. C. Charcoal, ½ cross assortment Allaway grade, $4.90@4.95, each additional X add $1; Charcoal terne, M. F. grade, 14x20, $7.00@7.05; M. F. grade, 20x28, $13.75@13.80; Worcester, 14x20, $4.90@4.95; Worcester, 20x28, $9.50@9.55; Dean grade, 14x20, $4.55@4.60; Dean grade, 20x28, $9.00@9.05; D. R. D. grade, 14x20, $4.45@4.50; D. R. D. grade, 20x28, $8.90@9.00; I. C. Coke, Penlan grade, $4.37½@4.40; J. B. grade, 14x20, $4.50@4.55; I. C. Bessemer steel, squares, $4.70@—basis; I. C. Siemens steel, squares, $4.80@—basis. Spelter is offered with moderation and care, and there has of late been a firmer disposition manifested. We quote 5.60@5.75c. for common Western, according to brand.

NAILS.—Supplies are ample for all wants, if wire, cut steel, and cut iron are included. The two former fill a great may outlets and interfere with the latter, over which manufacturers continue to find more or less fault. Prices have been somewhat irregular but close, about steady, with no evidence of surplus offerings of stock. We quote at $1.70@1.80 per keg for car lots and $1.85@1.90 per keg for parcels from store.

PAINTS, OILS, ETC.—Reports generally run in about the same tenor regarding the conditions of the market, and describe business as either quiet or tending that way. It is, however, looked upon as a fairly seasonable showing with not much change for improvement until the fall trade sets in. White lead continues unsettled with most of the advantage in favor of the consumer. With no restrictions to hamper them, dealers are doing just as expected in making lead a leader, and the smallest quantities outside of absolute retail lots cannot be bought about as cheaply as by the ton. Production is somewhat restricted but the available supply proves quite equal to all calls made. The supply of chalk is gradually increasing and prices easing off somewhat. The verdict over dry colors is much the same all along the line, simply a fair jobbing trade, with occasional fractional fluctuations, but nothing to alter the general run of quotations. Colors in oil steady without unusual animation shown in any description; Linseed Oil possibly not quite so active, but closely sold up and the market held in good shape. We quote 60@61c. for Western and 62@64c. for City. Spirits Turpentine has found quite a demand, a portion of it for regular trade purposes, and a portion of it, of a semi-speculative character, and with assisting advices from the South values are again higher, closing firmly. We quote at 40@41c. per gallon, according to quantity, delivery, etc.

TAR AND PITCH.—The wants of consumers do not appear to increase, and the supply of stock offering is fully equal to the outlet, though without showing surplus. Prices about steady. We quote Pitch at $1.40@1.55 per bbl.; Tar at $2.12½@2.30, according to quantity, quality and delivery.

LUMBER.

Appended quotations are based almost wholly upon prices obtained for goods from first hands. Yard rates necessarily range much higher owing to the expenses attending sorting out and grading cargo and even car lots, besides which must be added the cost of handling and carrying until consumers are ready to invest. Terms of sale also prove important factors, and, altogether, it is impossible to give a line of retail quotations thoroughly reliable in character.

HILL'S PATENT INSIDE SLIDING BLINDS.
These blinds require no hinges, all trimmings are supplied. They do not interfere with curtains or window ornaments, and are so constructed that light and air can be admitted from any part of the window. Being easily and rapidly operated they neither rattle nor get out of order. They economize space by doing away with pockets and the necessity of furring out, and can be removed and replaced instantly without even drawing a screw. They require no special frame as they can be attached with equal facility to any window. For workmanship or style these Blinds are not excelled by any in the market.
Call and see them or send for catalogue. Mention "Record and Guide."
